THE FREE TRADE STRUGGLE IN ENGLAND.

BY GENERAL M. M. TRUMBULL.

Second Edition Revised and Enlarged.

A timely book on the tariff question, of which Mr. Edward Atkinson says, in an article entitled "Common Sense Applied to the Tariff Question" (Pop. Sci. Mo., Aug., 1892):

"Those who choose to discriminate between the leaders of the two parties of the present time may read the perversion of English history by James G. Blaine, in the North American Review, and the true picture which is given by Gen. M. M. Trumbull.

"It would be well worth while for any one who has been misled by the common errors about the influences which brought Great Britain to reverse her policy in 1842, to read up the economic history of that period. All the facts are given by the radical Miss Martineau in her 'History of Fifty Years' Peace;' by the Tory Sir Stafford Northcote, in his 'Twenty Years' Financial Policy,' explaining the changes which Peel brought about; by the economist John Noble's 'Fiscal Legislation in Great Britain;' or in Carlyle's 'Past and Present.' The best summary is to be found in the little book published in Chicago in 1884, by Gen. M. M. Trumbull, entitled 'The American Lesson of the Free Trade Struggle in England.' In this book will be found the whole record of the condition of England from 1837 to 1846. This history ought to be read by every man who desires to make up his mind how to act in this country at the present time. The logic of events is the same. We are repeating history."

IMAGO CHRISTI: The Example of Jesus Christ.

By Rev. JAMES STALKER, D.D., author of "The Life of Jesus Christ," "The Preacher and His Models." Beautifully printed with red lines, and elegantly bound in padded leather, $3.50; also in full calf and turkey morocco, $4.50. Each style, with red under gold edges, crown octavo, in a neat box.

A NEW VOLUME (being the 5th series) OF ### The Book-Worm.

An Illustrated Treasury of Old-Time Literature. Tastefully printed in old style, on antique paper, with numerous illustrations. Octavo, cloth, $3.00.

It is a treasury of knowledge on old-time literature, and presents its readers with stores of wisdom on subjects which are attractive to the book-lover, giving in a readable form much out-of-the-way and little known information on the literature of the past. THIS NEW VOLUME CONTAINS SEVERAL NEW FEATURES—the primary object being, as in the case of its predecessors, to be as miscellaneous and discursive as possible.

A NEW VOLUME (the 15th) IN THE "BOOK-LOVER'S LIBRARY."

Books in Chains,

And Other Bibliographical Papers by the late W. BLADES. Cloth, uncut edges, $1.25.

It includes an introduction containing a general sketch of Mr. Blades' life-work by Henry B. Whentley, and will form a volume acceptable to the readers of the "Book-Lover's Library" as a companion volume to the distinguished bibliographer's "Enemies of Books."

Library Editions of Standard Authors.

Hyperion.

By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW. Beautifully illustrated with 30 photogravures. Tastefully bound in one volume, cloth, $3.50; full polished calf, gilt edges, $8.00. Fine binding by Tout of London.

"It is a book of minds, attuned on sentiments of tenderness—minds of imaginative turn, and willing and ready to interest themselves in reveries as gorgeous as morning dreams, and, in the delicate perception of art and poetry, minds tired by suffering, and sensitively alive to the influence of the beautiful. In tender and profound feeling, and in the brilliancy of imagery, the work will bear a comparison with the best productions of romantic fiction which English literature can boast."—North American Review.

Tales from Shakespeare.

BOYDELL EDITION.

By CHARLES AND MARY LAMB. Edited with an introduction by the Rev. Alfred Ainger, M.A. Beautifully illustrated with 20 photogravures. Tastefully bound in one volume, cloth, $2.50; three-quarters polished morocco, gilt top, $6.00; full polished calf, gilt edges, $7.00. Fine bindings by Tout, of London.

"One of the most useful and agreeable companions to the understanding of Shakespeare which have ever been produced. Even those who are familiar with every line of the original will be delighted with the pleasing and compendious way in which the story of each play is here presented to them."—Quarterly Review.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

FROM "IN GOLD AND SILVER."

Altogether, this book may safely be called one of the best examples of bookmaking produced in recent years.

"An admirable selection."—London Athenæum.

Love Songs of English Poets, 1500-1800.

With introduction and biographical notes by RALPH H. CAINE, and frontispiece after Angelica Kauffman.

In this collection the editor has carefully culled the rarest flowers from the rich fields of English poetry, and has produced a volume which is a singularly delicate and perfect expression of the universal passion in verse. To find all that is contained in this volume, it would be necessary to search the pages of many books.

The Story of Columbus.

By ELIZABETH EGGLESTON SEELYE. Edited by Dr. Edward Eggleston. With 100 illustrations by Allegra Eggleston. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

This book is the result of most extensive investigations, which have been carefully verified by the eminent historian and novelist, Dr. Eggleston. It is not too much to say that the whole world has been drawn upon for material by the author and the artist. To a considerable extent the plan of both text and illustrations is like that of Eggleston's "Household History of the United States." It is hardly necessary to say more regarding the fitness of this volume for a place in every American private, public and school library.

Warriors of the Crescent.

By the late W. H. DAVENPORT ADAMS, author of "Battle Stories from English History," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This story of Oriental magnificence, of glittering campaigns, fatalistic heroism, and the pillage of the marvellous riches of India by the Sultans of Ghazni and their followers, comes to the reader like new tales of the Arabian Nights. Here we may read the exploits of Mahmud, Timur the Tartar, and the Great Moguls. It is a splendid but little known chapter of history, and Mr. Adams' graphic, vivid style clothes history with the garb of romance.

Pictures from Roman Life and Story.

By Professor A. J. CHURCH, author of "Stories from Homer," "Stories from Virgil," etc. Illustrated 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"The author is a fine English scholar whose pen has produced some most charming works, and this is not behind the others in the rare interest it is so well fitted to excite among all classes of readers."—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF

An Attic Philosopher in Paris:

OR, A PEEP AT THE WORLD FROM A GARRET. Being the Journal of a Happy Man. By EMILE SOUVESTRE. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

The great popularity of "An Attic Philosopher in Paris," by Emile Souvestre, has led the publishers to prepare this fine illustrated edition, uniform with the illustrated edition of "Colette." For this volume a large number of full-page and vignette illustrations have been made by the French artist Jean Claude, the illustrator of "Colette." A rich binding has been specially designed, and this volume, considering the fine literary quality of the text and the distinctness of the book's appearance, will, it is believed, prove one of the most popular of the autumn books.

In Gold and Silver.

By GEORGE H. ELLWANGER, author of "The Story of My House," "The Garden's Story," etc. With many illustrations. 16mo, cloth, $2.00. Also, limited edition de luxe, on Japanese vellum, $5.00.

In this volume the author carries the reader from the Orient to the out-door life of our own country, of which he is so competent to speak. "In Gold and Silver" has been magnificently illustrated by two of the foremost American artists, W. Hamilton Gibson and A. B. Wenzell, who have furnished full-page drawings, vignettes and initials; while there are several pen-and-ink drawings of Oriental articles by W. C. Greenough, and there is a specially designed title-page and cover by H. B. Sherwin.

Abraham Lincoln: The True Story of a Great Life.

By WILLIAM H. HERNDON and JESSE W. WEIK. With numerous illustrations. New and revised edition, with an introduction by Horace White. In two volumes. 12mo, cloth, $3.00.

This is probably the most intimate life of Lincoln ever written. The book, by Lincoln's law partner, William H. Herndon, and his friend Jesse W. Weik, shows us Lincoln the man. It is a true picture of his surroundings and influences and acts. It is not an attempt to construct a political history, with Lincoln often in the background, nor is it an effort to apotheosize the American who stands first in our history next to Washington. The writers knew Lincoln intimately. Their book is the result of unreserved association. There is no attempt to portray the man as other than he really was, and on this account their frank testimony must be accepted, and their biography must take permanent rank as the best and most illuminating study of Lincoln's character and personality.

NEW ONE-VOLUME EDITION OF

An Englishman in Paris.

Notes and Recollections. Two volumes in one. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

"The reader of these volumes will not marvel more at the unflinching interest of each page than at the extraordinary collection of eminent persons whom the author all his life knew intimately and met frequently. . . . He knew them as no other Englishman could have known them, and he writes about them with a charm that has all the attraction of the most pleasing conversation."—New York Times.

Great Commander Series.

Admiral Farragut. By Captain A. T. MARIAN, U. S. N., author of "The Gulf and Inland Waters," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Zachary Taylor. By Major-General O. O. HOWARD, U. S. N. 12mo.

These are the first two books in "The Great Commander Series," edited by Gen. James Grant Wilson. A series designed to satisfy a popular demand for a series of convenient, readable, popular, but authoritative biographies of illustrious American leaders on land and sea. Each volume includes a steel-plate portrait of the subject as a frontispiece, and several maps.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

IMPORTANT NEW FICTION.

From Dusk to Dawn.

By KATHARINE P. WOODS, author of "Metzerott, Shoemaker." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

This book is an original one, like its predecessor, in that it follows none of the beaten paths of fiction, and it raises questions of vital interest, and addresses itself to the reader's thought instead of merely tickling his fancy. The influence of one human being over another is a subject of curious analysis, as well as the relation of the individual to the community, a subject, with its varied amplifications, which is of the first moment to-day. There is a story, a romance, which will interest novel-readers, but the book will hold the attention of those for whom the average novel has little charm.

God's Fool.

By MAARTEN MAARTENS, author of "The Sin of Joost Avelingh." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

In the opinion of competent critics, "God's Fool," the new novel by Maarten Maartens, represents the finest development thus far of the author's powers, and its appearance in book form will enlist general attention. There can be no question regarding the high appreciation of Maarten Maartens' work by American and English readers.

SECOND EDITION OF On the Plantation.

By JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, author of "Uncle Remus." With 28 illustrations by E. W. Kemble, and portrait of the author. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"Those who never tire of Uncle Remus and his stories—with whom we would be accounted—will delight in Joe Maxwell and his exploits."—London Saturday Review.

THIRD EDITION OF The Faith Doctor.

By EDWARD EGGLESTON, author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," "The Circuit Rider," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"One of the novels of the decade."—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

"It is extremely fortunate that the fine subject indicated in the title should have fallen into such competent hands."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Much skill is shown by the author in making these 'fads' the basis of a novel of great interest. . . . One who tries to keep in the current of good novel-reading must certainly find time to read 'The Faith Doctor.'"—Buffalo Commercial.

Charles Darwin:

His Life Told in an Autobiographical Chapter, and in Selections from His Letters. By his son, FRANCIS DARWIN, F.R.S., Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge. With portrait. 12mo, cloth.

NEW DARLEY EDITION OF ### James Fenimore Cooper's Works.

Complete in 33 volumes. With 64 illustrations by F. O. C. Darley. Crown 8vo, cloth, $48.00.

NEW LIBRARY EDITION OF

The Poetical Works of William Cullen Bryant.

With 100 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

NEW JUVENILE BOOKS.

The Battle of New York.

By WILLIAM O. STODDARD, author of "Little Smoke," "Crowded Out o' Crofield," etc. With 11 illustrations and colored frontispiece. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This popular author presents an extraordinary page of our history, which is unfamiliar to readers of the younger generation. He tells what two boys saw and experienced during the great draft riots in New York. Side by side with these scenes there are some vivid descriptions of a boy's adventures at the battle of Gettysburg.

Englishman's Haven.

By W. J. GORDON, author of "The Captain-General," etc. With 8 full-page illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The romantic story of a boy's adventures among the Indians and French of Cape Breton, and his exploits when the Americans, and afterward the English, captured the stronghold of Louisbourg. A thrilling tale of our colonial times.

Along the Florida Reef.

By CHARLES F. HOLDER, joint author of "Elements of Zoölogy," etc. With numerous illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A story of camping and fishing adventures in company with a naturalist in Florida. The author combines entertainment and instruction, and his book is filled with illustrations which will be prized by every young reader who has ever visited the seashore, or cares for information regarding fishes, shells and the various forms of marine life.

In the Boyhood of Lincoln.

A Tale of the Tunker Schoolmaster and the Times of Black Hawk. By HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH, author of "The Zigzag Books," "The Log School-House on the Columbia," etc. With many illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Mr. Butterworth describes the boyhood of Abraham Lincoln, and the strange life of the early days in the middle West. No boy or girl who wishes to understand the earlier life of one of the greatest of Americans can ignore this book—a romance founded upon fact.

Hermine's Triumphs.

A Story for Girls and Boys. By MADAME COLOMB. With 112 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

The popularity of this charming story of French home-life, which has passed through many editions in Paris, has been earned by the sustained interest of the narrative, the sympathetic presentation of character and the wholesomeness of the lessons which are suggested. One of the most delightful book for girls published in recent years. It is bound uniformly with the illustrated edition of "Colette."

YOUNG HEROES OF OUR NAVY.

Little Jarvis.

Midshipman Paulding.

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL. Illustrated by J. O. Davidson and George Wharton Edwards. 8vo, with specially designed cover, $1.00 each.

Christmas Greeting.

CHRISTMAS, the first and greatest of all festivals to the Christian world, is here once more. Faster and faster flies the time between the Christmas-tides, which year by year approach us more fraught with holy memories, more full of appeal for joy and gladness and love towards all the world. On that day the most learned and the most lowly, the poor and the rich, young people and old, join heartily in keeping a Christmas Day that is synonymous with thankfulness and good-will in the great human family.

Giving is the natural and primitive expression of kind feeling, and Christmas has become the great donation festival of the year. Already all the world is asking :

From an "Attic Philosopher in Paris." (Copyright, 1892, by D. Appleton & Co.)

"What shall I give my friend?"

Once more THE CHRISTMAS BOOK-SHELF stands ready, loaded to its utmost capacity with the volumes of artistic beauty and intrinsic literary value the publishers have provided for friends to bestow upon each other in 1892. In giving books no one need go beyond his means, the great danger that threatens the continuance of the desirable custom of celebrating Christmas as a gift season. This has been pointed out to us in the last talk from the dear old "Easy Chair," whose final words were "A Plea for Christmas."

The mission of books is to develop characters and souls, and no other gift that can be offered affords such rare opportunity to show our own delicacy of feeling, personal taste, and sympathetic understanding of the best and noblest in our friends. As Christmas comes and goes again, let our bookshelves bear permanent witness to the growth of our riches in books and in culture. It is one of the pleasant features of gift-giving and gift-taking, to increase a wealth which is real and abiding. Our books are milestones of our lives.

Among the new books this year are specially noticeable fine editions of the authors we have loved all our lives. What better can be given both to those who already know these works by heart, and to those who as yet know of them only and are just ripening for the enjoyment of their immortal beauty and help? With a sense of personal bereavement we notice the works of George William Curtis, Whittier and Tennyson among these long-loved books, but with a grateful rejoicing that these writers of perfect verse and perfect prose had truly finished the work it was in them to accomplish. More almost than all other writers of the English tongue they have taught right living and right thinking, and encouraged us to make this beautiful world a home of peace and love throughout the year as well as at the Christmas-tide

A Merry Christmas to the readers of the land!

Old Italian Masters

THE exquisite engravings from paintings by the old Italian masters which the famous American wood-engraver, Timothy Cole, has been contributing to the Century Magazine for several years past, have at length been collected in book form and are now issued by the Century Co. for the holiday season in a handsome volume with the title "Old Italian Masters." The instructive and valuable text is by W. J. Stillman, the well-known art critic and correspondent of the London Times in Rome. Mr. Cole contributes sixty-seven full-page engravings from paintings and frescoes by Michelangelo, Titian, Raphael, Andrea del Sarto and a score of other old masters, and furnishes also brief but interesting comment on the paintings reproduced. Each engraving in this collection has been cut by the engraver in the presence of the original, Mr. Cole's method being to photograph the painting upon the block, and then to engrave it in the gallery before the picture itself, the result being the most beautiful reproduction of old art treasure ever before given to the connoisseur and the student. The transcendent merits of the paintings identified with the glorious period of the Italian Renaissance have never before been so perfectly illustrated as in this volume. The revulsion from the so-called naturalistic school of art brought about in the fourteenth century an ideal conception of beauty deeply invested with the religious passion characteristic of the phase of Italian development known as the Renaissance, or re-awakening, the visible expression of which was seen in the best works of the greatest painters and sculptors. If the truest art is, as we believe, "the expression of all the spiritual faculties of man, passion for beauty, aspiration of the imagination, the manifestation of the individual in his inmost nature," then we have in these examples the most valuable and inspiring studies ever gathered together under one cover. In his interesting preface Mr. Stillman says that "the work is an educational measure of the highest significance to those who desire to study art in its purest manifestations;" and further,

"that no existing reproduction of any art of the same importance can be compared with it."

Professor Charles Eliot Norton, the eminent art critic, says: "Nothing that has yet been done by the American engravers on wood—who, during the last few years, have carried their art to the highest excellence in reproducing the characteristic qualities of the work which they have had to copy—has surpassed in exactness of delineation, in refinement and vigor of execution, and in sympathetic rendering of the subtlest features of the original, these remarkable productions of Mr. Cole. The variety of the technical methods of which he shows himself master has enabled him to reproduce with equal success work as widely different in motive and style as the mosaics of Ravenna and the panel paintings of the Florentine artists of the fourteenth century.

"No engravings hitherto existing of the works of early Italian art give so much of the essential spirit as well as of the manner of painting of these works as this series of Mr. Cole's. It is, therefore, invaluable to the student or the lover of the art of a period when the poetic genius of Italy was inspired with the first flush of conscious power, and was endeavoring to express itself in forms of beauty which it was not yet able completely to realize, but which, in their very simplicity and imperfection, often possess a charm beyond that of the more complete performances of a later and more sophisticated age."

The work is printed in the best style of the De Vinne Press, the page being an entirely new one and of larger type than that of the Century. It is handsomely bound in cloth, with design in gold stamped on cover.

A limited edition of 125 sets of a portfolio of proofs, taken by hand on Japan paper and signed by the proof-printer and by Mr. Cole, is issued at $175.00 each. Accompanying the portfolio is a copy of the book containing Mr. Stillman's text printed on Holland paper in an edition limited to 125 copies. Altogether an exquisite art treasure for the rich and fortunate.

The Life of Michelangelo Buonarroti.

MANY lives have been written of the great sculptor, painter, architect and poet, but the new life by John Addington Symonds is, without doubt, destined, on account of the new information it embodies, to supersede them all. Mr. Symonds was not only unusually equipped for his task through his long and painstaking studies of the Italian Renaissance, but he was unexceptionally fortunate in having placed at his disposal a voluminous correspondence and a great mass of undigested papers never before permitted inspection by the public, which cast new light, not only on Michelangelo's personality, his habits and domestic life, but upon his relations with several persons which had been made erroneously the basis of scandalous stories. The large collection of manuscripts preserved in the Casa Buonarroti, in Florence, consisting of authentic contracts, of letters, poems and memoranda, mostly in Michelangelo's own hand, was the most important source of new information. Until the middle of the present century these papers were rarely inspected by the curious, and never used by a professed biographer. In 1858 the Commendatore Cosimo Buonarroti, bequeathed them, together with the house containing them and its collection of art treasures, to the City of Florence; his will, strangely enough, prohibiting access to the manuscripts, and refusing the right to divulge their contents even to the learned. By special favor, however, of the Italian Government, Mr. Symonds was allowed to examine the Archivio Buonarroti and to make copies of documents. The results of his researches appear in this work, which is richly supplied with notes, and also contains a number of hitherto unedited letters printed at its close. Many points of considerable interest are cleared up, especially regarding Michelangelo's peculiar temperament and his relations with the Marchioness of Pescara and Tommaso Cavallieri. Michelangelo's eccentricities it is shown were not evidences of neurotic disorder, but sprang from the nervous exaltation of a man of extraordinary genius, and that his feeling for the lady, better known as Vittoria Colonna, early left a widow, and herself a poet of no mean order, was simply friendship, pure and beautiful, "based upon the sympathy of ardent and high-feeling natures." Aside from this valuable collection of documents, the author made use of the series of letters of Michelangelo purchased by the British Museum in 1859, the many biographies of his contemporaries and the notes preserved to us by his familiar personal friends. The result is a vivid and authentic picture of the great sculptor's personality such as no other writer has been able to present, and which is often painted by the artist's own hand, his letters being quoted continually through the narrative.

The value of this beautiful work, as now issued by Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons for the holiday season, can scarcely be over-estimated, either from an artistic and educational standpoint or from its interest purely as a biography. Michelangelo was a giant in art, even in the brilliant period of the Renaissance. His unique genius found utterance and achieved success in three different fields; "the creator of the Sistine, the sculptor of the Medicean tombs, the architect of the cupola" has no equal in power and originality in the history of art in any country, and probably never will have. Next to visiting Florence, Rome and Paris, the fortunate possessors of many evidences of his greatness, and studying the originals, is to be counted the pleasure of examining the remarkably beautiful reproductions embraced in the present work. It contains in all an etched portrait and fifty reproductions of the works of the master. The portrait of Michelangelo was etched by Ben. Damman, of Paris, from an oil painting in the possession of the Earl of Wemyss, which is probably one of the contemporary easel-pictures made of the artist.

Among the many exquisite copies of his works in marble are the bas-relief of the Centaurs, the statue of St. John, the Madonna and Child, a group from "The Last Judgment," and his masterpieces of Victory and David; drawings of his designs for the tombs of the Medici, in many stages of unfinish, and a plan showing the scheme of the frescoes of the Sistine Chapel, and sections illustrating the construction of the dome of St. Peter's, are full of interest, as are also the Leone Leoni wax medallion profile portrait, and the bronze bust by Daniele da Volterra, never before reproduced. To the art student the work is rich in suggestion in the line of figure study. Michelangelo's marvellous knowledge of the anatomical development of the human form, and his extraordinary facility in the power of execution only find their equals in classic Greek and Roman art.

The two volumes are finely bound in two shades of green cloth, the front cover being adorned with the coat of arms of the Buonarroti Simoni, the Florentine family of ancient burgher nobility to which Michelangelo belonged. They are printed from large type, on heavy paper, with broad margins and uncut edges.

The Conquest of Granada.

A PROLONGED residence in the south of Spain gave Washington Irving materials for two highly picturesque books—"The Alhambra" and "The Conquest of Granada"—the latter professedly derived from the mss. of an imaginary Fray Antonio Agapida. The fictitious and romantic dress of his work enabled Irving to make these books the medium for reflecting more vividly the floating opinions and fancies of the age, and also to illuminate the picture with a dramatic brilliancy of coloring denied to sober history. But the careful reader will always be surprised how little he was diverted from historic accuracy by the poetical aspect of his subject. At the time of its publication "The Conquest of Granada" shed much new light on the interior organization and intellectual culture of the Spanish nation. The historian Prescott, in his own great work on Spain, "The History of Ferdinand and Isabella," has penned this commendation of Irving's work: "Mr. Irving's late publication, the 'Chronicles of the Conquest of Granada,' has superseded all further necessity for poetry, and, unfortunately for me, for history."

The conquest of Granada took place in the year 1487. The menaced invasion of the infidel powers of the East had awakened new ardor in the bosoms of all true Christian knights, and so zealously did they respond to the summons of their sovereigns to take the field with their forces, that an army of twenty thousand cavalry and fifty thousand foot, the flower of Spanish warriors, led by the bravest of Spanish cavaliers, thronged the renowned city of Cordova at the appointed time. On the night before this mighty host set forth upon its march an earthquake shook the city, which many thought an omen of impending evil, but Fray Antonio Agapida read in it a presage that the empire of the Moors was about to be shaken to its centre.

Irving finished his wonderful account of this great campaign in 1829, and he was already so famous as an author that the great English publisher, Murray, did not hesitate to give him £2000 for the manuscript. It is interesting to note that Irving was at work on his "Life of Columbus," and searching for traces of the early life of the great discoverer who is about to be honored in a World's Fair of mammoth proportions, when he came upon the material that gave him the idea of his "Conquest of Granada."

Last year Messrs. Putnam's Sons brought out the Darro edition of "The Alhambra," which met with great appreciation, and this year "The Conquest of Granada" has been put into an edition of the same size and shape, which has received the name of the Agapida edition. The illustrations, border designs, text and cover decorations, and colors used in the borders and decorations, are entirely new. Each page is surrounded by a Moorish border, printed in red and gray, the designs copied from Moorish architectural decorations; thirty photogravures made from photographs, many of which were taken from this edition, adequately illustrate Irving's poetic word-painting; and there are also characteristic head and tail pieces. Mr. R. H. Lawrence has written an introductory note for this edition, and has also furnished many of the photographs of historic sites mentioned in the narrative. The work is of peculiar value even to-day to the traveller through romantic Spain. In this year, when so much attention has been given to the reign and possessions of Ferdinand and Isabella, this publication seems specially appropriate. A careful reading of Irving's work makes very clear the peculiar difficulties of his day and generation against which Columbus had to contend. The king and queen had little time to bestow upon the visionary schemes of a penniless enthusiast, confronted as they were on every side by the increasing dangers of strife within their kingdom and coffers emptied by endless wars and the support of an all-exacting church.

The publishers may again feel sure they have published a book that will be among the most beautiful and most salable of the Christmas publications of the season.

Genoa the Superb.

GENOA "the Superb"—the birthplace of Columbus; the beautiful and matchless "Queen of the Mediterranean," rising from the brink of a harbor crowded with shipping to the crest of encircling hills blooming with gardens and vineyards; the city of villas and cathedrals, of palaces and feudal towers; of balconies and terraces gay with violets, hyacinths, gladiolas and the red orchid in a day-dream of color that indicates a perpetual summer; Genoa, of which Petrarch wrote in the fourteenth century vivid and graceful words that even in this unimaginative nineteenth century do not seem too warm; Genoa, in fact, the most prosperous city in Italy, and invested just now with a special patriotic interest to all good Americans, is the theme with which Virginia W. Johnson has filled a handsome volume of nearly three hundred pages. Messrs. Estes & Lauriat offer it as one of their most important holiday volumes and one of timely interest. It is gotten up in uniform style with "The Lily of the Arno," written by the same author, and which met with such marked success last year. The many photogravures which adorn it are taken from photographs of prominent and famous places and scenes and are remarkably well reproduced. The binding is white with delicate designs in blue and gold, stamped with the Genoese coat-of-arms, and protected by a scarlet slip cover in the Italian style. Foremost among the many magnificent monuments with which Genoa abounds is one of recent years, raised to Columbus by Charles Albert of Savoy, in response to the enthusiasm of Pope Pius IX. It rises on the Piazza Acquaverde like a shaft of snow. The great navigator stands supported by an anchor with America kneeling at his feet. Religion, Wisdom, Strength and Geography in allegorical symbolism are grouped below him, with the prows of ships. Italy, with her ancient civilization, her wonderful history extending back through many centuries, her treasures of art and science, seems very near to us in the cradle of Columbus. Walking the streets of Genoa, the young Columbus becomes a living figure, full of thought and noble aspiration, with eyes turned to the New World. History, legend and biography, with descriptions of scenery, pictures and sculpture, are all to be found within this work, presented with the vivid power of one who has made of Genoa a thorough study.

Parkman's "Oregon Trail."

MAHTO TATONKA.

ON the 28th of April, 1846, Francis Parkman and Quincy Adams Shaw left St. Louis—then the "jumping-off place" of Western-bound travellers—on a tour of curiosity and amusement to the Rocky Mountains. Both were youths fresh from college, eager for adventure, and one at least was inspired by a high purpose; for this trip, so Mr. Parkman tells us, was intended in a great measure to prepare him for "a literary undertaking of which the plan was already formed." That undertaking was the noble series of historical narratives which have made his name honored throughout America, and which are founded on the knowledge of the Northwest gained at first hand during this journey over the Oregon Trail. He "was eager for observation, and willing to pay dearly for the opportunity of exercising it." And pay he did; for the partial blindness under which he has labored for so many years is due to the unaccustomed hardships of that Western journey. For months he lived with Indians, trappers and traders, galloped over prairies black with buffalo, passed long lines of white-capped wagons rolling toward the Pacific, slept in rude tepees, heard the war-whoop, smoked the pipe of peace, and learned to know the fascination of the savage life of the plains in days when the "Wild West" was no myth, and when the traveller beyond the Mississippi carried his scalp in his hand.

In 1847 the record of his experiences was given to the world. The fidelity, graphic power and descriptive charm of the book brought it instant appreciation; since that time numerous editions have been issued, and now, in fitting recognition of its lasting popularity, Messrs. Little, Brown & Co. have brought it out in a form that gratifies the taste of every lover of good books. The man who of all American artists is best fitted to depict the scenes of which it tells has been chosen for the work.

Frederic Remington is known as one of the most characteristic of American illustrators. He knew the prairies and the mountains before civilization had staled their "infinite variety," and his pictures are as full of truth as of spirit. They exhale the breath of the plains and give the one touch needful to Mr. Parkman's text. The book is brimming over with his spirited drawings. There are full-page pictures showing emigrants en route, Indian war and hunting parties, trappers, traders, aborigines in war-paint and feathers, trading-posts and their motley frequenters, plains of slow-moving, shaggy buffalo, mountain vistas, frontier settlements, and Indian villages with their dusky denizens, while scattered through the text are vignettes of Indian heads, faces of characteristic frontier types, mounted warriors, the ubiquitous male, and the ungainly figure of the buffalo.

The setting of the volume is in every way worthy of its contents. Printed from handsome type on fine paper, with amply margined pages, and bound in pale brown leather appropriately decorated with Indian "totems," it is one of the handsomest holiday books of the year. To read "The Oregon Trail" once more under these conditions is to experience a fresh and lasting pleasure. For it deals with a phase of American life that is gone forever. "The Wild West is tamed and its savage charms are withered," and for that very reason this graphic chronicle of the picturesque existence of the plains is full of fascination for readers to whom a buffalo is about as real as a dodo, and whose ideas of Indians are confined to the slouching, ragged, degraded outcast of the reservations, or to the clothed and commonplace students of Carlisle. Mr. Parkman has contributed an interesting preface, in which he points out the metamorphosis that forty years have wrought in the Far West. "For Indian tepees, with their trophies of bow, lance, shield and dangling scalp-lock, we have towns and cities, resorts of health and pleasure-seekers, with an agreeable society, Paris fashions, the magazines, the latest poem and the last new novel. The sons of civilization, drawn by the fascinations of a fresher and bolder life, thronged to the Western wilds in multitudes which blighted the charm that had lured them. The slow cavalcade of horsemen armed to the teeth has disappeared before pailor cars and the effeminate comforts of modern travel." But between the lines of his preface we can read that the traveller over the Oregon Trail feels regret for the freedom and perils of the "old order," so wholly supplanted by the conventionality, safety and business spirit of the new.

Three Normandy Inns.

THE "Three Normandy Inns," celebrated in Anna Bowman Dodd's delightful descriptions of parts of the French coast little frequented, are the Hôtel-Sur-Mer at Villerville, the famous inn of Guillaume le Conquerant at Dives, and the inn of Madame Poulard, as noted for its omelettes as for the brilliant Southern beauty of its bewitching proprietress, on the rocky soil of world-renowned Mont Saint Michael. From one to the other of those fascinating old-world hostelries the gifted author of "Cathedral Days" and her pretty blond companion, introduced only as "Charm," travelled in search of novel sights and new sensations. That they could only be American or English women the Norman peasant decided emphatically. No other nationality in his experience produced in feminine guise so much enterprise and daring.

Mrs. Dodd's studies of the manners and customs of the Norman people and their simple, ingenuous characters began at Villerville. Her ready sympathy and admiration easily won the hearts of the Villerville fisherman, the pathos and romance of their lives being eagerly laid bare to her gaze. In a graceful and often brilliant style, and with a gentle humor, she tells the many tales of love and heroisms that were acted before her.

The picturesque people and the equally picturesque scenery are depicted with the feeling of a sincere artistic nature. We are offered a succession of genre pictures rich in color and character that possess an idyllic charm. No phase of nature is unseen or unrecorded. The ocean, the sky, the forests, fields and flowers speak to us with a fervor born of the writer's enthusiasm. The historic associations of this old province of Normandy are perfect wells of romance. The inn at Dives, once the resting-place, some two hundred years ago, of the ladies of the French court—Madame de Kerman, the Duchesse de Chaulnas, and Madame de Sévigné—while on an unusually enterprising tour for those days through provincial France, is made to echo again through the magic of Mrs. Dodd's art with the sounds of silvery laughter and witty badinage, the frou-frou of silken skirts and the clatter of high-heeled slippers. In the Chambre des Mar- moussets, restored to its seventeenth century aspect by the cultured owner of the inn, we enjoy a delightful dinner where these three charming women lay aside their velvet masks, and discourse brilliantly and unrestrainedly upon the court gossip, and upon contemporaneous life. Delightful dinners, by the way, are as frequent as in the pages of Dickens and Thackeray. At the very portal of the inn we are met with the odors of exquisite cooking, which cling to the memory quite as pertinaciously as the descriptions of artistic hall and doorway, and which awaken a keen desire in the materialistic reader, to some day not very distant, duplicate Mrs. Dodd's unique summer experience. Mont

St. Michael, with its pilgrim shrine of La Merveille, which had been not only a convent but a castle and fortress, and upon whose rocky foundations the Inn of the Omelettes and Madame Poulard formed no insignificant features, is the central motive of innumerable legends, romances and historical episodes, dating back to the Crusaders and the Middle Ages.

A VILLAGE STREET—VILLERVILLE.

From "Three Normandy Inns." (Copyright, 1892, by Lovell, Coryell & Co.)

Lovell, Coryell & Co. offer this charming narrative in a new and artistic edition for the holiday season, which is a beautiful specimen of book making. The text is printed in black ink on extra heavy super-finished paper, while the twenty-four full-page illustrations by C. S. Reinhan and other artists of note, reproducing the scenes made familiar by the cycle, are printed separately on imperial Japanese paper, in tints of sepia, ultramarine, purple, dark green and olive.

The superb binding of white vellum, illuminated in gold and color, is preserved by a red slip cover in the Roman style. In text, and in mechanical details the work commends itself to all lovers of the beautiful.

The New England Country.

"THE New England country" must always be invested with a certain sentiment in the imagination of the least imaginative American. As the cradle of our liberties, the fountain-head of our literature, and as the stream from whose golden source the Western pioneer has gathered the rugged virtues that have blessed our new countries and added to our wealth and greatness, New England claims a place in the hearts even of those who are not the direct descendants of the Mayflower. She is our mother country as England was hers, and her loyal sons and daughters are found in every city and town of this great United States, under many names and nationalities and separated by time and space, but united by the one feeling of pride in the integrity, the intelligence and enterprise of their ancestor. "New England is not perfect," says Clifton Johnson, who is the author and illustrator of "The New England Country," "but once to have known is always to love it, no matter how far one wanders or how fair new regions open before one's eyes. Its changing seasons, its rugged hills and tumbling streams, its winding roadways, its villages and little farms, cling to the memory and sing siren songs of enticement. Nature is sometimes harsh, but she has many moods, and nowhere more than here; and if harsh sometimes, she is at other times exceeding sweet. In cold or heat, storm or sunshine, New England's rough fields are still the true Arcadia to her sons and daughters."

If each of her loyal sons and daughters would buy a copy of Clifton Johnson's charming volume, published for the holiday trade by Messrs. Lee & Shepard, the harvest would be rich indeed, and he or she would be the possessor of one of the most interesting and attractive souvenirs of the Christmas season, or indeed of any season.

There are four divisions to the work, variously entitled, "Old Times on a New England Farm," "The New England of To-Day," "New England as the Traveller Sees It," and "Camping Among the New England Hills." Each subject is dealt with warmly and enthusiastically, and the narrative is interspersed with facts gathered from personal observation. The illustrations, evidently made with the author's own kodak, are a most attractive feature. They appear in the greatest profusion—three and four on a page, sometimes—welded to the text, and materialize almost everything the text describes. As we are carried back in the first division to "the good old times," the illustrations have an antiquarian value, preserving as they do the surroundings of the simple domestic life of a bygone period. Among them are pictures of the old houses and old fireplaces of fifty years ago, representations of a foot-stove, canes and umbrellas, old fans and back-combs, farm tools, a loom, the flax-wheel, a river-boat before the days of railroads, reels, kitchen utensils and other familiar objects of home and farm life. Advancing in the volume we are treated to a most charming collection of soft, dreamy views of New England hills and valleys, forests and fields, and a succession of full-page pictures, twelve in all, presenting under the name of the twelve months as many phases of a New England year. The cover design, which is very tasteful, is also by Mr. Johnson.

Old Concord: Its Highways and Byways.

OLD Concord is a rich mine of history and tradition. Incorporated in 1635, it was the first settlement of New England off tide-water. The first Provincial Congress of Massachusetts assembled in its old church, October, 1774, and made the town the place of deposit for the attack under military orders upon the soldiers of the king began the war of the Revolution. Later this historic spot became the home of Emerson, Hawthorne, Thoreau and the Alcotts, father and daughter, and a great literary history was added to its patriotic record. In military stores of the colony. On the 19th of April, 1775, at the North Bridge, in an affair known as the Concord Fight, a body of American soldiers, organized under legal authority, advanced against the British troops who had been sent to seize those stores, received their fire, by command of their officers returned it, forced the enemy to retreat, and by this first

"Old Concord: Her Highways and Byways" all the sites made famous by soldiers and authors are lovingly described by Mrs. D. Lothrop under her well-known pseudonym of Margaret Sidney. A few years ago this delightful contribution to New England lore was published by Messrs. D. Lothrop Co., and was among the most successful books published by the house. Mrs. Lothrop has now revised all her matter and added almost a third more to the original book, and this year it is published as a memorial to her husband, Daniel Lothrop, the late head of the D. Lothrop Co. Mrs. Lothrop says the best way to see Old Concord is to take a low phaeton and an easy-going horse, and with a superb indifference to time, to start without the worry of choosing your road. It will take several days to "do" Concord in this manner; lazily driving here and there, interviewing the old residents, who, in the seclusion of their ancient homesteads, are delightful indeed, and most valuable in a search for authentic records. Acting upon this suggestion the author does not attempt to rewrite Concord's history nor estimate anew her literary life. She treats in a desultory way of some of the old town's unwritten spots and much that might escape the general sightseer. Mrs. Lothrop is herself the owner of the house celebrated in Hawthorne's "Mosses from an Old Manse."

Among the many new illustrations added to this new edition of "Old Concord" are many of the woodland nooks and dales made famous by Thoreau, and the Larch Walk, that beautiful avenue that sprang from little shoots brought from England and lovingly planted by Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne. Our sympathetic and enthusiastic guide also leads us to "The Wayside," of which the main part antedates all tradition and which was first owned by Bronson Alcott and afterwards sold to Hawthorne, who there wrote his "Tales of a Wayside Inn." Here lived the "Little Women," Meg, Beth and Amy—and made the little old house a cheery home indeed! Here Jo scribbled and Amy wrestled with her fine words; here was Beth's little cottage piano, and here Meg mothered them all when dear Mrs. March was called to nurse their soldier father. Here Professor Alcott gardened, held conversations, wrote his poems and originated the Alcott School of Philosophy.

Every foot of ground calls up memories, and with much taste, and all her old pretty knack at description, Mrs. Lothrop has made word-pictures for us of all the stories, houses, woods, roads, lakes and rills she loves so dearly. The publishers have done their part expertly also, and the book is a fitting offering to the memory of its energetic founder.

BOULEVARD DES ITALIENS.

The Great Streets of the World.

THERE must necessarily be something arbitrary in the selection of any series of "Great Streets of the World," and in the handsome volume published by Charles Scribner's Sons the world chosen from embraces only the United States and the continent of Europe; but the thoroughfares selected for description in this world are certainly representative. Properly the series leads off with Broadway, New York City, by far the longest of the noted streets; then follow Piccadilly, London; The Boulevards, Paris; Unter den Linden, Berlin; The Corso, Rome; the Grand Canal, Venice; and The Nevsky Prospekt, St. Petersburg. Richard Harding Davis points out that Broadway differs from almost every other great thoroughfare in the world by meaning so many different things to so many different people. He says: "The business man has his own idea of it, and it suggests something quite the contrary to his wife, and still another point of view to his son." Mr. Davis then proceeds to describe the business district, the shopping district and the promenade, and A. B. Frost has furnished many artistic and characteristic illustrations. Piccadilly gets justice at the hands of Andrew Lang, and W. Douglas Almond. Mr. Lang says: "It may be unjust to say that among the uncounted streets of London not one is beautiful. But it is plain, on a moment's reflection, that a beautiful street is less likely to exist in the monotonous expanses of London than in most other cities. There are few towns but have somewhere an outlook on nature, on the world beyond the walls. But London is so vast and lies so low that she has hardly a single glance at nature." Piccadilly, Mr. Lang thinks, the representative beautiful street of London. "Down and up the hill and dale of Piccadilly carriages glide, carts rattle, hansoms hurry, men and women walk to the park, or westward to Kensington and Brompton, or, in the eastward direction, to the clubs, to Pall Mall, the Strand, the City. Most of the pedestrians are sufficiently well-to-do; beggars do not much beset Piccadilly." The Boulevards, where Paris concentrates itself, are described by Francisque Sarcey, whose word-pictures are transferred to the opposite page by G. Jeannot, and the combination of talent of these two Frenchmen, who both love their Boulevards, makes them very fascinating, even to those who cannot judge how very correct the words and pictures are. The Corso is treated by W. W. Story and Ettore Tito; Unter den Linden by Paul Lindau and F. Stahl; the Grand Canal by Henry James and Alexander Zerkow, and the Nevsky Prospekt by Isabel F. Hapgood and Ilya Eginovitch Repin. All the writers and all the artists have been intent to show that the particular street entrusted to them for honor and praise has all the advantages of the others and a few little unmatched delights of its own, and the result makes a holiday book that appeals to all who have seen these great streets, and to all who have not, which ought to insure it a large constituency of purchasers. The pictures are crowded full of human beings, and whether they are American, English, French, German, Roman, Venetian or Russian, they all look as if they had been favored with a promenade on all the great streets, and that they are equally at home almost anywhere in all the world. In fact this impression seems specially notable in looking at the "Great Streets of the World," which are almost all destitute of homes, and the people that walk upon them most are people who have almost forgotten what was meant fifty years ago by the almost obsolete word—home.

In New York, in England, in Paris, in Berlin the interests of the inhabitants are cosmopolitan, perhaps to a less extent in Rome, Venice and St. Petersburg, but the great thoroughfares are filled with representatives of all other great thoroughfares, and the whole world seems bent upon making its streets great at the expense of home and family.

The publishers have done all that can be done to make this most interesting material outwardly attractive. Even the cover is original and very neat.

"Prue and I."

FOR the first time, George William Curtis' dainty prose idyl, "Prue and I," has been given a setting worthy of its graceful poetical text. It was selected in the early fall by the Messrs. Harper & Brothers as a desirable volume for illustration for the holiday season. While the volume is a beautiful specimen of bookmaking that will strongly tempt the Christmas buyer, it is called upon to fill a sad and unexpected office as a souvenir and remembrance of one of our most widely loved and admired literary men, the late editor of the Easy Chair in Harper's Magazine. "Prue and I" represents one of Mr. Curtis' earliest literary efforts, having appeared as a series of papers in Putnam's Magazine some forty years ago. Though belonging to a bygone time in life and literature the work possesses a rare charm. It impresses one with the same delightful sensation that comes to the busy city man when he seeks peace and quiet in the most charming haunts of nature. Albert Edward Sterner, the artist from whose drawings the illustrations for the new "Prue and I" were made, has worked in warm sympathy with the dreamy, leisurely, quaintly philosophical narrative. "Prue and I" stand only for the commonplace figure of an elderly bookkeeper, "who wears a white cravat and black trousers in the morning," and who in his daily homeward stroll around Washington Square and along Fifth Avenue "views the manners of the town," and for his faithful, loving wife, who is always found at the fireside, and who is the recipient of his dreams and fancies. Together they build many castles in Spain and travel in imagination various journeys of romantic interest. Of Prue he says: "For my part, I do not believe that any man can see softer skies than I see in Prue's eyes; nor hear sweeter music than I hear in Prue's voice; nor find a more heaven-lighted temple than I know Prue's mind to be. And when I wish to please myself with a lovely image of peace and contentment, I do not think of the plains of Sharon, nor of the valley of Enna, nor of Arcadia, nor of Claude's pictures; but feeling that the fairest fortune of my life is the right to be named with her, I whisper gently to myself, with a smile—for it seems as if my very heart smiled within me when I think of her—Prue and I." Mr. Sterner's designs artistically interpret all the little domestic and romantic pictures of Mr. Curtis' social idyl. They are one hundred in number, including a frontispiece in tints, and appear as full-page pictures, or set in the reading-matter in novel and attractive styles. A fac-simile of the author's manuscript of his introductory words, "To the Gentle Reader," is rich in interest, and is characteristically illustrated down the length of the page by a knot of ribbon, from which hangs an old-fashioned locket containing portraits of "Prue and I" in the days of their youth. The binding of illuminated silk in pale green is new and beautiful. For the rich and fortunate there is an elegant limited édition de luxe, bound in full vellum, in which the illustrations are printed in tints and the frontispiece is an etching signed by Mr. Sterner.

Some Dainty Books.

THE making of "dainty" books increases from year to year. There is a special charm in a small book when the type is good and readable.

"One courteous parting sign she made."

From Vignette ed. "The Lady of the Lake." (Copyright, 1892, by F. A. Stokes Co.)

To find one's pet author in such form that he may easily be carried in the pocket and become "a blessed companion" for the day, is truly delightful. When "golden clasps lock in the golden story," when the text has received an outward adornment in harmony with its dainty poetical texture, the joy of handling the volume is so exquisite to the book-lover that life seems to offer few greater pleasures. This year there is a long list of "dainty" books and in so many prices that every one's taste may be gratified. The "Oxford" miniature Shakespeare (Thomas Nelson & Sons) in six volumes, in size  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches x  $4\frac{1}{2}$  and only  $3\frac{1}{2}$  inches in thickness, is probably one of the most exquisite specimens of book-making ever produced. It is printed on the Oxford India paper, which is beautifully soft to the touch and of such opacity that the impression does not show through. The various rich and elegant bindings, in cases, locked and with out locks, covered to match the bindings, point this work out as an unusually desirable one for presentation. In line with this is the Ariel Shakespeare (G. P. Putnam's Sons). As with the former work the strongest superlatives seem weak in attempting to describe it. It is a little over an inch larger in height than the Oxford Shakespeare, and is printed on heavier paper, and each play is in a separate volume. As illustrations, the charming designs by Frank Howard, first published in 1833, five hundred in number, have been effectively reproduced, making a series of delicate outline plates. The additions to the artistic little Literary Gems Series (Putnam) are, "The Rivals," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, "L'Allegro" and other odes and sonnets of John Milton, Irving's "Rip Van Winkle," "Charity and Humor," by Thackeray, Gray's "Elegy" and Bryant's "Thanatopsis." This is the fourth series issued of these pretty books. The equally well-known Knickerbocker Nuggets Series (Putnam) also displays new issues, as "Deutsche Volkslieder," a selection from German folk songs printed in the original text, "The Wit and Wisdom of Charles Lamb" and "Whist Nuggets." A special holiday edition is in the market of two volumes of last year's Nuggets—"Love Poems of Three Centuries," compiled by Jessie F. O'Donnell. It has cast off the regulation blue and gold of the Nuggets, and appears in a very festive garb of white and gold, and is shown in a flat box. The Vignette Series (Stokes) includes so many important works culled from classical literature that its holiday issues are eagerly looked for. This year there are volumes entitled "Poems of Robert Browning," "Poems of Mrs. Browning," "Aurora Leigh" and "Lady of the Lake," all illustrated in half-tones after the drawings of Joseph M. Gleason, Frederick C. Gordon and other prominent artists. The Gems

WILLIAM MORRIS.

From "Tales from Ten Poets." (Copyright, 1892, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Series (Scribner) which we missed last year, has gathered this year into its embrace Dr. Holland's "Bitter-Sweet" and "Kathrina," each displaying, with many other new and attractive points, an etching by Otto Bucher. The unique binding, with a delicate cameo head on the front cover, will please the most fastidious.

Harrison S. Morris, who has for several years contributed to the enjoyment of Christmas book-buyers, is the author of a new work, "Tales from Ten Poets" (Lippincott), a dainty collection of three little volumes that possess unusual qualities of permanence and merit. Taking the chef-d'œuvres of ten of the most noted poets of the Victorian age, Mr. Morris has made of them charming prose narratives that are divested of the intricacies and complexities that characterize the poems, and which have often repelled the most ardent of the admirers of the poets. He has not been satisfied with simply giving an outline of the plot of the poem, but tells a delightful story as nearly as possible in the poet's language, which retains all the flavor and character of the original. The work is a new departure altogether, nothing like it excepting Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" having ever before been tried. That it will win a wide success when known seems among the strong probabilities. Those who read the stories will want very strongly to study the originals. The poets represented are Tennyson, Swinburne, Robert Browning, William Morris, Rossetti, Mrs. Browning, Matthew Arnold, Robert Buchanan, Lord Lytton and George Eliot. The ten portraits embraced in the dainty volumes (one of which we give as a specimen) add very much to their attractiveness. "Tales from the Dramatists," by Charles Morris (Lippincott), is a work somewhat similar in plan, being a series of entertaining stories taken from the leading plays of the most noted dramatic authors, from Ben Jonson to the present day. It is in four little illustrated volumes the same size as "Tales from Ten Poets," and deserves, as that series does, a place in all libraries.

New claimants for public favor in the way of small, well-made books are the Handy-Volume Classics (Crowell). Embraced under this title is a long line of standard works in prose and poetry, handy in size, well printed and having each a frontispiece in photogravure. The newest volumes are Burns' "Poems," "Lalla Rookh," by Thomas Moore, "Paul and Virginia" and Poe's "Poems." There are two editions of "Paul and Virginia" to choose from, both being equally pretty. The one coming from Estes & Lauriat is a sixteenmo, while the other is a twenty-fourmo—they both, however, are desirable and well illustrated. Uniform with the last-mentioned "Paul and Virginia" there is an edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield" (Estes & L.). Both books are modelled from those issued in French by the Paris publisher, Jouaust, who is known in Europe as the modern Elzevir. The dainty etchings in the little books are by the celebrated French artists Lalauze and Laguillermie, and the volumes are known as the Edition Jouaust.

Another publishing firm (Dodd, Mead & Co.) show a real specimen of the printing of the celebrated Imprimerie Jouaust in the "Memoirs of Madame De Staal-De Launay" (2 v.). The work was made in Paris and contains all the beautiful etchings of the French edition made by Lalauze. The witty writer must not be confused with the celebrated Madame De Staël—this "little De Staal," as Carlyle called her, was a maid of honor to the Duchesse du Maine, and writes with frankness and humor of the little French court at Sceaux. The manner in which the text is printed and the etchings are set in it is perfectly lovely; nothing rarer or more elegant than these little books is to be found. They are put up in parchment-paper covers and enclosed in a flat box. Thomson's beautiful poem, "The Seasons," one of the gems of English poetry, may be had in a new edition of four tiny volumes bound in delicate shades of India silk (Estes & L.).

Single volumes of the works of contemporary poets are plentiful. They make most satisfactory souvenirs at a very moderate price. In all that follow, a pretty binding, good paper and printing, and a handy size are distinguishing characteristics. The Laureate's last volume, "The Death of Ænone, Akbar's Dream, and other poems," of course, takes a leading place, his recent death investing it with a tender interest. It contains many fine lines, written with that perfect melody which characterizes all of Tennyson's verses (Macmillan). Lucy Larcom's "At the Beautiful Gate" (Houghton) is a memorial also, and of an American poetess recently passed away. The writer's lyrics of a specially serious and devotional character are gathered together here at the suggestion of many friends. A third commemorative volume of another whom death has recently claimed is found in Anne Reeve Aldrich's "Songs About Life, Love and Death" (Scribner). The songs are chiefly in a minor key and show great felicity of expression. The cover of this volume is especially pretty in white, pale-green and gold. "The Poems of Giosuè Carducci" represents the best work of the uncrowned poet-laureate of Italy. The poems have been translated by Frank Sewall, who binds in with them two of his own critical essays upon this modern Italian poet (Dodd, M. & Co.). "Love Songs of English Poets" (Appleton) is a treasury of English poetry of lovers of every mood and variety, culled by Ralph H. Caine. A charming anthology in the Golden Treasury Series is "Lyric Love," edited by William Watson (Macmillan). "Wordsworth's Grave, and other poems," by the same author, is shown in the delicate "orchid" binding of pink and purple, gold and white (Stokes). The "Complete Poems" of Philip Bourke Marston in one volume, with the sympathetic memoir by Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, the blind poet's literary executor, is an interesting literary event (Roberts). It is the only complete edition of Marston's poems published; with its interesting portrait, its satiny paper and uncut edges, and its rich cover in "crushed-strawberry" cloth and gold, it makes an ideal present. There is also a new and complete edition of Jean Ingelow's poems in two volumes, with a recent portrait, and an engraving of Miss Ingelow's home in Lincolnshire, which may be mentioned here (Roberts).

Illustrated Library Editions of Standard Works.

IN the many beautiful editions of standard works, the making of which is one of the pleasant and hopeful features of the present season, the strong and universal liking for fiction, which some one has said "meets an eternal taste in man," is distinctly manifested in the numerous reprints of the works of popular novelists. As the same person—the late James Freeman Clarke, we think, and an excellent authority—has said that "reading fiction is not an evil to be abated, but a tendency to be educated, purified and guided," there seems to be every reason why both "man" and woman should indulge to the full extent of their purses in the buying of some of the lovely, tempting "sets" in the market of his or her favorite writer, either with the object of adding to one's own book-shelves, or of bestowing an "eternal" pleasure upon a friend. Novels are not, however, the only standard works to which we shall call attention in this department, although they appear in the majority. Some important histories and poetical works have also found new and handsome setting.

Jane Austen's novels, which at no time entirely lost their popularity with the reading public, have taken a new lease of life and appear in two very attractive editions. We have Thackeray's endorsement of the talents of the vivacious Jane, if our own opinions need strengthening. He returned again and again to her stories of her own contemporary life, finding in her clever delineations of human nature and her wit and satire never-ceasing pleasure. The Roberts Bros.' edition of "Jane Austen's Novels" is in twelve volumes, and includes besides her well-known novels, "Sense and Sensibility," "Pride and Prejudice," "Mansfield Park," "Emma," "Northanger Abbey" and "Persuasion," a posthumous novel never before published, "Lady Susan," and "Letters of Jane Austen," selected by Sarah Chauncey Woolsey. Each volume is printed on superfine ivory paper, and has a charmingly graceful frontispiece in photogravure from designs by E. H. Garrett. There is an édition de luxe of the same work on larger paper, with uncut edges, of which only a limited edition has been published. The Macmillan & Co. edition of "Jane Austen's Novels" is in ten volumes and is restricted to the novels hitherto known, and does not include a memoir. They have been edited by Reginald Brimley Johnson, and are of the same size as the volumes of the first-mentioned edition, but being printed on thinner paper are of course smaller, that is less thick; they are, however, very pretty and dainty in their smooth cloth covers with their narrow page and miniature etchings which are full of character. Miss Katherine Prescott Wormeley's well-known translations of Balzac (Roberts) has received several additions through the year. "Pierrette" and "Albert Savarus" belong to the earlier part of the season. "The Chouans" and "Lost Illusions" are the more recent issues. This edition has become a classic. Neither Balzac nor his gifted translator require any setting forth of their merits with the intelligent.

The Dryburgh Edition of the Waverley Novels (Macmillan) promises to be one of the most popular of moderate-priced editions of Sir Walter Scott's works. "Waverley" is the only volume so far issued, the edition to be completed in twenty-five volumes. It is printed from new, clear and legible type, is characteristically illustrated from new designs and was prepared from Scott's last revision, collated with his original copy. In its wealth of notes, literary information and so on, the edition resembles the Dickens being printed by this same house (Macmillan). Though the paper of both editions is thin enough to bring one novel into a volume, it is very good and offers with its good type a very readable page. The Dickens possesses reproductions of all the original illustrations and copious literary introductions by Charles Dickens the younger, making it unusually valuable and interesting. The price of both these editions makes it possible for every household to have a Scott and a Dickens.

A new American edition of a favorite group of Anthony Trollope's novels, "The Chronicles of Barsetshire," to be known as the Cathedral

Edition, recommends itself to the younger generation. Trollope never sinned against good taste or morals, and is eminently fitted to be read in the family circle. These stories of "The Warden," "Barchester Towers," "Framley Parsonage," "Dr. Thorne," "The Small House at Allington" and the "Last Chronicles of Barset" all revolve around the scenes and personages of a cathedral town—Salisbury, perhaps—which had become so real to the author that it was his delight to go back again and again and write about it. Though the stories may be read separately they present over and over many of the same characters. A handy size, top gilt and uncut edges, and artistic photogravures from designs by C. R. Grant, are the chief points in the mechanical details of these thirteen handsome volumes. (Dodd, Mead & Co.) There is also a limited large-paper edition of this work as there is of Charles Reade's "Cloister and the Hearth" (Dodd, Mead & Co.), which appears in a new library edition of four volumes, with sixteen photogravure illustrations. Life at the end of the fourteenth century is admirably portrayed in "The Cloister and the Hearth," which Walter Besant pronounces Reade's "greatest work," adding, "and I believe the greatest historical novel in the language." "The Novels and Romances of Edward Bulwer-Lytton (Lord Lytton)," of which a new and elegant edition is being published, is one of the most interesting of literary events (Little, Brown & Co.). The new edition of the famous novelist will be comprised in forty volumes, closely approaching in beauty and handiness to the favorite Blackwood Edition. In general style they will resemble the "Romances of Alexander Dumas," gotten up by Little, Brown & Co., and so universally admired. Mr. Edmund H. Garrett, the distinguished artist, has contributed forty pictures to the edition, which are reproduced by etching and photogravure. A limited large-paper edition is printed upon the celebrated

Van Gelder hand-made paper, with the illustrations on imperial Japan paper. The new issues in the military novels of Charles Lever (Little, Brown & Co.) are "Arthur O'Leary," "Jack Hinton" (2 v.), and "Tom Burke of 'Ours,'" (2 v.). They all show numerous full-page etchings by George Cruikshank and "Phiz," amusing pictures of Irish barracks life, which fit well in the rollicking text of the most gifted of Irish novelists.

The famous novel of forty years ago, "The Initials," by the Baroness Tautphœus, is issued in a new two-volume edition, called The Hildengarde, after the charming heroine (G. P. Putnam's Sons). It will prove a rare treat to those who have not read it. It presents a delightful picture of domestic life in a professor's family in Munich many years ago. The new edition of luxe of James Matthew Barrie's "Little Minister" (2 v., Lovell, Coryell & Co.) and Dumas' "Count of Monte Cristo" (2 v., Lovell, Coryell & Co.) are superbly illustrated with etchings and printed in the finest manner. A new fine edition in English of Victor Hugo's works (Estes & Lauriat) is embraced in thirty volumes. The translations are new and by competent writers, and the illustrations, consisting of over two hundred superb etchings and photogravures, are by the foremost artists of France, including Leloir, Lalauze, Madeleine Lemaire and others equally noted. This edition is an event in book-making. A reissue of Herman Melville's works (United States Book Co.) directed attention to the capital stories of a writer in the zenith of his popularity forty years ago. His famous romances of the South Seas (4 v.) have been newly edited by Arthur Stedman. The centenary of the birth of the immortal Shelley is to be commemorated by an entirely new, complete edition of his poetical works, from the famous Riverside Press (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.). It is called the Centenary Edition, is in four volumes, has a new portrait of Shelley and an introductory memoir by George E. Woodberry, a hearty admirer of Shelley's genius. Charles Dudley Warner's "In the Levant" (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.), one of the author's best books, and a charming volume of travels in the East, is brought out in holiday style, with a new portrait of Mr. Warner, a new preface and twenty-five lovely full-page photogravures, decorative head-pieces and initials; the text beautifully printed from new plates. The book lends itself admirably to illustration, and will doubtless in its new form please many new readers.

The demand for new editions of Prescott's historical works seems unceasing. A new limited édition de luxe in twelve volumes (J. B. Lippincott Co.) ought to please the most critical. The edition contains all the steel plates on India paper and maps that have appeared in former editions, and about fifteen phototype illustrations to each volume, copied from photographs of cities, public edifices, and reproductions of paintings representing remarkable events narrated. The new edition printed from new plates of Agnes Strickland's "Queens of England" (J. B. Lippincott Co.) supplies a long-felt want in public and private libraries. It is reprinted from the author's latest revised edition, and contains illustrations that have never appeared in any other issue.

Some Illustrated Poems.

A NUMBER of illustrated poems are gathered together here as suitable for gift-books, which, from their size, scarcely come under the denomination of "dainty" books, though they have all the essentials that go to make up a beautiful book. A remarkably handsome volume in all its details is Mrs. Toland's "Atlina, the Queen of the Floating Isle" (Lippincott), a successor to equally handsome books, namely, "Legend Laymone," "Eudora," etc., of other years by the same author. In Plato's Atlantis, with its tropical splendor, its peace and prosperity, Mrs. Toland finds a theme well adapted to her own flowing and melodious verse. The artists whose drawings appear in many full-page photogravure reproductions seem to have entirely caught the spirit of the poem. The perfection of the printing, paper, binding, etc., of this volume is quite noteworthy. "The Fallow Field" (Lee & Shepard) Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr's beautiful poem, has been fully illustrated in charcoal by her daughter, Mrs. Zulma De Lacy Steele, and her sketches have been carefully reproduced by the half-tone process, the result being a very handsome and artistic gift-book. The volume contains in all about thirty full-page sketches and vignettes, and is about the size of "Summerland." No other artist has equalled Darley in reproducing pictorially the most characteristic features of Longfellow's world-famous poem, "Evangeline." The new Christmas edition of it (Houghton, M.) is charmingly illustrated with photogravure reproductions of sixteen designs by F. O. C. Darley, which retain all the strength and character of the originals. The book is of the same size as "The Scarlet Letter" with Darley's illustrations, recently published, and is a beautiful and interesting gift. The édition de luxe, with the photogravures on India paper, is a delight to the eye.

Several of Oliver Wendell Holmes' poems, among the most famous of those devoted to the Colonial and Revolutionary period, have been made into a gift-book, with the title, "Derothy Q." (Houghton, M.). "Dorothy Q.," the poem which gives title to the book, was addressed to the portrait of an ancestress of Dr. Holmes. The other poems are "The Ballad of the Boston Tea-Party" and "Grandmother's Story of Bunker Hill Battle." They have been arranged in chronological order and are illustrated with page pictures, decorative borders, and head and tail pieces by Howard Pyle. The period is a congenial one to Mr. Pyle, and one in which he is quite at home, hence the result is a most happy one from an artistic standpoint. Mrs. Henry Whitman has designed a characteristic stamp for the cover, which is quite elegant. Mr. Whittier's large circle of friends and admirers will heartily welcome the last collection of poems arranged by him. Its touching title, "At Sundown," and the fact of his recent death invest it with more than the usual amount of interest we have been in the habit of giving to the aged poet. "At Sundown" (Houghton, M.) contains the poems collected by Mr. Whittier since the publication of "Saint Gregory's Guest" in 1886, and some of these rank among the wisest and noblest of the many wise and noble poems he has written. The book is illustrated with a portrait and eight photogravures from designs by the popular artist, Edmund H. Garrett, and resembles in general style the illustrated edition of Whittier's "Snow-Bound," which met with very general favor. Wordsworth's "Poems" (Crowell), embracing the cream of Wordsworth's poetical effusions, selected by the late Matthew Arnold, is a very elegant volume, illustrated in photogravure by E. H. Garrett. The first illustrated edition of Mrs. Jackson's poems in a complete form is issued under the title, "Poems by Helen Jackson (H. H.)." It is printed from new type on English laid paper, and has designs by Emile Bayard, photogravured by Elson, vignettes by E. H. Garrett, and a new portrait. (Roberts.) An édition de luxe, with the illustrations on India paper, is truly delightful.

Other Holiday Gift-Books.

THE preceding pages describe and illustrate in detail several of the most notable holiday books. The following is a more complete descriptive summary, covering the general field, and noting the new books and some of the standards of the several publishers, who are arranged in alphabetical order. To them we are indebted for the many illustrations which adorn these pages and suggest more fully the books of the year.

HENRY ALTEMUS, Philadelphia, has made a special preparation for the holidays of a choice edition of "The Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe," embellished with 120 illustrations by Walter Paget, which is richly bound in extra fine English cloth with emblematic design in gold and inks, and of which they offer a special presentation edition in Persian levant morocco. The house also has a collection of standard and popular books carefully printed on fine extra laid paper, and bound in cloth in handy volume size, with various handsome cover designs stamped in gold and silver, and also in half-crushed levant, with untrimmed edges and genuine English calf. These include selections from Ruskin, Emerson, Goldsmith, Mrs. Gaskell, Drummond, Charles and Mary Lamb, Lubbock and many of the ancient classics. They also have new editions in holiday bindings of their ever-popular gift-books, Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," St. Pierre's "Paul and Virginia," and of the art-works with Doré illustrations, which are more appreciated each year. The name of this publisher is synonymous with "Family, Pulpit and Reference Bibles," always most appropriate Christmas gifts.

D. APPLETON & CO. have prepared another book of George H. Ellwanger's, entitled "In Gold and Silver," for their chief holiday publication this year, in which the author carries the reader from the Orient to the outdoor life of our own country, of which he is so competent to speak. "In Gold and Silver" has been magnificently illustrated by two of the foremost American artists, W. Hamilton Gibson and A. B. Wenzell, who have furnished full-page drawings, vignettes and initials, while there are several pen-and-ink drawings of Oriental articles by W. C. Greenough, and there is a specially designed title-page and cover by H. B. Sherwin. Altogether, this book may safely be called one of the best examples of fine book-making produced in recent years. There is a numbered édition de luxe, on Japanese vellum, limited to 200 copies. Scarcely less fine an example of handsome bookmaking is Souvestre's "An Attic Philosopher in Paris," that little treasury of thought illustrative of "my mind to me a kingdom is" which has almost become a classic in many tongues besides the original French. This little masterpiece of the reflections of a poor but happy clerk, arranged by the months of the year, has been illustrated by the French artist Jean Claude, the illustrator of "Colette," to which successful book this forms the companion volume. The vignettes heading the twelve months are original and pretty. The binding of dark red and gilt was specially designed for the book and shows the irregular roofs of the poorer quarters of Paris with artistic realism. Midway between holiday gift-books and juveniles stands the initial volume in the new series of the Delights of History, edited by Edward Eggleston, entitled "The Story of Columbus," written by Mrs. Elizabeth Eggleston Seelye, illustrated by her sister, Allegra Eggleston, and prefaced by their father, who has carefully verified the results of modern inquiry and art gathered by his daughters. The story of the great discoverer is condensed from many bulky volumes, and Miss Allegra Eggleston has hunted private and public galleries for the pictures she has reproduced in this worthy companion volume to Eggleston's "Household History of the United States." It is unnecessary to say more regarding the fitness of this new history for a place in every American private, public and school library. A very pretty gift for a lover of poetry and a believer in the universal passion that has inspired so much of the immortal verse of our language is "Love-Songs of English Poets," edited by Ralph Caine, who has carefully culled the rarest flowers from the rich fields of English poetry, which the publishers have preserved in a tasteful volume. Other volumes not to be forgotten are Herndon and Weik's "Abraham Lincoln," a new, revised and illustrated edition in two volumes of this true story of a great life, with an introduction by Horace White;

"Admiral Farragut," by A. T. Mahan, the first volume of the new Great Commander Series; "Warriors of the Crescent," by the late W. H. Davenport Adams, who has described the exploits of Mahmud the Tartar and the Great Moguls with vivid realism and romantic orientalism; and a new edition in one volume of that delightful record of the last days of the glory of Napoleon III., entitled "An Englishman in Paris."

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have a presentation edition de luxe of "Imago Christi: the example of Jesus Christ," by Rev. James Stalker, delicately printed with red lines and richly bound in padded leather, full calf, or turkey morocco, and no more appropriate gift could be found for some faithful Sunday-school worker. This book discusses Christ in the home, the state and the church, as a friend, a man of prayer, a student of Scripture, a worker, a sufferer, a philanthropist, a savior of souls, and the great influence of the world; and from its first appearance has been appreciated by many noted clergymen. For bibliophiles, if there are such among friends to receive Christmas keepsakes, the new volume of "The Bookworm," an illustrated treasury of old-time literature, or "Books in Chains," by William Blades, the new volume in the Book-Lover's Library, will go to a very tender spot in the constitution of a man subject to that special form of mania. The fifth volume in Perrot and Chiplez' "History of Art," dealing with art in Persia, Phrygia, Lydia, Caria and Lycia, would also make many an antiquarian joyful; and the library editions of standard authors of this house can be drawn upon in satisfying many tastes, as they include such authors as Poe, Lamb, Hallam, Mary Cowden Clark and many others whose books have influenced the best minds of their day.

ARNOLD & Co., Philadelphia, have put Mr. Rorer's excellent "Cook-Book" into neat holiday attire, and also into useful oil-cloth covers, and it may be specially mentioned as among the things sure to please a young wife, and in a pleasant and practical way encourage and qualify her to make all kinds of her husband's favorite dishes as well and economically as "my mother used to do."

BRENTANO'S, New York, have prepared some dainty souvenirs that appeal specially to singers. Their collective name is "Songs from the Operas," and it will be well to examine them all before deciding whether to buy "The Toreador" from "Carmen," "The Flower Song" and "The Spinning Song" from "Faust," or the "Swan Song," the "Bridal Chorus" and the "Love Duet" from "Lohengrin." These pretty books are illustrated profusely with designs printed in various colored inks from photographic cliques in fac-simile of Frank M. Gregory's original aquarelles, and supplied with English text by the skilful pen of John Kendrick Bangs. "The Magnificat," the grand canticle sung for evening service in the Episcopal Church throughout the world, and the stirring hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," are also published in the same style, with their music, and are ornamented by the same artist, who is a member of the Salmagundi Club. Any young mother will be delighted with "The Baby's Biography," provided with every kind of pretty pictures illustrating baby's pilgrimage through the unexplored country called babyhood, and all ready for the text, which is to be supplied from day to day by a doting mother, who registers baby's weight, the first tooth, its photographs, its first steps, its first spoken word, etc. The volume is planned by A. O. Kaplan and illustrated by Frances Brundage, and gotten up in festive style with a cover ornamented with a two-year-old almost floated away by a blue balloon. The Illustrated Library Edition of "Don Quixote," a Motteux translation has been brought out by arrangement with the English publishers. It is in four volumes and strictly limited to three hundred copies, which are sold by subscription. The illustrations consist of sixty-seven etchings specially prepared for this edition by Adolph Lalauze.

CHARLES E. BROWN & Co. have a special line of books of travel by noted authors, all of which, with the exception of Lady Brassey's "Voyage of the Sunbeam," are more strictly speaking for young people, and will be found separately dwelt upon in their department elsewhere. They have several illustrated gift-books of melody and song in silk-finish binding, made up of songs old and familiar, which sing their way deeper and deeper into our hearts every time we hear them. Taking a single song, such as "The Old Folks at Home," "I Wish I Was in Dixie's Land," "Old Uncle Ned," "Darling Nellie Gray," "Sally in Our Alley," "Black Eyed Susan," "Shandon Bells," "Blue Bells of Scotland" and "The Watch on the Rhine," they republish it in handsome book form with words and music in full, and with numerous full-page half-tone engravings illustrative of selections from the stanzas. The artists are G. W. Brennmann, F. M. Gregory and Joseph Lauber. The songs are put up in padded covers bound in white enamelled paper. Mrs. Parloa's "Appledore Cook-Book," and Ridpath's "History of the United States," in new, rich dress, would also be most acceptable to the right friend.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY have concentrated their energies chiefly on excellent works of fiction, of which they have added many to their already long list. The twelfth bound volume of "The Magazine of Art" is as beautiful and as full of good matter as ever. It contains about 500 illustrations, including original etchings, photogravures, litho and tint plates, pictures in colors and choice engravings from famous paintings and from drawings by the first artists of the day. The volume is unusually rich in timely and interesting papers by masters in their respective fields, while its "Monthly News," its specially illustrated articles on the "Art of the Day" and its "American Art Notes" are of peculiar value to all who desire the latest and most important information on these subjects. No handsomer or more welcome gift could be bestowed upon a professional or amateur artist. These publishers have also made ready a holiday edition of "The Fate of Fenella," the literary curiosity produced by Helen Mathers, Justin H. McCarthy, Frances Eleanor Trollope and twenty-one other well-known authors, who have each furnished a chapter for this novel of Harrowgate happenings, brought to a humorous close by F. Anstey Guthrie, in which twenty-eight full-page illustrations picture the trials, temptations and delights of English watering-place life.

THE CENTURY CO. have this year prepared from the wealth of material supplied by the Century Magazine two superb works of artistic and descriptive value. The chief of these, Timothy Cole's exquisite reproductions of the works of "The Old Italian Masters," is described at length elsewhere in this issue. The other is Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer's volume on "English Cathedrals." For several years past these brilliant papers on the beautiful cathedral churches of Great Britain, supplemented by Joseph Pennell's admirable illustrations, have delighted readers of the Century, and now, revised and somewhat augmented by the author, they are issued in a handsome octavo volume, with all the accessories of fine paper, broad margins and bold, clear type, to win a welcome from a wider circle of readers. For those who can indulge their taste in éditions de luxe, a limited edition of two hundred and fifty copies, registered by the De Vinne Press, printed from type on heavy paper, is issued in two volumes. Canterbury, Peterborough, Durham, Salisbury, Lichfield, Lincoln, Ely, Wells, Winchester, Gloucester, York and Durham are the cathedrals chosen, "partly because of their typical importance as buildings and partly because of the length and richness of their lives as cathedral buildings." To each is devoted a lengthy subdivided chapter of intelligent, historical and critical analysis, aided and extended by many admirably selected and beautifully executed illustrations, the whole forming a vivid panorama of the finest ecclesiastical architecture of England. Mrs. Van Rensselaer is well known as an appreciative and accurate writer on architecture. Mr. Pennell has won reputation as a forceful and gifted artist. Together they have produced a book not only "for those who love, rather than for those who want to study architecture," but for art-lovers, for book-lovers, and for that intelligent and discriminating person "the general reader." Besides his excellent work on "English Cathedrals" Mr. Pennell has supplied a bewildering array of charming sketches for Elizabeth Robins Pennell's pleasant account of "Play in Provence," a chatty chronicle of one of those haphazard journeyings in which the Pennells delight, reprinted from The Century. This time the cheery couple spent idyllic days in the "glad kingdom of Provence," where their small adventures, sight-seeing tours and experiences generally are described by Mrs. Pennell; and made more vivid by her husband's facile pencil, which has transferred to the pages of the little volume a thousand delightful bits of Provencal life and scenery. The book is prettily bound in pale brown linen, stamped in red, with design in darker brown. Frank Stockton's books are always welcomed by young and old, and a new edition of his most popular stories should meet with general approval. Such an edition has been published in five volumes, comprising "The Hundredth Man" in two volumes, "The Squirrel Inn," "The Merry Chanter," "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine" and "The Dusanter," the two latter being in one volume. They are issued in attractive form and in uniform binding, and sold at a low price. "The Chatelaine of la Trinité," by the author of "The Chevalier of Pensieri-Vani," with illustrations, makes a pretty gift, sure to please a friend who knows the literary "fads" of the day.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have made a very pretty boxed book of A. O. Kaplan's pretty poem, "The Magic Laugh," illustrated by Frank M. Gregory. It is the story of a dream, wherein the relator visits the Sun and is entertained by its controlling spirit, who, after discoursing on his mighty powers, bids his guest inquire for some great secret of nature not known upon earth. But before the visitor has formulated a request, his reverie is disturbed "by a cheery rippling, silvery laugh," which so charms him that he asks for the secret of its reproduction by chemical process. His request is granted and a delightful, cheery formula for happiness and laughter made out in the form of a doctor's recipe. The illustrations are weird and witty.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have made some very handsome books this year, chiefly neat editions of standard poets. Their leading volume, "Selections from Wordsworth's Poems," by Matthew Arnold, illustrated in photogravure by E. H. Garrett, is fully noticed under the heading Illustrated Poems elsewhere in this issue, and an entirely new line of standard books in prose and poetry collected as Handy Volume Classics is also noticed under the heading Dainty Books. Other series to which they call special attention are the Alhambra and Lahn Series, consisting of twenty-four volumes, 12mo size, comprising the best works of some of the most noted authors of poetry and prose, printed on fine calendered paper, and having photogravure frontispieces and title-pages printed by A. W. Elson & Co. from designs by Copeland, Garrett, Merrill and others, of which Victor Hugo's "Notre Dame" and "Robert Browning's Poems" are pretty specimens; the New Favorite Illustrated Edition of Popular Poets, twenty-seven volumes, with new artistic cover designs, put up in cloth slip covers, of which "The Cambridge Book of Poetry" and a complete edition of Wordsworth's poems, are handsome specimens; the Olive and Gold Edition of Poets, twenty-four volumes, of which we have seen Owen Meredith's "Lucile," delicately printed on laid paper, with padded embossed leather covers, and sold in a protecting box; the Mosaic Edition of Red Line Poets, forty-eight volumes, in unique leather bindings, of which "Robert Burns' Poems" is a pretty sample copy; the White and Gold Series of Religious Classics, nine volumes, in white cloth with full gilt ornamentation, of which the gem would seem to be Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress;" and the Imperial Edition of Standard Poets, twenty volumes, which lead off with "Milton's Poems," illustrated with eight full-page original illustrations and attractively bound in durable style, designed to meet the wants of those who hold their poets in their hands more than they keep them in glass-covered bookcases. Most acceptable gifts would be the two-volume editions of "Tennyson's Poems;" Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables," in Isabel Hapgood's translation; and a new edition of Walton's "Complete Angler." These publishers also have several pretty text-books and birthday souvenirs, of which the most important are "The Every Day of Life," by the Rev. J. R. Miller, hearty words of love designed to cheer those who are weary with daily cares and perplexities, and a new illustrated edition of "Daily Food," both put up in all kinds of dainty styles.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co., Boston, have again made ready their most successful Fleetwing Series, consisting of Dr. C. M. Newell's three fascinating sea novels, "The Voyage of the Fleetwing," "The Isle of Palms" and "The Vreck of the Greyhound," in which the author, who is an old-time whaleman, pictures adventures by sea in sunshine and storm with the accuracy in details of seamanship made possible by his long practical knowledge of the dangers and elights of life on the ocean wave. Dr. Newell is at work on a new book, a piece of news that will delight his admirers.

Mme. de Staal was once a maid to the Duchess du Maine, but soon became a favorite friend and guest of her ladyship, and was considered by so great an authority as Carlyle "one of the sharpest female heads and one of the shrewdest little souls in the world." DODD, MEAD & Co. have an edition of Anthony Trollope's most famous novels in thirteen volumes, which they have christened the Cathedral Edition of Trollope's "Barchester Towers series," and which is fully described elsewhere under the heading of Fine Editions of Standard Works. Austin Dobson's "The Ballad of Beau Brocade, and other poems," with upwards of fifty illustrations by Hugh Thomson, of which there is also a large-paper edition, makes a handsome book in its quiet elegance. Perhaps the most beautiful of all the handsome books prepared by this firm is "The Memoirs of Mme. de Staël-de Launay," translated from the French by Flora Hamilton Bell, illustrated with forty-one etchings by Ad. Lalauze, and brought out in two volumes, printed for the publishers at the celebrated Imprimerie-Jouaust in Paris, the issue limited to seventy copies on Japan and two hundred and fifty on Holland paper, of which two-thirds only have been allowed for America. Mme. de Staal was once a maid to the Duchess du Maine, but soon became a favorite friend and guest of her ladyship, and was considered by so great an authority as Carlyle "one of the sharpest female heads and one of the shrewdest little souls in the world." Another pretty work of French origin is "My Uncle and My Curé," by Jean de la Brète, translated by Ernest Redwood, embellished with thirty-four illustrations

Matthews and illustrated with photogravure portraits of Mrs. Kemble, Mrs. Siddons, Liston and the other famous actors mentioned in the essays; a volume of charming essays by Austin Dobson, who paints "Eighteenth Century Vignettes" of Sir Charles Grandison, Hogarth's Sigismunda, Prior's Kitty, An Old London Bookseller, and other worthies; and Charles Reade's "The Cloister and the Hearth" in four volumes, illustrated with sixteen photogravures. There are also large-paper editions of all these lovely books that are most threatening in their attitude toward the tenth commandment. Nor must we forget an acceptable edition of Sheridan's masterpiece, "The School for Scandal," which has been handsomely illustrated, and may be had in a plain form and in an édition de luxe.

WILLIAM DOXEY, San Francisco, has a very pretty gift in his dainty little volume of quotations entitled "Borrowings," which is issued in entirely new binding for the Christmas season. For friends of literary tastes, examine the volume of literary essays by the late Judge T. H. Rearden, entitled "Petrarch, and Other Essays," with decorations and designs for cover by Bruce Porter, which is also brought out in a large-paper edition on Van Gelder paper, limited to 150 copies. Three volumes of poetry are also ready: "The Sleeping Princess California," a poem by Alice Edwards Pratt, tastefully bound in white and gold; "At the Gates of Light," and other poems, by Mrs. Annie S. Page; and a new edition of "Jack and Jill," a charming love-story in verse by W. E. Brown, illustrated by Elizabeth Curtis, and artistically bound in white leatherette.

DUPRAT & Co., New York City, have just brought out "Romeo and Juliet" in their édition de grand luxe of the "Works of Shakespeare," of which "Anthony and Cleopatra" was the initial volume. It is issued with an introduction by Richard Henry Stoddard, and illustrated with twenty-one etchings by Louis Muller, after designs by Jacques Wagner, and five studies of Verona architecture of the 14th century, by Louis Titz, reproduced in color by Dujardin. The edition is in 8vo volume, printed by D. Jouaust, of Paris. There are 300 copies on Holland paper and 50 copies on Japanese paper with extra set of the full-page illustrations. A most coveted present for a friend possessed of bibliomania would be "Four Private Libraries" of New York, by Henri Pez du Bois, with preface by Octave Uzanne, and sixteen illustrations. The same friend would like "The Book-Lover's Almanac for 1893."

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have books that are among the very prettiest that reach the Christmas counters. The details of manufacture are perfectly carried out by Nister, the German artist-printer, who has done such good work for this house in years past. Many of the ideas and pictures may be traced to native talent, but the execution is chiefly entrusted to foreign skill. The combination of experts produces results that lead to covetousness. The leading holiday book this year is "Little Men," a companion book to the "Little Maidens," who have already become favorite Christmas offerings. It is a series of full-page plates, superbly colored, bound in heavy bevelled boards, ribbon-tied. "Earth's Sweet Voices" is an oblong book, containing exquisite illustrations in color and monotint; and "Poet's Corner" is a charming little volume with brief biographies of Scott, Shelley, Milton and others, and monotint sketches of the poet's homes and places they have rendered famous. Three delightful books daintily bound, with illustrations in colors, are "Scott Pictures," "Dickens Pictures," "Pickwick Pictures" (illustrated by H. M. Paget); and in "Pictures of the Holy Land" Patrick Watson gives an interesting description and charming sketches of a journey through Palestine. The immortal "Jackdaw of Rheims" also reappears, in very fine plumage indeed, with a dainty oblong cover and happy illustrations. "Christmas Once Is Christmas Still," by Bishop Brooks, is the carol for the year, illustrated in colors. Among the great array of smaller booklets it is impossible

o select titles for special mention. All are wonderfully attractive. There is a very full line of devotional companions, containing daily Bible verses and poetic or prose selections for the week, month and year. They are appropriately illustrated in color and monotint, and bound in pleasing covers. "Cross," "Crown" and "Star" are "shaped" books of devotional verse. Calendars and Christmas cards are a specialty with this firm, and they are in no way behind their record in their preparations in this line.

ESTES & LAURIAT always provide rich art-books for the holiday season, and this year almost beat their own fine record in the importance of their material and the fine shape in which it appears under the separate titles. The thirteenth annual volume of "The Paris Salon," the only "Salon" with the "Palette" design, the distinguishing work of the series as issued from the press of Ludovic Baschet, is ready and at a little cheaper than former volumes. It contains one hundred photogravures printed by hand in colors from paintings exhibited in Paris by the most noted artists, in May, 1892. The text is French. "Recent International Art" is a series of sixteen photo-etchings from paintings and designs by the best modern artists of Europe and America, such as Tito Conti, Rosenthal, Barth, St. John Harper, Darley, etc., with descriptive text by well-known art critics; "American Etchings" is a collection of twenty original etchings by the best American artists, including such names as Falconer, Chase, Swain Gifford, Colman, Smillie, etc., with descriptive text by well-known critics, gotten up in rich leather binding; and "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn" and "Winter" are four exquisite little volumes made of Thomson's "Seasons," illustrated with dainty pictures each fitted artistically into its niche in the text, sold separately or in sets, bound in full India silk of delicate shades stamped in gold. William Ware's classic novel "Zenobia" appears in a new edition set from new and large type, fully illustrated with half-tone plates from photographs taken in Palmyra, showing the ruins of that splendid civilization which reached its zenith nearly two thousand years ago. A companion volume to "The Lily of the Arno," Virginia Johnson's enthusiastic description of Florence published last season, is her book on "Genoa, the Superb," the merits of which have entitled it to a special notice elsewhere in this issue. A new and appropriately named Exquisite Series starts its career with the masterpieces of Goldsmith and St. Pierre, "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "Paul and Virginia," and its special features of daintiness and taste are also detailed under the heading of "Dainty Books" in our front pages. "Parisian Photographures," ten selected paintings by modern French artists, produced by Goupil & Cie., of Paris, have been reduced in price. All the old favorites on the list of this house are again dressed for a new season of conquest.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. are publishing in rapid succession "The Columbian Historical Novels," a complete set of which would be a very handsome offering to a friend's library. This set, written by John R. Musick, gives a complete history of our country from the time of Columbus to the present day in the form of twelve interesting novels, uniform in size and style and liberally illustrated with full-page half-tone engravings as well as many other illustrations. The separate titles are: "Columbia," a story of the discovery of America; "Estevan," dealing with the Spanish Conquest; "St. Augustine," the story of the Huguenots; "Pocahontas," the history of Virginia; "The Pilgrims," the story of Massachusetts; "A Century too Soon," the story of Bacon's rebellion; "The Witch of Salem," the history of superstition in America; "Braddock," the story of French and Indian wars; "Independence," the story of the American Revolution; "Sustained Honor," a story of the War of 1812; "Humbled Pride," a story of the Mexican War; and "Union," the history of the Civil War and of American events to the present day. Although the author allows his imagination play in making details interesting he sticks to facts in all important matters, and these volumes afford a great opportunity for learning American history while indulging in light reading. Haweis' "Musical Memories" and Edwin Arnold's "Light of the World" are favorite books among the publications of this house.

HARPER & BROTHERS have made their chief Christmas publication a fine edition of "True and I," that pretty pastoral of George William Curtis that in its day added much to his youthful and merited reputation. The work the publishers have put upon this edition is fully described in our front pages. Henry James' "Daisy Miller" and "An International Episode" have been combined in one volume illustrated by drawings by Harry W. McVickar, who has well brought out the surroundings of the bewitching Schenectady flirt and the "tremendously literary" Miss Alden, who both proved so interesting to the Englishmen who learned to know them on their own and on foreign soil. In 1878, when "Daisy Miller" began her career as a rich New Yorker's daughter travelling with her mother and irrepressible communicative little brother through the beauties of Europe, she was much talked of. Englishmen received her as a type of all American girls and said much against her; and Americans were a little exercised in mind that Daisy should have been quite so much at home and seemingly so content among the conventional foreigners. Her sad end softened criticism and her charms have outlived her little naughtinesses of style and manner. In this pretty volume Mr. James' little lesson to his countrymen may find favor in many eyes. There is also an edition de luxe, limited to 250 copies, which is a decidedly pretty piece of book-making. It is illustrated in tint, a different color being used for each story. Besides these special preparations for the holidays this house has on its list books that will make many hearts glad. There are four delightful descriptive volumes relating to England, France, Austria and America: "London," by Walter Besant; "The Praise of Paris," by Theodore Child; "The Danube from the Black Forest to the Black Sea," by Millet, Parsons and Bigelow; "A Tour Around New York," by John Flavel Mines, with lots of illustrations; and "The West from a Car-Window," by Richard Harding Davis. Of great historical and political interest is "The Armies of To-Day," a description of the armies of the leading nations at the present time, fully illustrated and very handsomely printed. The work explains the organization, discipline, equipment, comparative efficiency and cost of maintenance of eight of the great armies of the world, each one being treated of by one of its own officers high in authority as a representative of his country's armed force. T. de Thulstrup's illustrations are an important part of the work. A book sure of welcome at this time is Mrs. Ritchie's "Records of Tennyson, Ruskin and Browning," illustrated with pictures of many places and things identified with these great writers, and bound in a style that makes it most suitable as a gift-book.

RUFUS C. HARTRANFT offers a book that will be much sought for in the authentic report of the successful Peary expedition to the frozen north, entitled "In Arctic Seas," the narrative of the voyage of the Kite with the Peary expedition, by Robert N. Keely, surgeon to the exand pulpit editions and in all the styles of binding that their European and American artists can design. They also have "Family and Teachers' Testaments" in a variety of bindings and at low prices. A Bible well worth considering in selecting a gift for a Sunday-school teacher or scholar is "The Memorial Bible." It has all the proper names divided into syllables, with the diacritical markings given which indicate the correct use of the variable vowel and consonant sounds used in their pronunciation, according to the most authoritative literary standards, a feature of great value to Bible students. It is furnished in strong, durable and attractive bindings and has met with favor in the eyes of many noted clergymen.

pedition, sent by the Academy of Natural Sciences to accompany Lieutenant Peary, and G. G. Davis, member of the Archæological Association of the University of Pennsylvania. The book contains the complete "log" of the Kite, furnishing material of the greatest geographical and general scientific interest, and also gives interesting particulars of the public rejoicing shown in the reception tendered the large-hearted adventurers upon their return from their perilous voyage. The book is bound in white cloth, stamped in gold, and makes a fine presentation volume.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co. have Bibles of every kind, "King James Bibles," "Parallel Bibles," "German Bibles," "Norwegian Bibles," "Danish Bibles" and "Swedish Bibles" in family

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have put several long-loved poems into volumes that are perfect examples of fine bookmaking. Under the heading of "Illustrated Poems" elsewhere, we have given detailed descriptions of the points of beauty in the make-up of Dr. Holmes' "Dorothy Q.," Longfellow's "Evangeline" and Whittier's "At Sundown." A new Centenary Edition of the "Poetical Works of Shelley" is noticed under the heading "Collected Works." Lanciani's "Pagan and Christian Rome," a companion to "Ancient Rome in the Light of Modern Discoveries," which has enjoyed a very remarkable popularity, is even more full of historic and human interest than that. Its seven chapters describe the Transformation of Rome from a Pagan into a Christian City; Temples; Churches; Pagan Cemeteries; Catacombs.

Tombs of Emperors; and Tombs of Popes. It covers the first five centuries of the Christian era, and depicts the gradual yet marvellous metamorphosis which passed upon the Rome of the Cæsars, making it the capital city of the Christian world. Like Professor Lanciani's previous work, it is historical and based on the rich results of archaeological research and discovery. It is profusely illustrated with views, of great variety and not generally accessible. In all the details of manufacture the work has been brought out in the most careful manner. Lucy Larcom's "At the Beautiful Gate," containing some of her hymns and lyrics on sacred subjects, and Clinton Scollard's "Songs of Sunrise Lands" will be found mentioned under the heading of Dainty Books. A poem unique in American literature is Edna Dean Proctor's "The Song of the Ancient People," which has an introduction by John Fiske and notes by Frank Hamilton Cushing. The volume is issued in a binding befitting its peculiar character as an utterance of the Pueblo people, a passionate, pathetic, proud outpouring of racial and tribal feeling with reference to the past, when the Pueblos were supreme. Charles Dudley Warner's "In the Levant" is noticed elsewhere under the heading Fine Editions of Standard Works; and Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the holiday book of last season, is as fresh as ever in interest and sure to please at first sight those who are not yet familiar with the contents of these time-honored books. From the list of these publishers may be selected books that will make happy friends of literary taste who have no longing for the so-called holiday books. For such we briefly mention Charles Francis Adams' "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," John Brown's "Spare Hours," in three volumes, James Russell Lowell's "The Old English Dramatists," Norton's translation of Dante's "Divine Comedy" and his "Life of Dante," Edmund Clarence Stedman's "The Nature and Elements of Poetry," Henry D. Thoreau's "Autumn," etc.

HUNT & EATON have several new books, all setting forth the claims of Methodism and Christian missions, sometimes by means of biography and story as well as by learned essays by noted divines. A book of great interest and brilliantly written is "The Bishop's Conversion," by Ellen Blackmar Maxwell, who through sweet and bitter experiences learned to know the satisfactions and sacrifices of mission work, and tells her story with originality and spirit. The book is illustrated. Other works of interest are: "Lectures on the Bible," Bishop Warren's views of the English Bible, originally delivered for the "Wycliffe Foundation" of the Iliff School of Theology of the Denver University, and now first put into book form; "Representative Women of Methodism," by Dr. Buoy, six striking letters upon typical Methodist womanhood of the present day, making a choice presentation book for young women; "Christ Enthroned in the Industrial World," by Charles Roads, a thoughtful study of the application of Christianity to the labor troubles of these disjointed times; "The March of Methodism," by James McGee, endorsed by the literary department of the Epworth League; and "Mexico in Transition," by William Butler, who notes the changes which brought the country out of the power of political Romanism into civil and religious liberty.

HURST & Co. have a good set of presentation books in a series of volumes describing some of the principal countries of the world, and exhibiting their most picturesque features in numerous illustrations by the best artists. These volumes are attractively bound and are full of instruction and interest. The six books now ready are "Egypt," "England" and "Palestine," in which the text is by the Rev. Samuel Manning; "Germany," by Samuel Green; "India," by Rev. W. Urwich; and "Ireland," by Richard Lovett.

JOHN IRELAND, N. Y., appeals to the longing for good things to eat at the Christmas season in his preparations for the holidays. "What One Can Do with a Chafing-Dish," a guide for amateur cooks, by Mrs. H. L. Sawtelle, tells how sixty or more appetizing dishes can be made in a chafing-dish, ranging from clams, lobsters and various rechauffes to an astounding array of quite complicated suppers that can be gotten up when all the world is supposed to be asleep, a very neat present, especially if accompanied by the chafing-dish, to some bachelor friend or banished college student. Another book more suitable for housekeeping friends is a little volume called "Ninety-nine Practical Methods of Utilizing Boiled Beef," which also contains Bahet's original recipe for stewed chicken. The book is translated from the French and has a preface by Mme. de Fontclose. A very curious book of great interest to an enthusiastic numismatist is "The Story of the Token as Belonging to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper," by Robert Shiells, containing a well and clearly written account of the communion tokens so long used in the various families of the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM R. JENKINS has a line of illustrated French books that might be happily used to encourage young students who are struggling with the mysteries of French past participles ruled by sex and number. Among their most important publications are Pierre Loti's "Pêcheur d'Islande," with fourteen full-page photogravures and upwards of one hundred other illustrations, bound in full leather; Leon de Tinseau's "Ma Cousine Pot-au-Feu," with illustrations by Clement Bellenger; and "Souvenirs du Capitaine Parquin," a large quarto volume of more than three hundred pages, all ornamented with marginal drawings in black, and beautified by twenty full-page plates printed in colors, besides a large number of other full-page plates in black. This house also has editions of the "Goupil Paris Salon" for 1892, with text in French and English, illustrated with ninety-eight photogravures, two etchings, by Waltner and Greux, and a fac-simile in water-colors of the very attractive decorative panel by Albert Lynch, which was awarded the first-class medal, the latter a new feature in this year's issue. A fine edition of "Victor Hugo's Novels" is also ready, of which "Nôtre-Dame de Paris" is also published in a superb édition de luxe and in one de grand luxe, both of which have now been reduced in price. The "French Calendar for 1893," with quotations from standard French writers, is again gotten up in every style of binding and can be had from 50 cents upwards.

FREDERICK KEPPEL & Co., New York City, have a stock of very fine etchings especially suitable for holiday presents. Among the latest additions to their long list are: "The Gardener's Daughter," after Emile Adam, and "The Old Librarian," after Jiminez.

JOSEPH KNIGHT COMPANY, Boston, have a good list of holiday books, among which are many old friends in new dress. "Thackeray's Works," in thirty volumes, and "Bulwer's Works," in thirty-two volumes, are first-comers in their New Household Edition and are fully noticed elsewhere under the heading of Fine Editions of Standard Works. William Winter's "Old Shrines and Ivy" and "Shadows of the Stage" have been brought out in dainty holiday editions, illustrated with photogravures bound in silk, morocco and white calf; and "John Halifax, Gentleman," embellished with forty new half-tone illustrations and a color frontispiece from an original drawing by Miss Laura C. Hills, has been placed with Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford" in the series My Lady's Classics. Among the smaller holiday gift-books mention must be made of the pocket edition of Mrs. Browning's poems, consisting of those selected by Robert Browning, which are illustrated with delicate photogravures and bound in two styles—white and gold and full morocco. Thackeray's "Ballads," "Four Georges" and "English Humorists" have been brought out in The Pocket Series, with etched frontispieces and numerous illustrations, bound in cloth and half calf; "Dreamthorp," a book of essays by Alexander Smith, and "At the Fireside," a volume of verses by John D. Long, have also been made into very attractive books; and James Parton's "Words of Washington," appropriately illustrated in photogravure, is announced as the initial volume in the Table Talk Series. The 1893 calendars, in color, delicacy of design and general workmanship, maintain the high reputation of this firm in its special field of art and illustrated gift-books.

LAIRD & LEE have made ready one of their always popular and most useful books of information calculated to make the wheels of domestic life run smoothly and to keep the wrinkles of doubt and perplexity from the comely faces of busy house-mothers. The title of the newcomer in the field is "Treasures, Old and New," brought together by Jennie A. Hansey, which is illustrated with upwards of three hundred pictures and started on its useful career in a serviceable coat of washable oil-cloth. Although classified as a cook-book and devoting much space to plain and healthful recipes for making good things to eat besides having forty pages devoted to artistic cookery, the treasures of this volume include medical and other advice, and a specially useful and wholly original department on the art of "Keeping persons and things clean and fresh." Another book that is a timely Christmas offering is a handsomely gotten up "Guide to Chicago," full of all the information needed for one contemplating a visit to the Columbian Exposition.

LEE & SHEPARD have a specially pretty book called "The New England Country," which is fully described elsewhere in this issue. Among other artistic gift-books are "Sun Prints in Sky Tints," composed of selections from the poets, illustrated by upwards of thirty of Irene E. Jerome's graceful drawings, all printed in blue and bound in a pretty blue and gray cover, with decorations of corn-flowers; "The Fallow Field," a book made of the word pictures, by Mrs. Julia C. Dorr, of the country around her home in Rutland, Vermont, and excellent reproductions of the charcoal illustrations by her daughter, Mrs. Zulma De Lacy Steele, bound in a neat green cover with gold lettering, and put up in a box; and "My Little Friends," half-tone reproductions of a series of portraits of children, collected by E. Heinrichs, put up in white leatherette with gold title and boxed. The full line of the Illustrated Hymns and Poems, twenty titles, are put up this year in ivorine with new cover designs by Maud Humphrey, printed in delicate colors on imitation ivory, and called the "Maud Humphrey Ivorines." These same old favorites also appear in "The Columbian Style," bound in rich leather with gold titles and a medallion of Columbus and neatly boxed.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have provided liberally as ever for the holidays. "Tales from Ten Poets," in three volumes, in which Harrison S. Morris has again done some ingenious literary work, in rendering into prose the most famous narrative poems of ten great Victorian poets, is noticed elsewhere under the heading Dainty Books; as is also "Tales from the Dramatists," in four volumes, by Charles Morris, who has made a series of interesting stories from the leading plays from Ben Jonson's day to the present. The leading gift-books of the house are "Atlina," by M. B. M. Toland, author of "Eudora," who has once more sung of life and love and whose pretty thoughts have been illustrated with full page photogravure reproductions of drawings by Bloomer, Weir, Church, Dielman, Jones, Jaccaci, Denman, Du Mond and Twachtman, and numerous decorative designs throughout the text by A. F. Jaccaci, the whole bound in various attractive styles; "Recent Rambles; or, In touch with nature," by Charles C. Abbott, full of exquisite little landscape bits and pictures of trees and flowers and all the living things that speak to an ear attuned to nature's confidences and eyes trained to ferret out her mysteries; and "Gleams and Echoes," by A. R. G., author of "Night Etchings," illustrated from drawings by Turner, Jones, Schell, Clinedinst, Dielman and Lippincott, engraved by Anderson, Reed and Williams. Strickland's "Queens of England," printed from new plates, makes a welcome gift for some book-loving friend's library; as does also the collection of the bric-à-brac of literature, literary forgeries, hoaxes, jests, enigmas, conundrums, paradoxes, anecdotes, proverbs, etc., entitled "Handbook of Literary Curiosities," prepared by William S. Walsh, author of "Literary Life," which forms a complete encyclopædia of all that is most amusing and entertaining, and an indispensable reference-book of curious, quaint and out-of-the-way information that has never before been brought together in book form. For those blessed with this world's goods and able to indulge themselves in giving royally, this house furnishes the now completed new edition, revised to date, of "Chambers' Encyclopædia."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have devoted their energies this season to making attractive in outward form for a new generation of readers books that have stood the test of time. Francis Parkman's "The Oregon Trail," with Frederic Remington's spirited illustrations, is fully described in our front pages. Their beautiful editions of Charles Lever and Bulwer are fully noticed under the heading, "Fine Editions of Standard Works," as are also their new editions of "Lamb's Essays," "The Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius," "The Discourses, Enchiridion and Fragments of Epictetus," and Walton and Cotton's "Complete Angler." A most appropriate Christmas gift is the volume of "The World's Best Hymns," with an introduction by Prof. J. W. Churchill, of the Andover Theological Seminary, and forty illustrations by Louis K. Harlow, which can be had in cloth or hand-painted China silk. The book has been choicely printed at the University Press, Cambridge, with blackletter headings, rubricated initials, etc. The hymns number about two hundred. Sporting friends and lovers of outdoor rambles can be made happy with "Road, Track and Stable," by H. C. Merwin, illustrated with full-page portraits of Arion, Mambrino King, a typical Morgan horse and a model polo pony, and numerous head and tail pieces; or "Mountaineering," etc., by Douglas Freshfield and other writers, the new volume in the Bodminton Library of Sports and Pastimes, which is full of illustrations conveying much information. Not strictly on the holiday order, but sure to be acceptable to the right friends, are Francis Parkman's "Half Century of Conflict" and Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations." Last year's book, "Elizabethan Songs," is as beautiful as ever.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have books that delight cultured readers, and though not coming strictly under the head of holiday books, will make the day bright to all book-worms who have them chosen for them. Curzon's "Persia," in two imposing volumes, is a whole encyclopædia of facts treating of one of the most ancient if not most interesting of countries, the result of three years' almost uninterrupted labor and of a six months' journey in Persia by the under-secretary of the British Foreign Office. It belongs on the same shelf with Rein's "Japan," Williams' "Middle Kingdom," Hurst's "Indika," etc. The work is a solid monument of learning, full of maps, illustrations, tabulated information, answering almost every question that can be put about geographical, political and social Persia. Another volume equally interesting to scholars is Theodore Bent's "The Ruined Cities of Mashonaland," a record of excavations and explorations, 1891-92, with many illustrations and maps; and of lighter calibre but full of life and sure to please are F. Anstey's new books, "Voces Populi" and "The Travelling Companions;" "Twenty-five Years of St. Andrews," in two volumes, by the author of the cheerful "Recollections of a Country Parson;" and volumes of poetry and fiction which lack of space forbids us to mention separately.

D. LOTHROP Co. have in "Famous Pets of Famous People" a book that will appeal to many. Almost everybody has a cat, dog or canary, perhaps a monkey, a parrot or a turtle that is to him (generally to her) only a trifle less dear than friends and kindred, and the doings of the pets of others become a study of interest and a standard of comparison that make their own favorites to shine. In eleven cheerful chapters profusely illustrated the writer tells of Scotch celebrities, pets in literary life, a notable canine trio, pets in artist life, pussy in private life, military pets, animals at school, etc., etc. Many of the illustrations are copies of well-known paintings showing children and children of larger growth with their favorite animal companions. The cover design is Angelica Kaufmann's picture, "Friends Now, Pussy." Tennyson's "The Holy Grail," illustrated by W. L. Taylor, has been brought out in a cheaper popular edition, and is a most suitable gift this year, as pretty as ever and more practical in shape; and the selections from Tennyson by Elbridge S. Brooks, entitled "Out-of-Doors with Tennyson," are full of charm and gotten up as a tempting gift-book. A popular edition is made of Mrs. Stuart Phelps Ward's "A Lost Winter," illustrated by Mrs. Spaulding, describing the delights of doing nothing in Florida; and a pretty little gift-book is entitled "Shakespeare's Twilights," a collection of quotations from the greatest poet descriptive of mornings and sunsets, compiled by S. F. Price and illustrated by W. P. Chaloner and H. P. Barnes. Almost all the popular favorites of the house are again ready to take and hold a place among the débutantes of this season. Among these special mention must be made of "Old Concord: Her Highways and Byways," to which much new matter has been added, and which is fully described in our front pages.

LOVELL, CORYELL & COMPANY have in "Three Normandy Inns," by Anna Bowman Dodd, illustrated by C. S. Reinhart, a very handsome book, which is fully described in our front pages. The specialty of this firm is fiction, and from its list many novel-readers may be satisfied. Their most important recent issues in this field include an édition de luxe of Barrie's "The Little Minister," with portrait of author and nine full-page illustrations, the initial volume of a complete uniform edition of Barrie's works mentioned elsewhere under Collected Works; a new illustrated edition of Hall Caine's "The Scapegoat;" "Scarabæus," the story of an African beetle, a tale as full of mystery as "The Moonstone," told by the Marquise Clara Lanza and James Clarence Harvey; and a profusely illustrated edition of Clark Russell's masterpiece, "The Wreck of the Grosvener."

A. C. McCLURG & CO. offer in their Laurel-Crowned Letters, Laurel-Crowned Verse and Laurel-Crowned Tales some of the best-known and best-loved works in the English and French languages. In the first series the new works are "The Best Letters of Percy Bysshe Shelley," edited with an introduction by Shirley C. Hughson, a fitting tribute in Shelley's centennial year, and "The Best Letters of William Cowper," edited with an introduction by Anna Beneson McMahan; in the second "The Iliad of Homer," in Pope's translation, and Milton's "Paradise Lost" are the new volumes; and in the last the new romances received are "Mari-anela," a story of Spanish love, translated from the Spanish of B. Perez Galdos by Helen W. Lester, and "Cousin Phillis," a story of more reposeful English love related by the powerful pen of Mrs. Gaskell. Other volumes that will prove useful for gifts to friends of cultivated tastes are "France in the Nineteenth Century," 1830-1890, by Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer; "A History of Modern Philosophy" (from the Renaissance to the present) in two volumes, by B. C. Burt; "Sound and Music," by Prof. John A. Zahm, profusely illustrated; "References for Literary Workers," by Prof. Henry Matson; and "Valeria, and other poems (including the Opening Ode for the World's Columbian Exposition), by Harriet Monroe. A pretty edition in two volumes of Miss Sheppard's "Rumour" is brought out uniform with "Counterparts," issued last year, and there is an interesting book for travellers and sportsmen entitled "Our Cycling Tour in England," by Reuben G. Thwaites.

MACMILLAN & CO., whose imprint guarantees literary quality and fine bookmaking, have some éditions de luxe that are unfortunately very limited in the number of copies to be sold in this country. "Man in Art," by Philip G. Hamerton, has the text printed on hand-made paper and the illustrations on Japanese vellum. These consist of etchings and photogravures from pictures by Luke Fildes, Murillo, Ary Scheffer, Moreau, Botticelli, Sir John Gilbert, Alma-Tadema, Sir F. Leighton, Woolner, De Roton, Mackin, Fra Angelico, Dicksee, G. Leslie, Albert Dürer, Lucas of Leyden, Rembrandt and others, etched or photogravured by Norman Hirst, Rhead, C. O. Murray, Manesse, Didier, Flameng, Goupil process, Dujardin, Annan and Swan, Amand Durant, Guillaume and Pierre Gusman. Of this fine book there is a cheaper edition as well. Of the following there are only the fine editions: "Days with Sir Roger de Coverley," with illustrations by Hugh Thomson, printed on hand-made paper, and bound in buckram, uniform with the pretty editions of "Cranford" and "The Vicar of Wakefield;" "Old Christmas," by Washington Irving, with illustrations by Randolph Caldecott, bound uniform with the above; and a new edition of "The Library," by Andrew Lang, with a chapter on Modern English Illustrated Books by Austin Dobson. "The Makers of Venice," by Mrs. Oliphant, with illustrations by R. R. Holmes is offered, bound to match "The Makers of Florence" published last season, and fine volumes are also made of "The Poems of Wordsworth," chosen and edited by Matthew Arnold, with steel portrait engraved by C. J. Jeens, printed on India paper and mounted on title, bound uniform with Palgrave's "Golden Treasury;" and "Edward Burne-Jones," a record of his life and works, by Malcolm Bell, containing a large number of reproductions of the artist's work, selected not merely from exhibited pictures, but from many sources not available to the general public. This house is getting out the Dryburgh Edition of Waverley Novels, to be completed in twenty-five monthly volumes, each containing a complete novel. Under the superintendence of Mrs. J. D. Cooper each novel is to be supplied with about ten illustrations by leading artists of the day in a uniform and characteristic manner, each volume being entrusted to the hands of one artist. The first volume is "Waverley," illustrated by Charles Green, and this initial book of the beautiful set and a promise of the rest will make a royal Christmas offering to the family library. This firm, who are Tennyson's publishers, have just made ready an edition of his latest volume containing "The Death of Cæne, Akbar's Dream and Other Poems," a volume made specially appropriate as a gift by the recent death of the poet. Sir John Lubbock's "The Beauties of Nature," a companion volume to his "Pleasures of Life," points out the happiness the majority of the world overlooks, and which it may easily discover in a contemplation and study of the beauties and wonders of nature. There are chapters on the wonders of animal life, plant life, on the woods

d fields, mountains, waters, rivers and lakes, the sea, the starry heavens, etc. On the Macmillan list are some of the finest English books published, and it should be kept in remembrance when choosing for literary people.

G. & C. MERRIAM are among the happy publishers who can be sure of a steady sale year after year for the same book, and who can always feel that whoever buys a copy of Webster's International Dictionary of the English Language has been given many times his money's worth. It adequately represents the latest and various advances in all the departments of thought and knowledge in recent years. No house is complete without a good dictionary, and a present of a copy of "Webster's Unabridged" always shows generosity and good judgment.

D. D. MERRILL & Co., St. Paul, Minn., are now the publishers of the set of Ruskin's Works brought out in this country by John Wiley & Sons, a very neat edition which, in its durable binding, makes a fine addition to a private or society library. World reformers and propounders of social questions would be pleased with Ignatius Donnelly's "Golden Bottle," a scheme for curing all the ills of the farmers in the West, written with his usual verve and brilliancy. A new devotional book, suitable as a Christmas souvenir, is "At His Feet," by Rev. Wayland Hoyt.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. have made a specialty this season of holiday compilations. They have six of these gift-books, three of which are included in the Golden-rod Series. The others are attractive cloth-bound quartos, containing selections compiled by Alice L. Williams and illustrated with reproductions of designs by Irene Jerome. Mrs. Williams is well known as a discriminating and patient compiler, well fitted to choose the finest gems from the mines of literature. In the present case she has brought together "Comforting Thoughts," in verse and prose; "Many Thoughts for Many Hours," taken from the writings of many great men and women; and selections illustrating "Love and Friendship." The Golden-rod Series is composed of four handy twelvemos, simply bound in heavy linen-paper covers, and printed on ragged-edge paper. The volumes are: "In Friendship's Name" and "What Makes a Friend," both compiled by Volney Streamer; "From Hearts' Content," songs of Nature in all her moods, by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates; and "A Handful of Letters," edited by Mrs. Williams, who has chosen characteristic epistles from the pens of Fénelon, Webster, Milton, Fields, Henry Ward Beecher, Florence Nightingale, Sidney Lanier, and others. A very pretty holiday book has been made of Mary Mitford's "Our Village," illustrated with one hundred and fifty excellent sketches. New editions have been prepared of Joaquin Miller's "Songs of the Sierras," "Songs of Summer Lands" and "In Classic Shades;" and of Ella Wheeler Wilcox' "Poems of Passion," "Poems of Pleasure" and "Maurine." All these volumes have already found a large circle of readers, and in holiday dress they will undoubtedly be well received.

THOMAS NELSON'S SONS have in their "Oxford Miniature Shakespeare" an exquisite presentation edition of the world's greatest poet, which is about the most perfect specimen of bookmaking that can be imagined. It is fully described under the heading Dainty Books elsewhere in this issue. For those whose pockets are not quite lined enough to slip these dainty treasures into them there is a one-volume edition of "Shakespeare's Complete Works," edited with a glossary by W. J. Craig, printed on "Oxford India paper." They have also editions on this paper of "The Imitation of Christ;" Taylor's "Holy Living" and Keble's "Christian Year," which in this style are wholly irresistible to lovers of miniature books. This house has during the year put some very fine work and an immense amount of money into a series of charts and atlases that are acknowledged by experts to hold their own among the very best work of this kind throughout the world. They have been planned and edited by J. G. Bartholomew, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. "The Graphic Atlas and Gazetteer of the World" has over 220 maps, charts, plans of cities, etc., all revised to the present date, also a gazetteer with nearly 55,000 places and the results of the new census. The countries of the world are treated with fulness in proportion to their commercial importance and interest. A separate map is given of each of the States and Territories of the United States. These maps have been compiled from the latest and best government survey maps. "The Globe Hand Atlas," a series of fifty-four maps illustrating physical, political, commercial and classical geography, contains sixty sectional maps of important cities and districts and a general index giving the situation, latitude and longitude of over 500 places throughout the world. The atlas has been carefully prepared and contains all recent discoveries and changes. "The Popular Hand Atlas of the World" has a descriptive index covering 35,000 places; it contains sixty beautifully colored maps with all recent discoveries and political changes in the continent of Africa and other parts of the world. "The English Imperial Atlas of the World" contains 108 pages of maps, 35 especially devoted to the British Empire and the others to physical and statistical geography and political changes. "The World at Home Atlas," containing 73 full-page maps and descriptive index of 35,000 places, of which thirteen maps are devoted to the United States; and "Miniature Atlas and Gazetteer of the World," 128 maps, charts and plans of cities revised to present date, also 10,000 places and population statistics of the principal towns of the United States, according to the census of 1890. The "Oxford" Bibles and Prayer-Books and Hymnals published by the Nelsons are known throughout the English-speaking world. Every year they grow more beautiful in shape and bindings and various styles of casings and ornamentation. The silver-mounted little volumes gotten up last season are as pretty as ever, and there are several new designs shown in the filigree silver-work. "The Finger Prayer-Book" and "Finger New Testament" are also again ready, and no neater keepsake could be sent to a young woman by the young man who longs to show her the attention of a little gift, and hardly dares to offer anything of money value.

THE NEW YORK HISTORY COMPANY is getting out the most elaborate work ever published on an American city, entitled "The Memorial History of the City of New York," gotten up in four royal octavo volumes of more than 600 pages each and illustrated with not less than 1000 portraits, views of historic houses, scenes, statues, tombs, monuments, maps and fac-similes of autographs and ancient documents, with twenty-five fine steel-engravings, including one of Columbus. This work is edited by James Grant Wilson and printed at the De Vinne Press, and whoever has it given to him by some generous friend will have received one of the handsomest books published in America as well as a whole mine of information.

ORANGE JUDD Co. have prepared a book that must appeal to every American reader, and which every man and woman that knows its charms will be most anxious to see on their shelves of special favorites. It is a Library Edition of Eggleston's "Hoosier Schoolmaster," issued in commemoration of the publication and sale of this pioneer among American dialect stories, which has been translated into French, German, Danish and Russian. The state of society so vividly described by Eggleston's humorous pen has passed into history, but we should see that our children and grandchildren taste the delight of knowing Bud Means, Squire Hawkins, Shockey, the bull-dog and many others of the characters who furnished us with so much amusement and so many apt quotations a quarter of a century ago.

JAMES POTT & Co.'s publications are chiefly in the direction of Protestant Episcopal books on religious and theological subjects, but they also carry a long line of booklets and souvenirs, birthday and text books that are about as pretty as they can be made. Another specially appropriate Christmas gift can always be made by a "Bagster Bible," for which this house has the sole agency in this country, and which they get up for the American market, with a knowledge taught by long experience of the exacting taste of Christmas shoppers in the matter of bindings and the originality desired in shapes, sizes and cover designs. Among the books not strictly holiday publications, but sure of a welcome on the shelves of a friendly pastor, are "How God Inspired the Bible," thoughts for the present disquiet, a book for the times, by J. Patterson Smythe; "Elements of Moral Theology," by the Rev. John J. Elmendorf, based on the "Summa Theologiæ of St. Thomas Aquinas;" "The Cure of Souls," by William Walter Cobb, a manual for the clergy, based chiefly upon English and Oriental authorities; "Some Purposes of Paradise," an essay on the life of the soul between death and resurrection, by the Rev. Walter Gwynne; and "Looking for the Church," being an abridgment of the "Presbyterian Minister Looking for the Church." Drummond's popular addresses are specially prepared for the holidays by this house.

PORTER & COATES have made their chief holiday publication of a new edition of Longfellow's "Hyperion," that prose masterpiece of America's master poet which after half a century remains as fresh as at first in its dissection of its hero's soul-life, its wonderfully beautiful word-pictures of German and Swiss scenery, and its scholarly criticisms on the writers of Germany in the days when it was written. The volume is illustrated with thirty photogravures of places and scenes well known to this generation of "globe-trotters," giving the prettiest views on the Rhine and Neckar and showing many of the old castles that almost all Americans of culture have now seen face to face. The book is gayly and neatly bound, well printed and must please at first glance. Just as beautiful as when it started its career two seasons back is the Florentine Edition of Romola; and more valuable than new books to many would be the Library Edition in three volumes of Carlyle's "French Revolution," the great success of last season; and Grace and Philip Wharton's "Wits and Beaux of Society" and "Queens of Society."

L. PRANG & Co. have caught the spirit of the Columbus year and have made their chief gift-books and preparations generally reflect America's quadracentennial ovation to the Genoese discoverer. "Columbia's Courtship" is a history of the United States written and painted by Walter Crane during his recent stay in America and printed in full colors in fac-simile of this artist's original paintings, which presents an allegorical narrative of America from the mythical Norseman's time to the great Chicago Fair of next year. Other offerings at the shrine of Columbus are described under the heading Specialties. All the old favorites have put on their Christmas clothes for 1892.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS again take a work of Irving's for their special Christmas publication. This Agapida Edition of "The Conquest of Granada" is fully described in our front pages. "Love Poems of Three Centuries, 1590-1890," two volumes compiled by Jessie F. O'Donnell has been put into a white and gold dress, in which several other of the Nugget series also appear this year and which is described elsewhere under the heading Dainty Books; where are also mentioned the fourth series of "Literary Gems;" and the new edition of "The Initials," Baroness Tautphœus' little masterpiece, which has held its own for forty years and is now made in two volumes uniform with the three-volume edition of "Lorna Dorne" issued last Christmas. Truly a Christmas book is "Scenes from the Life of Christ," edited by Jessica Cone, who has selected Bible texts and sweet hymns to tell the story of the Saviour to the world. These verses appear on the hand side of the large page, bordered in gold and are faced by illustrations numbering four, chiefly reproductions from celebrated pictures. Among the artists whose work has been selected are Carl Müller, Albrecht Dürer, Raphael and all the old masters. The book is bound in white cloth with church design in lettering in gold and makes a most appropriate Christmas offering specially suitable for day-school prize for scholar or pastor. The list of this house are many books that will be welcome to all students of history, especially American history. Among these we bring attention to such excellent works as "The Writings and Correspondence of Thomas Jefferson," edited by Paul Leicester Ford; "The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay," edited by Henry P. Johnston; "The Writings of George Washington," edited by Worthington C. Ford; "The Life of Thomas Paine," by Moncure D. Conway. "Japan in Art and Industry" is translated by Mrs. E. L. Shaw from the French of Félix Régamey, himself an accomplished artist, who in about one hundred clever designs portrays the whole subject of the characteristics, motives, processes, methods and tools of the artist and art craftsman of Japan, making a book of unique value.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have this year made a handsome holiday publication of Stanley's "Historical Memorials of Canterbury."

v books shed as much light on the peculiar intimate relation of Church and State in England as Stanley's "Historical Memorials of Westminster Abbey" and "Historical Memoirs of Canterbury." Both his great books were made on the spots they describe so faithfully, and both have become absolutely necessary to a full understanding of what these great cathedrals stand for in the religious and political history of the great land that so proudly lists them among her dearest possessions. "Canterbury" has nineteen full-page illustrations in photogravure, besides many smaller representations of historic subjects and events interlarded through the large, well-printed text. These large pictures are in themselves a valuable collection of works of art. The work is delicately printed in light purple and white and forms a companion volume to the "Westminster Abbey," published last season. An interesting book of travel is Mary Thorn Carpenter's "A Winter in India" in which the journey is made in Rome and takes in Calcutta, Benares, and other places of note. This house for long years been specially successful in getting up artistic birthday-books and textbooks, and has put its imprint on some compilations in this line that are of unusual literary value. These books always make charming presents, especially for very young girls and aged men friends, who seem to take an almost equal delight in looking up the verses for their friends whose birthdays they remember. There are among the later publications in this series a new edition of "Daily Steps Upward," selected readings for every day in the year; "Every Morning" (2 vols.) and "Every Evening" (2 vols.), meditations on the words of the Bible, compiled by R. R. Crowther; "Men's Thoughts for Men" and "Women's Thoughts for Women," a selection for every day of the year, each author supplying quotations for a month; "Our Elder Brother," thoughts for every Sunday in the year, by Sarah Doudney, and "The Wonderful Counsellor," the sayings of the Lord Jesus, chronologically arranged for every day of the year, by Henry B. Mead. The neatness of get-up of these little books makes them irresistible.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL Co. always provide lavishly for the holiday season and get out a line of books specially suitable for evangelical ministers and Sunday-school teachers and superintendents, and also a few volumes that appeal to a wider literary interest. To the latter belongs the fourth volume of the Pen and Pencil Series devoted to Great Britain, "Welsh Pictures," which treats the section Wales in the United Kingdom with the same artistic and literary skill that have already been bestowed on England, Scotland and Ireland. Each district in "the play-ground of Britain" has been entrusted to a Welshman thoroughly familiar with the region he describes. These "specialists" on the pretty nooks of Wales are John Edward Lloyd, W. Lewis Jones, J. Morris Jones, A. N. Palmer, Edward Foulkes, O. M. Edwards, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Lienfer Thomas, Rev. H. Elvet Lewis and Rev. David Davies. There are about seventy-five illustrations of the beautiful Welsh scenery and the storied castles and dwelling-places that nestle among its hills. Among the former class are a new edition of "The Earthly Footprints of Our Risen Lord," with introduction by the Rev. John Hall and illustrations from celebrated pictures, which was a most successful book last season; "Ten Years Digging in Egypt," by William Flinders Petrie; "The Ainu of Japan," by Rev. J. Batchelor, a wonderfully interesting book of information on the aborigines of Japan; "A Gift of Love," a diary of texts and quotations, neatly bound in corded dark blue silk with silver lettering, chosen and arranged with the exquisite taste of Rose Porter; Christian Life Series, little books entitled "Christian Living," "The Shepherd Psalm," and "The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life," bound in white and silver and neatly boxed as a set though sold separately; The Young Men's Library, in which Atkins' "Moral Battles" and "First Battles;" Davidson's "Brave and True," and Bodell's "The Spiritual Athlete" are boxed as a set, neatly bound in light gray cloth with blue lettering; "The Life of John G. Paton," missionary to the New Hebrides, in two volumes; "The Fifth Gospel," by J. M. P. Otts, under which title is described the land where Jesus lived "which so infolds and enlarges the meaning of the four gospels that it forms around them a fifth gospel;" the "Life of Henry Martyn," the saint and scholar, who was the first modern missionary to the Mohammedans, 1781-1812; and the new edition of Dawson's "Egypt and Syria." A good story of missionary life in Alaska is Kin-da-Shon's Wife," which is also made into an illustrated gift-book. This house also gets out an endless variety of booklets and souvenirs which we cannot describe in detail but which are always welcome greetings to absent friends.

ROBERTS BROTHERS offer a very handsome Christmas gift this season in their now completed edition in twelve volumes of Jane Austen's novels, fully described elsewhere under the heading, Fine Editions of Standard Works. A new and complete edition of "Poems by Helen Jackson" is also mentioned elsewhere under the heading, Some Illustrated Poems. This house has some very neatly made books containing poetry far above the average. Of these the most notable are a complete edition of the poems of the late Philip Bourke Marston, which, in addition to the poems already printed, contains a collection of verses entitled "Aftermath," which have not been published in book form, as well as an appendix giving criticisms of Marston's work by Robert Browning, Swinburne, the late Lord Lytton, Theodore Watts, Dante Rossetti and his brother, William Rossetti, Edmund Gosse and others, edited by Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, who is Marston's literary executor, and supplies a lengthy biographical introduction; a handsome two-volume edition of "Jean Ingelow's Poems," issued with the sanction of the author and illustrated with a portrait and an engraving of Miss Ingelow's former home in Boston, Lincolnshire, England; "Told in the Gate," a volume of Oriental tales in verse, by Arlo Bates; the first and second series of "Emily Dickinson's Poems," edited by T. W. Higginson and Mabel Loomis Todd, and containing an autograph letter from Helen Jackson to Miss Dickinson; "The Lover's Year-Book of Poetry," in two volumes, by Horace Parker Chanler, and "The Wings of Icarus," by Susan Marr Spalding. Books appealing specially to cultured Americans are: "A. Bronson Alcott: his life and philosophy," by T. B. Sanborn and W. T. Harris, with two portraits and a view of the old Concord homestead of the Alcott family, where Louisa M. Alcott spent her useful life and wrote the story of "Little Women;" and "Barbara Fritchie," a study of Whitier's poem, by Caroline H. Dall, a specially appropriate gift to all who now mourn the poet called away just before the Christmas season. "Balzac's Works," in Miss Wormeley's translation, have reached the twenty-second and third volumes in the publication of "The Chocans" and "Lost Illusions: the two poets and Eve and David," and a set of this author in English as idiomatic as his own French would be a splendid gift to a friend's library. Among the books always popular, even though not quite new, are Helen Jackson's "A Calendar of Sonnets;" "My Three Score Years and Ten," an autobiography by Thomas Ball, with a portrait engraved by Thomas Johnson, and photographs of his mother and wife, also a phototype of a model of Washington; William Morris' "Story of the Glittering Plain," and Paul Huet's "Pastels of Men" in two volumes, in Miss Wormeley's perfect translation.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have a large stock of new and cheaper editions of translations from noted French authors, with all the illustrations that appeared in the original editions of these books. Victor Hugo's novels and Victor Hugo's novels and many single works of Frenchmen are among these books that make acceptable gifts. There is also a new series of twenty-four volumes, called Handy Volume Classics, bound in a simple style with covers embellished with gold, which is boxed in sets of three, although any volume is also sold separately. Set 1 contains: "Renon Lescout," "Carmen," "A Sentimental Journey;" set 2, "A Christmas Carol," "Chimes," "The Cricket on the Hearth;" set 3, "Vicar of Wakefield," "Paul and Virginia," "Lays of Ancient Rome;" set 4, "The Legends," 3 volumes; set 5, "Lays of the Lake," "Marmion," "Lord of the Isles;" set 6, "Irish Melodies," "Lalla Rookh," "Harold's Pilgrimage." "The Book of the Game" by Prof. Hoffman, giving all the rules of the popular German game of cards, is attractively printed and temptingly bound, and will give card-players.

SEARLE & GORTON, the enterprising young women publishers of Chicago, have provided a book suitable for the large and growing class of young women greedy for knowledge and a useful place in the world. "In the City by the Lake" is composed of two blank-verse narratives: "The Shadow" and its sequel "The Slave Girl." The first part treats the question of social relationships from the side of a daughter of wealth and refinement, who, in opposition to her haughty father's wishes, marries a daughter of refinement and moral worth; the second part looks at the subject from the standpoint of a daughter of penury and want—a white slave of the present despotism of trade. The author's Blanch Fearing, whose literary merit has already been recognized by those in high place of culture.

F. J. SCHULTE & Co. offer for the holidays, besides their line of exceptionally popular novels, the following books, which will appeal to readers on account of their artistic illustrations as well as their intrinsic literary merit: "An American Nobleman: a story of the Canaan wilderness," by William Armstrong, with illustrations by Holme; and "The Monk and the Hangman's Daughter," by Ambrose Bierce and J. A. Danziger, with eleven full-page illustrations and thirty-nine original initials by Theodore Hampe, handsomely printed in antique type with marginal headings in red, and said to be one of the most attractive books ever issued from Chicago. Lovers of the horse will be particularly interested in Hyder Ali's "Tales of the Turf," with illustrations by Gean Smith, and journalists will find no book more interesting than Franc B. Wilkie's "Thirty-five Years of Journalism," which, although not illustrated, is gotten up in such attractive form as to make a handsome gift-book.

touching tale of Old Virginia retains all its old pathetic and quaintly humorous charm, and no artist more capable of drawing "darkies" can be found in the length and breadth of the land. The origin of this jewel lies in the dark days of the Civil War. It was not, however, until the autumn of 1880 that a friend showed Mr. Page a letter which had been taken from a dead private of a Georgia regiment. It was an illiterate love-letter telling of a heart that absence had made fond, begging her soldier lover to get a furlough and come to let her tell him she had always loved him although she had seemed cold and fickle. She dwelt especially upon the furlough, for if he did not "come honorable" she would not marry him. At Malvern Hill or Fair Oaks a bullet gave him furlough "to cross the stream." The incident so touched Mr.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have made ready some specially beautiful Christmas books. One of the most beautiful, F. Hopkinson Smith's "American Illustrators," of which only 1000 copies were provided in an édition de luxe on japan paper, has unfortunately been already entirely subscribed for. "The Life of Michelangelo Buonarroti," by John Addington Symonds, with fifty illustrations showing his most noted masterpieces, is described in our front pages; as is also the volume on "The Great Streets of the World." Thomas Nelson Page's "Marse Chan" is made into one of the most dainty little books of the season, with illustrations by Smedley, beautifully printed on highly finished paper and bound in a cloth of a delicate green shade with dark green designs of original character. This Page that he immediately wrote this pretty version of its details, which has now received a fitting outer garment. Charles A. Stoddard and Lee Meriwether, those untiring travellers, have again made books for home friends of the many delights of their journeys. The former has described "Spanish Cities," giving pen pictures of the people, the famous buildings, the art treasures, phases of national life, not only of Spain but of Gibraltar and Tangier, which are published in a fine volume with eighteen illustrations of the best-known objects of the localities under discussion; while the latter has been "Afloat and Ashore on the Mediterranean," and with his unflinching humor chats about the things that happened him on his unconventional trip on sea and land, and his account is brightened by twenty-four illustrations. Edward Whymper's great work on "Travels Amongst the Great Andes of the Equator," which was too late last season to be the formidable rival it should have been to the successful books of the day, is an exhaustive and exquisitely manufactured volume, telling the thrilling story of observations as high as man can breathe above the sea level. For friends interested in philanthropy Jacob A. Riis' "The Children of the Poor" would make a much appreciated offering, for it is written with full knowledge of the facts of the social and industrial condition of the children of the slums of New York City, and its warm sympathy is its best guarantee of doing a needed work of reform. Two new volumes in the Cameo Edition, "Bitter-Sweet" and "Kathrina," are fully described elsewhere under the heading Dainty Books. The publishers have made a popular edition of their splendid "Cyclopædia of Painters and Paintings," in four volumes, an ideal holiday offering. The set of "The Famous Women of the French Court," that wonderfully popular series of historical biographies, now numbering fifteen volumes, would make a most acceptable Christmas gift; and several "Dainty Volumes of Verse by Distinguished Authors," and "Six Varied and Charming Volumes of Essays" contain poems by Eugene Field, H. C. Bunner, Anne Reeve Aldrich, Ernest McGaffey and Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr; and essays by W. C. Brownell, R. H. Stoddard, C. W. Stedman, Henry Van Dyke, R. L. Stevenson and Thomas Nelson Page, full titles of which will be found in the classified list. In choosing from among the Scribner riches, Dr. Storrs' volume on Bernard of Clairvaux; Patrick Henry's "Life, Correspondence and Speeches;" "China Collecting in America," by Alice M. Earle; Mrs. Bayard Taylor's "Letters to a Young Housekeeper;" the new edition of "Common Sense in the Household;" and Mrs. Herrick's "The Little Dinner," must not be forgotten. The important illustrated books of other years are also again on the counters. Arnold's "Japonica," "Ocean Steamships," "The Viking Age," "The Pacific Coast Scenic Tour;" Church's "Life of John Ericsson;" Wilson's "In Scripture Lands;" John G. Bourke's "On the Border with Crook," and Stranahan's "History of French Painting." Last, but intending it as the place of honor, we put "Life and Letters of Washington Allston," by Jared B. Flagg with eighteen reproductions of Allston's paintings, making a splendid memorial for the American genius who was a native of South Carolina, graduate of Harvard, an art student in the great capitals of Europe, a poet and novelist as well as a great painter. Allston came in contact with all the representative men of his day, and his biography casts light upon many lives besides his own.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SOME IMPORTATIONS.—The importations for the chief book demand of the year have been selected with the judgment, taste and hopeful courage that distinguish the Scribner house. It is almost all the new importations the literary element predominates. "The Tragedy of the Cæsars," by S. Baring-Gould, is a study of the characters of the Cæsars of the Julian and Claudian houses, profusely illustrated with portraits and full page plates, which is brought out in two large volumes; "Aeacraon" gives the Greek text, with Thomas Stanley's translation, to which is added an appendix of metrical renderings by various hands, edited by A. H. Bullen, all illustrated by J. R. Weguelin, whose pictorial interpretations of the "Odes of Horace" recently issued in Scribner's Magazine had such pronounced success; and still another volume of classic interest is Charles Godfrey Leland's "Etruscan Roman Remains in Popular Tradition," with many illustrations, and copiously decorated with head and tail pieces by the author, who has studied this subject with love and after reliable preparation, having been led into it by his researches in Gypsy-lore, in which he showed work of highest value. Of historic and artistic interest is the work entitled "Old Touraine," the life and history of the famous châteaux of France, by Theodore Andrea Cook, with numerous illustrations, including pen-and-pencil drawings by Jane E. Cook, published in two volumes; and "The Scottish Clans and Their Tartans," containing badges of clans, war-cries, a map of Scotland and historical sketches of ninety-six clans with double-page reproductions in colors of the tartans worn by them, a book to gladden the heart of a descendant of "Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled;" "From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea," a narrative of a journey across Siberia, Mongolia, the Gobi Desert and North China, by Julius M. Price, with photographs, fac-similes and 150 illustrations, a work of description stamped with approval by the London Athenaeum, Times and Spectator; and still others of this character entitled "Argentina and the Argentines," by Thomas A. Turner; "Paraguay: the land and the people," by Dr. E. de Bourgade la Dardye; "Adventures Amidst the Equatorial Forests and Rivers of South America," by H. Villers Stuart; and "Two Happy Years in Ceylon," by C. F. Gordon-Cumming. The new volumes in the Muses

Library, which shows perfection in annotation, type, paper and binding, are "The Poems and Satires of Andrew Marvel," in two volumes, edited by G. A. Aitken, and "Works of Robert Herrick," also in two volumes, edited by A. W. Pollard, with a preface by Swinburne. The International Humor Series can furnish choice books for friends who make a study of jokes, laughs and blunders. The humor of Germany, France, America, Italy and Russia has been analyzed and illustrated in many cases by artists of the nationalities furnishing the samples of national "humor that makes the whole world kiff." If you are so fortunate as to have friends that mark, read, learn and inwardly digest books that are books, ask for Scribner importations in choosing a treat for them.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have their usual large supply of gift-books, pictures and calendars to tempt Christmas shoppers by the neatness and tastefulness of their manufacture. This house has many series of books of poetry and exquisite editions of popular works, and year by year puts new treasures into these pretty settings. To the Vignette Series have been added Mrs. Browning's "Aurora Leigh" and Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake;" and to the Favorite Illustrated Series Tennyson's "Princess" and "Maud, and Other Poems;" "Poems of Robert and Mrs. Browning;" "Aurora Leigh" and "Lady of the Lake." For the details of the special beauties of these books we refer to our front pages under the heading Illustrated Poems, where will also be described the poems by Dobson, Locker and Praed. The volumes of this series are of a peculiar elongated shape in odd bindings, and there are also a very few copies of an édition de luxe. The ninth series of "The Good Things of Life" is full of cheer and smiles; and "Life's Fairy Tales," by J. A. Mitchell, the editor of Life, are as full of wit and satire as his successful "Last American." "Scenes from Nature" and "Selected Photogravures" are each a collection of six photogravures without text, handsomely put up in illuminated bindings; and a very odd volume is published as a gift for a bride called "The Wedding-Gowns," intended to gather and hold together the many souvenirs of the wedding-time, scraps of the various gowns forming the trousseau, and all those nameless little odds and ends so dear to the average feminine heart which are generally stored away in un-get-at-able places or lost in movings and house-cleanings. The new-comers in the Dainty Series, "The Story of the Crucifixion," a poem by William Mitchell, and "Persian Tales from Various Sources," by W. A. Clouston, as well as "Rings and Love-Knots," by Samuel Minturn Peck, and "Wordsworth's Grave, and Other Poems," by William Watson, are noticed elsewhere under the heading Dainty Books; and Maud Humphrey's "Fairy Calendar" and "Kalendar of Beauties," and "Tom Thumb Calendar," "Birthday-Book" and "Autograph-Book" are noticed under the heading of Specialties. In the Cameo Series there is a volume of "Poems Concerning Cats," selected from the works of many authors by Graham R. Tomson, with numerous illustrations by Arthur Tomson to some of the verses by Thomas Gray, Cowper, John Gay, Matthew Pryor, Heine, Edmund Gosse, etc.; and "A Chapter from Greek Anthology," by Richard Garnett, representing Plato, Sophocles, Lucian, and Lucilius. The remarkably successful collection "Some American Painters in Water-Colors" is offered in smaller size at less than one-half its former price; Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford" is added to the Handy-Volume Series; and Heine's "Book of Songs," "Wordsworth's Grave," "Rab and His Friends" and other books are this year put into a new series called The Forget-Me-Not Series, boxed as sets bound in blue silk and white cloth. A timely book is "The Life and Adventures of Christopher Columbus," by Alexander Innes, in antique binding and rich brown leather, tied with tape. Pages could not tell all this house has in the way of new bindings, new combinations and endless pretty booklets and souvenirs, and our space is limited.

E. B. TREAT has a revised and enlarged edition of "Mother, Home and Heaven," that collection of rich thoughts and sentiments in prose and verse from 400 of the best beloved authors, bound in many styles that make it suitable for a birthday, holiday, anniversary or bridal present; a cyclopædia of family medicine, entitled "Our Home Physician," by George M. Bear, with an appendix giving homoeopathic remedies and treatment, by Samuel Lilienthal, sure to please half the women of one's acquaintance; and many other collections of poetry and pretty thoughts which have held their own against new-comers in their field for many years.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS CO. have so many beautiful artistic gift-books, booklets, calendars, cards for every season of the year and novelties of every description that the proverbial "embarrassment of riches" becomes almost a "struggle of despond" when attempting to choose only one or two things from so many that provoke covetousness. Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and Sheridan's "School for Scandal" were not finished in time to make their way last season as their beauty entitles them to do. "Romeo and Juliet" is superbly illustrated by Ludovic Marchetti, Lucius Rossi and Oreste Cortam in twelve colored and twelve monochrome pages, specially designed for this work; and "School for Scandal" has eighteen colored plates by Lucius Rossi, in which this chef-d'œuvre of the stage receives a costly and artistic setting. The "Book of Good Wishes," poetry and pictures by Emily Barnard, makes a large gift-book whose text, sixteen pages of colored and thirty-one pages of monochrome illustrations contain a fabulous number of good wishes, pure and noble in sentiment; "George Eliot—Her Early Home," by Miss Swinnerton, gives a vivid picture of the youth of this greatest woman novelist, illustrated with portrait and many pictures from her different works by G. G. Kilburne and Patty Townsend, and is richly bound; and "The Characters of Charles Dickens," portrayed in a series of twenty-four full-page colored illustrations, would be a royal gift to some of the many admirers who know Charles Dickens' characters as they do their own blood relations. People with a warlike strain in their natures are sure to like "Ready, Aye, Ready," "On and Off Duty," and "Our Service," annals of military heroes and incidents, by Captain J. Percy Groves, illustrated by Harry Payne and Arthur Payne, dedicated by special permission to the Duke of Cambridge. Illustrated poetry is provided in handsome covers in "By fill and Stream;" poetical selections from Shakespeare, Shelley, Arthur Hugh Clough, Samuel Rogers, etc., arranged by Helen M. Burnside and illustrated by A. Wilde Parsons and Charles Noakes; "The Voyage of Columbus and the Discovery of America," an original poem by E. Nisbet, with twelve full-page plates of the most exquisite water-color designs by Vill and Frances Brundage and pen drawings by Pauline Sunter; and "Man the Life-Boat," a poem by Helen M. Burnside, illustrated in color and monochrome by Thomas M. Henry.

THE UNITED BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE (W. J. Shuey) has prepared four collections of Christmas songs, recitations and dialogues under the titles "The Christmas Messengers," a Christmas concert exercise by E. S. Lorenz and Jessie H. Brown, affording opportunity for scenic and spectacular display; "Christmas," by Charles H. Gabriel, delightful carols and beautiful music full of the season's spirit; "Christmas Treasury No. 3," edited by E. S. Lorenz; and three numbers of "Christmas Selections," rich in appropriate matter for Sunday-school festivals and home celebrations. Other little books suitable for keepsakes and gifts are "Sacred Hours with Young Christians," by Bishop J. W. Holt, with an introduction by Rev. Theo. L. Cuyler; and "The Thorn in the Flesh," a thoughtful devotional book by Rev. J. W. Etter.

"I SEE MARSE CHAN READ DAT LETTER CVFR AN' OVER."

From "Marse Chan." (Copyright, 1892, by Charles Scribner's Sons.)

WARD & DRUMMOND have a book of helpful thoughts by John A. Miller, entitled "Summer Gatherings for Winter's Needs," and a long line of "Golden Texts and Bible Gems," arranged for 1893.

WARD, LOCK, BOWDEN & Co. have a very valuable work of history and politics in "History of the English Parliament," by G. Barnett Smith, together with an account of the parliaments of Scotland and Ireland. This work is in two large octavo volumes, illustrated with fac-similes of documents bearing upon the constitutional and parliamentary history of England. This valuable work, being a purely historical and not a party narrative, possesses claims upon all classes of the community. It is constructed from the official records of Parliament, and the various constitutional writers of authority upon the respective periods dealt with. It proceeds upon wholly different lines from the many excellent constitutional histories already in existence, and is the first complete consecutive record yet published of the British Parliament as a representative and legislative institution. Many years have been spent in its preparation, and as a work of permanent value and profound interest it appeals to the English-speaking race at home and abroad. Other volumes of interest to the right recipients are: "A Biographical History of Guy's Hospital," by Samuel Winks, a book that is the result of vast research, but notwithstanding its scholarship, is written in a bright style and contains many amusing medical anecdotes; "Women Writers: their works and ways," a new volume of literary biographies by C. J. Hamilton, with twelve full-page illustrations, chiefly portraits of Frances Burney, Madame de Staël, Mrs. Barbauld, Hannah More, Joanna Baillie, Maria Edgeworth, Jane Austen, Miss Ferrier, Mary Russell Mitford and other writers; and "The Printing Arts," by John Whitfield Harland, an epitome of the theory, practice, processes and mutual relations of engraving, lithography and printing in black and colors, a most valuable gift to place in the hands of a printer or typesetter who works with his head as well as his hands.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have a list of books that are always available as handsome Christmas gifts. Their "Bedford Shakespeare" is gotten up in presentation sets of many kinds. This most compact little handy-volume edition in twelve volumes is offered in cases with spring locks, in fancy little glass-covered book-shelves, in Venetian, Persian and Turkey morocco, in real Russian leather, and in every shape to make its immortal contents outwardly pleasing to every eye. "The Imperial Poets" is a series of standard poets.

each volume illustrated with six full-page photographs of portraits and landscapes of scenes mentioned in the poems, gotten up with red-line borders and gilt edges, and bound in every style, from handsome cloth to padded Venetian morocco. Milton, Wordsworth, Burns, Byron, Scott, Shelley, Hood, Moore can all be found in this shape. "The Albion Poets," including Scott, Ingoldsby Legends, Mrs. Hemans, Shelley, etc., are neatly and clearly printed, and make beautiful Christmas offerings. The Library Edition of Cooper's "Leatherstocking Tales" has been pronounced by the fastidious Literary World to be "the best edition for a gentleman's library that we know of or could wish for;" and there is a cheap edition this season of "Half Hours with Best Authors," by Charles Knight, which is added to the Chandos Classics.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. have several books of intrinsic literary merit in their Fiction, Fact and Fancy Series, edited by Arthur Stedman, of which there are ten volumes boxed as a set that would be a generous and most acceptable contribution to a friend's library. The set comprises "Mr. Billy Downs and His Likes," by Richard Malcolm Johnston; "Essays in Miniature," by Agnes Repplier; "Writings of Christopher Columbus," edited with an introduction by Paul Leicester Ford; "Selected Poems" and "Autobiographia," by Walt Whitman; "The German Emperor and His Eastern Neighbors" and "Paddles and Politics Down the Danube," by Poultney Bigelow; "Don Finimonde: Calabrian Sketches," by Elizabeth Cavazza; "The Master of Silence," by Irving Bacheller; and "Merry Tales," by Mark Twain. All of Mark Twain's books published by this house are as fresh as ever for holiday purchase, and many other books of interest are on their list of holiday presents. A scientific friend would be delighted with R. L. Garner's "Speech of Monkeys."

JOHN C. WINSTON & Co., Philadelphia, have published a book that will make a splendid Christmas present to a whole household. "The Memorial Story of America," comprising the important events, episodes and incidents which make up the record of four hundred years from 1492 to 1892 is written by Hamilton W. Mabie, editor of The Christian Union, and Marshall H. Bright, editor of The Christian at Work, with special chapters prepared by John Sherman, J. K. Upton, Henry L. Dawes, Bishop John H. Vincent, Miss Frances E. Willard, Col. A. K. McClure, Wm. C. Breckinridge, Prof. Francis N. Thorpe, Prof. T. S. Doolittle, Albert Shaw and others. It has upwards of 350 illustrations, mostly by noted American artists. The story of the vast unfolding of life on a new continent is told by different pens, but with one controlling idea—to show how a great nation has grown from a small emigration in search of liberty of body and mind. The volume is primarily prepared for the family, the school of citizenship. The book is a large and well-printed volume of 850 pages, bound in dark strong cloth with the title in gold lettering.

THE WORTHINGTON CO. have no distinctive holiday gift-books this year, but have a long line of translations from German and other foreign works of fiction neatly printed, fully illustrated, and gotten up in attractive bindings. Among these handsome sets of modern foreign novels are: "Heimburg's Works," eleven volumes; Marie Bernhard's novels, two volumes; Nataly von Eschtruth's novels, two volumes; Ossip Schubin's novels, four volumes, and Leon de Tinseau's novels, two volumes. A timely set of publications included in "The Columbus Library," adapted from C. Falkenhorst by Elize L. Lathrop, three volumes separately, entitled "With Columbus in America," "With Cortez in Mexico," and "With Pizzaro in Peru," a series of dramatic historical novels illustrated with photogravures treating of the discovery and conquest of the Western continent; and an attractive gift book is "Memory's Sketch-Book," composed of poems of great authors illustrated with designs by Helen P. Strong, printed in purple tints. The edition of Shakespeare in six 12mo vols., published by this house, always makes a valuable gift; and "The Beauties of Shakespeare," a choice collection of extracts from the great dramatist's works, by the Rev. William Dodd, illustrated with fine steel line-engravings, also makes a pretty keepsake.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co. always offer most appropriate Christmas gifts in their long line of Eyre & Spottiswoode Bibles, which are furnished in every imaginable kind of binding, and can be had with or without "teachers' aids" and references, and in every size at every price. This firm concentrates its Christmas energies on books for young people, and its generous supply of good church reading is noticed in the juvenile department elsewhere. Among their new publications not strictly for the holidays, but very interesting to many, are "Pictorial Architecture of France," by the Rev. H. H. Bishop, with a great number of wood-cut illustrations; and "The Star Atlas," by Dr. Klein, translated and brought up to date by Edmund McClure, with eighteen maps and eighty pages of illustrative letter-press describing all the stars visible to modern telescopes.

Books for Young People.

UNDER this heading is given, in alphabetical order of their publishers, a descriptive summary of all the new books offered as specially suitable for young people.

HENRY ALTEMUS offers handsome new editions of two standard juvenile books: Dickens' "Child's History of England" and "The Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe." The many stirring scenes of English history which Dickens has described so well are portrayed by De Neuville, Sir John Gilbert, Emile Bayard, Rioujat, Leyendecker, Weber, Stall and other eminent historical illustrators, while Crusoe's immortal adventures are depicted in one hundred and twenty original drawings by Walter Paget. Both books are bound in handsome holiday style.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION offer a few instructive stories of a semi-religious character, which are chiefly for readers between sixteen and eighteen. "In Mother's Place," by Kate Neely Festetics, describes the struggles and trials of a young girl who is forced through her mother's death into the management of a large family of sisters and a wayward brother. The pleasures of boating, picnics and other enjoyments are vividly pictured, serving as a bright background to a somewhat sad story. An entertaining story of how twelve brothers and sisters managed to keep their home, after the sudden death of their parents, is to be found in "The Doctor's Dozen," by Evelyn Everett-Green, while a German story of rare interest, that has run through several editions in Germany, is "Katie Von Walden, or, Langenstein and Boblingen," by Maria Malthusius.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY'S publications are as usual semi-religious in tone and instructive. The books they have prepared for the season are chiefly for girl readers who are active in Sunday-school work and make very desirable gifts. Mrs. I. H. Foster, who has attained her popularity under the pen-name of "Fay Huntington," is the author of "A Baker's Dozen," which relates in story form the practical work done by the thirteen scholars of Mrs. Arnold Symonds' Sunday-school class. "What Girls Can Do," by Mrs. H. K. Potwin, tells of the successful efforts of two children of wealthy parents in behalf of a wretched waif and a poorer schoolmate. The children's methods are original and interesting and are commended to other youthful missionaries. The problem of earning a living in a great city by a mother and her three daughters is discussed in Julia McNair Wright's story of "Adam's Daughters." "The Andersons, Brother and Sister," by Agnes Giberne, is an English story of a boy who starts in life with a determination to succeed. Its moral is found in the selfishness which comes with almost all ruling passions. Short stories for the very little ones are embraced in a volume called "Fan Fan Stories," and in the four books of The Silver Shield Series.

THE AMERICAN BOOK COMPANY call attention to a list of excellent books for the young, which are generally used as supplementary readers in schools and homes. Though they do not wear the regulation livery of the season, we know, for we have experimented with them, that they give very great pleasure to thoughtful children, being rich in the kind of information that they very much relish—such as stories about animals and birds, simple historical tales of heroic deeds, and abridged, or rather simplified editions of a number of classics like Scott's "Marmion" and "Ivanhoe," Irving's "Sketch-Book," etc. We can only mention a few of the little natural history volumes, but their names are so graphic they speak for themselves, viz.: "Book of Cats and Dogs," "Friends in Feathers and Furs," "Neighbors with Wings and Fins," "Some Curious Flyers, Creepers and Swimmers," "Familiar Animals and Their Wild Kindred," "Living Creatures of Water, Land and Air," etc.

D. APPLETON & Co.'s Christmas story-books have been written mostly for the boys, but this is no reason why the girls would not also prize and enjoy them. The author of "Little Smoke" and "Crowded Out o' Crofield"—William O. Stoddard—deals in his new volume with an exciting bit of New York City history, the anti-draft riots of 1863, which he vividly describes under the name of "The Battle of New York." The story culminates with the battle of Gettysburg, that decisive and bloody engagement being shown as seen through a Southern boy's eyes. The young boy heroes represent both sides of the Civil War, but fraternize cordially in a common danger. Their experience in the streets of New York during the dark days of which the author writes is no doubt based on facts that cannot fail to greatly interest the young readers of to-day. Another historical story, but of a much earlier period, is embraced in "Englishman's Haven," by W. J. Gordon. It is a thrilling tale of colonial times, having for its central motive the capture of Louisbourg, one of the most strongly fortified strongholds on this continent at that time, and the scene of long and fierce fighting both by the French and English. The story is told by a boy who accompanies his father on one of the English expeditions, and who has many romantic adventures among the Indians and French of Cape Breton. "Englishman's Haven" was the name first bestowed upon Louisbourg by the French—or in their dialect Havre à l'Anglais—hence the source of Mr. Gordon's striking title. Both this and the preceding story are adorned with many excellent full-page pictures; they are also printed in large, clear type, and have novel, attractive bindings. Ezekiah Butterworth tells "In the Boyhood of Lincoln" the romantic incidents of our greatest President's early life in the West as a Tunker Schoolmaster and as a volunteer in the Black Hawk War. The story possesses all the charm of style for which Mr. Butterworth is noted and which has made the "Zigzag" books so popular. It promises from its subject to be one of the classics in juvenile literature that every little boy and girl will read. Camping and fishing adventures in company with a naturalist in Florida, combining entertainment and information in equal parts, are the subjects of Charles F. Holder's "Along the Florida Reef." The reading-matter with its many illustrations comprises a great many facts that children like to know regarding fishes, shells and the various forms of marine life. The four preceding volumes are uniform in size and price and belong to the Good Books for Young Readers Series. Madame Colomb's "Hermine's Triumphs" is a charming story of French home life for girls and boys, which has passed through many editions in Paris. It is bound and gotten up uniformly with the pretty illustrated edition of "Colette" of last year.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have two famous grown-up books rewritten for young people. "The Story of the Life of Mackay of Uganda," told for boys by his sister, has only just been issued, though announced as ready in our last year's CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF. The hero's life is rich in good lessons which youngsters will easily absorb in their attractive setting of African adventure. The matter is in a large measure new and not found in the larger book "Mackay of Uganda." "The Story of John G. Paton," also told for young folks, relates the thrilling experience of an equally celebrated missionary during thirty years spent among South Sea can-ibals. It reads like a romance and is fascinating in the extreme. James Finnemore has made forty-five new full-page designs for the work.

BRADLEY & WOODRUFF'S holiday offerings are mostly in the way of stories and romances which derive their strongest attraction from their intrinsic merits rather than alluring pictures and covers—of course they are for mature children who can appreciate a good story. Russian life and character among the wealthiest class are admirably depicted in Mrs. Amelia E. Barr's "Michael and Theodora." The charming boy and girl who play the leading parts rescue their father from an unmerited banishment to Siberia. Their interview with the Czar full of artistic color. College life for young ladies is the subject of "Mrs. Ashton's New Pupil." Mrs. S. S. Robbins' characters are taken from her well-known "Rock Cove Series" and carried through a finishing-school to the end of their young careers. "Dave Lorimer's Heritage" is a book for boys. The hero is the black sheep of a wealthy English family. How his undisciplined nature develops into a noble manhood is shown by the story. The author is Evelyn E. Green. "Jack the Hunchback," by James Otis, the popular and well-known author of "Toby Tyler," is for the same class of readers. It relates the adventures of a cabin-boy and a baby, who drift away in a small boat from a ship that is supposed to be on fire. Before the baby is restored to its mother the interesting pair have an odd experience with a maiden lady living at Scarboro,

"Puss in Boots" and "A Scandanavian Jack the Giant-Killer," who are all charmingly familiar in spite of the new scenes which surround them. The illustrations are characteristic and numerous. Two pleasant stories in large type for small readers are "The Next-Door House," by Mrs. Molesworth, and "Four on an Island," by of English children, in the absence of their father and mother, go off in a boat alone, get lost and eventually land on an uninhabited island, where they play Robinson Crusoe for several days before they are rescued. A lesson for boys in search of adventure who run away from home and ship before the mast is em-

Mrs. E. T. T. Smith, formerly L. T. Meade. The first relates to a little motherless boy of nine years, whose intense interest in his neighbors is finally rewarded with the acquaintance of two little girls of his own age, who do much to cheer his lonely life. The strong line of caste between different circles of English society is illustrated in the children's parents. The second book has its scene in Brazil. A party braced in a story called "The Rovings of a Restless Boy," by Katharine B. Foot. The Children's Library is a pretty series of sixteenmo volumes in blue and white boards, embracing charming reading-matter. "The Story of a Puppet" in this series taken from the Italian of C. Collodi is delightful. With all the quaint humor and wisdom of the Italian character "Pinocchio" the wooden puppet is made to illustrate the career of a very bad boy, who only becomes a real boy of flesh and blood after his blood-curdling adventures with fairies and talking animals awaken his long-slumbering conscience. Among other volumes we have received of The Children's Library are "Irish Fairy Tales" and Alphonse Daudet's "La Belle Nivernaise," with Montégut's illustrations, Hoffman's "Nutcracker and Mouse King" and Drosines' "Stories from Fairy Land." The diminutive pictures in "The Story of a Puppet" are extremely droll and characteristic. Cassell's royal octavo volumes of "Robinson Crusoe," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Gulliver's Travels" and other nursery classics are among the handsomest at the price offered.

THE CENTURY COMPANY'S leading book for the young people is "Tom Paulding," by Brander Matthews, his first attempt in the field of juvenile literature. The boys will vote it a capital book, with its realistic talk and plays, no doubt based upon the author's own youthful experience, pictured with a delicate vein of humor that the old boys will pronounce irresistibly charming. Tom is a New York boy of to-day, who lives near the Hudson up above Central Park in a house built by his great-grandfather. In looking through some family papers he discovers a clue to a theft committed during the Revolution, by which his great-grandfather lost two thousand guineas. With two of his companions he sets out in search of this buried treasure, and has a wonderful series of adventures, that will be followed with absorbing attention to the very end. For the same class of boy readers is "Some Strange Corners of Our Country," by Charles F. Lummis. With pen and pencil are depicted twenty-two of the wonders of the Southwest. It is a book of information that possesses the rare qualities of freshness and romance. The corners and strange customs described really seem to belong to Wonderland, so marvellous are they in all their details—but Mr. Lummis has only aimed to introduce his readers to a much neglected portion of the United States. Little boys and girls are delightfully provided for in "The Admiral's Caravan," by Charles E. Caryl, and in "A Book of Cheerful Cats," by J. G. Francis. The first has its scene laid in Dreamland, the principal characters being a little girl and a wooden admiral and his companions. The adventures are somewhat in the style of "Alice in Wonderland," and are quite funny. The camel who is fed on glue and laments his hard fate in verse recalls some of he poetical effusions of the latter book. The author made his mark in this line several years ago with "Davy and the Goblin." The present story is reprinted from St. Nicholas, with all of Birch's charming illustrations, and is bound in gray cloth, with the admiral and part of the aravan stamped in gold and colors on the cover. Every one who knows Francis' cats, and we think they are as familiar as Palmer Cox's "brownies," can imagine how funny is his "Book of Cheerful Cats and Other Animated Animals." The nonsense verse and funny pictures of which it is made up were mostly taken from St. Nicholas and other periodicals, though some new material has been added. Cats and kittens are the principal characters depicted, and the pranks they play on each other, and occasionally on little boys and girls, will furnish much amusement to the young folks for whose benefit the pretty volume has gotten up. A new edition of the popular "St. Nicholas Songs" is among the many Christmas good things prepared by this house. The bound volumes of St. Nicholas for 1892 are as ever among the most desirable of gift-books.

"WHERE DID YOU GET THIS?"

From "Tom Clifton." (Copyright, 1892, by Thomas Y. Crowell & Co.)

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUBLICATION SOCIETY offer an excellent list of unsectarian story-books for the young people. Almost all the new volumes have a strong central historical motive, or devote considerable space to the consideration of some of the many social problems which are absorbing the attention of young church workers. "Marjoribanks," by Elvirton Wright, presents a heroine who is the only child of a widowed mother. Mrs. Pomeroy, fearing "Marjoribanks" is becoming too self-centred, suggests that her sixteen-year-old girl should take a child from the slums of a city to care for. The story of this little waif, as its nature is developed through love and tender care, is full of helpful hints. The chief figure in "Neighbors in Barton Square," by Mrs. Alice Eddy Curtiss, is a hard-working little dressmaker whose sad life is brightened by her kind neighbors, among whom she comes as an utter stranger. "Dr. Lincoln's Children" is rich in fun and frolic. Kate W. Hamilton tells in this story of the experience of the children of a country doctor who has an unexpected opportunity to spend a year in Europe, the children being sent in their parent's absence to an uncle, who lives upon a farm. The farm furnishes many opportunities for pleasure and profit, which the wide-awake young Lincolns use to the full. For young people who are self-dependent Joy Allison has written a very helpful story in "Billow Prairie," which, with the history of a large and shiftless family, gives lifelike pictures of certain phases of pioneer life. The heroine of "In the Vulture's Nest," by Mildred Fairfax, is a young girl of high rank who has been brought up at the court of France by Catherine de Medici, and who remains ignorant of the Queen mother's true character until revealed by the culminating scenes taken from the massacre of St. Bartholomew. Six little volumes for young readers are embraced under the title of "Little Pharisees." Margaret Eckerson draws many telling morals from the little sins of omission and commission of which her little characters are guilty. Other books equally good might be mentioned if we had space.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. add this season to the already long list of "Famous" books by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton "Famous Types of Womanhood," which embraces full and entertaining sketches with portraits of Madame Récamier, Queen Louise of Prussia, Susannah Wesley, Harriet Martineau, Dorothea Dix, Jenny Lind and Amelia B. Edwards—all notable women who have won a world-wide fame in art, philanthropy and other fields of usefulness. Although primarily a series prepared for young readers the volumes of which it is made up may be given to any class of readers. Anyone in search of information in a condensed popular style will be charmed with this volume, one of the best yet published. Also of the instructive class is Mrs. Harriet C. Cooper's "Short Studies in Botany." The information is evolved through brisk conversations between a highly cultivated "Aunt Mary" and her admiring nieces and nephews. "Little Arthur's History of Rome" is in line with the former books. Mr. Hezekiah Butterworth's aim in writing a new history of Rome is to interest the young in the beautiful classic literature of that country. Without neglecting the bearing of recently discovered facts he especially brings out the poetic side of Roman history. Quite a number of the Crowell's books are for boys—"The Riverpark Rebellion," "Tom Clifton" and "The Cadets of Flemming Hall" having almost exclusively boy characters. Homer Greene with a slight change of names tells something of his own school-days at the Riverview Military Academy at Poughkeepsie in "The Riverpark Rebellion." School-boy life at a military academy is again the subject in Anna Chapin Ray's "Cadets of Flemming Hall" "Tom Clifton" is one of the best books of the year, with another genuine boy hero such as the author, Warren Lee Goss, immortalized in "Jed." School-boy life in Massachusetts, farming in Minnesota and army life under Grant and Sherman between the years 1861 and 1865 in such scenes as made history at Shiloh, Vicksburg and Atlanta are a few of its leading attractions. Anna Chapin Ray offers a second book for young readers of both sexes called "In Blue Creek Cañon," depicting the pleasure of a happy, wholesome group of boys and girls in a mining camp during a summer in the Rocky Mountains. "Mixed Pickles" takes its funny name from a family of German children with the romantic name of Pickel, who come to visit their Quaker grandmother and cause no end of fun and annoyance to their quiet American relatives. The author is Mrs. Evelyn H. Raymond, who has made a very amusing book, of quite a piquant flavor.

THE DE WITT PUBLISHING HOUSE (R. H. Russell & Son) publish a sequel to the delightful "Tiddledywink Tales," under the taking title of "In Camp with a Tin Soldier." "Jimmie-boy" has added two years to his age since his adventures with the Tiddledywinks, and is consequently a much brighter boy than he was at that time. His adventures in the camp of the Tin Soldiers are most amusing, and the book promises to be a very general favorite with the little people. It is illustrated by E. M. Ashe in capital style, and of course John Kendrick Bangs is the author. "The Tiddledywinck's Poetry Book," by the same writer, is a collection of nonsense verse and funny pictures of quaint and queer people by Charles Howard Johnson. Every boy in the land will want to read "In Savage Africa, or, six years of adventure in Congo-Land," by E. J. Glave. It embraces the wonderful adventures of a young Englishman of eighteen, who accompanied Stanley to the Dark Continent and remained there several years afterward, making independent explorations. The story is rich in episodes of travel in an unknown country and lessons in self-reliance. The volume is richly illustrated, Henry M. Stanley furnishing an introduction. The little books contained in the following series, published by this house, are most attractive trifles for the Christmas-tree or stocking: "The Prize Story-Books," "The Newbery Painting-Books," "The Pleasewell Painting-Books" and "The Juvenile Series."

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co.'s new juveniles consist of several quarto volumes in lithograph covers, profusely illustrated with colored plates and black and white pictures. The most ambitious is "Uncle Sam's Story World," a companion book to "A Run Round the World" of last year. It contains a collection of short stories of boys and girls of all nations. The others, also collections of short stories interspersed with poems and rhymes, are called "Daisy Chain," "Slumberland" and "In the Chimney Corner." The writers of the stories are George Manville Fenn, F. E. Weatherly, R. Ellice Mack and others.

C. T. DILLINGHAM & Co. publish a little story of thrilling adventure called "Wrecked on the Bermudas." The author is Captain W. E. Meyer, an old sea-captain of Bermuda. It purports to be a true story of the perils and adventures of three boys wrecked on one of the small uninhabited islands of the Bermuda group. The story offers a good deal of detailed information about the islands and their inhabitants and productions, and also about a sea-faring life of to-day.

DODD, MEAD & Co.'s four stories for the young people, with the exception of "Dr. Dodd's School" by James L. Ford, verge somewhat on the "grown-up" class of literature. "Dr. Dodd's School" is a capital story of American school life, the school having been in actual existence not many years ago in the Berkshire Hills. Boys will delight in it so far as it is it of the amusing and exciting doings of a houseful of boys overflowing with animal spirits and with a limitless capacity for mischief. The other stories are "Witch Winnie's Studio," a sequel to "Witch Winnie" and "Witch Winnie's Mystery," by Mrs. Elizabeth W. Champney; "A Fisher-Girl of France," by Fernand Calmettes, and a new volume, the nineteenth in the ever increasingly popular Elsie Series by Martha Finley, called "Elsie at Viamede." "Witch Winnie's Studio" has its scene in a well-known studio building in New York City in the vicinity of Washington Square. Here "Winnie" with her former schoolmates "Milly" and "Tib" live and study art, and have more than the usual amount of incident and romance in their young lives. J. Wells Champney, who made the sketches for the first volumes of this series, is again the illustrator. The heroine of "A Fisher-Girl in France" is nineteen when the story opens, and has just shipped with her twelve-year-old brother on board the sloop Bon-Pêcheur for the herring fishery. With a boy's strength and a tender and forgiving heart she has many odd experiences. The author furnishes many striking illustrations. "Elsie at Viamede" continues the history of a heroine, now "Grandmamma Elsie," who has entwined herself deeply in the affections of young readers. The scene is New Orleans, and the chief topic discussed the war of 1812. Thirteen of R. M. Ballantyne's favorite stories, put up in a box, will prove a welcome addition to the young people's library.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have one of the longest and most important catalogues of children's books in the market. It is largely made up of quartos with exquisitely colored pictures, printed in the unequalled style of Nister of Nuremberg. We can only call attention to a few of them, and cannot attempt to cover the handsomest and most attractive in doing so. "The Talking Clock," by Harriet M. Bennett, "Granny's Wonderful Chain," by Frances Browne, "Once upon a Time," by Harriet M. Bennett, "To Please Children," are all made up of verses and short stories and lovely full-page pictures of domestic animals, children at play, etc., and are enclosed in illuminated boards with a pretty design on the front cover. "Fur Coats and Feather Frocks" contains twenty-four large colored pictures of wild animals, birds, etc., with descriptive text. "Our Little Men and Maidens" represent children in picturesque fancy costumes through twelve full-page colored illustrations, which are accompanied with appropriate verses. "God Is Love" is a collection of Bible stories, with twenty-two full-page pictures printed in colors. Mrs. Mary D. Brine, so well and so favorably known to young readers, is the author of two charming little stories, which the publishers have put into dainty white and gold covers, and adorned with a series of excellent illustrations. One is a story for boys, called "Dan," which is both humorous and pathetic and not without its moral; the other, "The Little Twin Roses," is both for boys and girls, and deals with child-life in a spirit keenly in sympathy with its simple joys and woes. Uniform in size and appearance with these are the new and beautifully illustrated edition of Mrs. Ewing's pathetic "Story of a Short Life," and "To Nuremberg and Back," a girl's holiday vivaciously described by Amy Neally. Other stories in cloth bindings are "Master Bartlemy," by Frances E. Crompton, "Nobody's Business," by Edith Carrington, "The Child of the Caravan," by E. M. Green, and Helen Milman's "Boy" and "Those Children."

THE EDUCATIONAL PUBLISHING CO. call attention to a number of their supplementary reading though not in line with the regular books, are delightfully instructive which we know from experience give great pleasure to thoughtful, inquiring children. They are the "American History Stories," in four volumes, by Mara Pratt; "Stories of Industry," in two volumes, giving simple, interesting accounts of methods of mining, of manufactures, etc.; "Leaves from Nature's Story-Book," being the third volume in the Young Folks' Library of Choice Literature, and "Stories of India," volume two of People and Places Here and There Series.

ESTES & LAURIAT'S contributions to the Christmas bookshelf are generous as usual and of excellent quality. All their famous series are represented by new volumes, which carry young readers to new parts of the globe and offer a delightful melange of fact and fancy, amusement and information, adorned with innumerable pictures and done up in the most seductive covers. In anticipation of the Columbian Exposition of 1893, Ezekiah Butterworth carried his Zigzag Club over ground associated in one way and the other with the great discoverer. What it saw and did is to be found in the pages of "Zigzag Journeys on the Mississippi from Chicago to the Islands of the Discovery." "The Knockabout Club in Search of Treasure" tells how the club explored the mountains of Mexico, visiting the site of old Aztec mines, in search of the lost mines of the Montezumas. Mr. Fred A. Ober succeeds in giving a new and fresh instalment of the exciting adventures that have made the story of the Knockabout Club so dear to boy readers. "Three Vassar Girls in the Holy Land" is Mrs. Champney's latest chronicle of her three pretty, clever heroines. They travel through the East, from Egypt and the mouth of the Nile through Palestine to Jerusalem, and have many adventures, romantic and otherwise. Capt. Farrar's "Through the Wilds" is the work of an ardent sportsman, who writes from his own experience. It narrates the adventures of a party of boys, from fifteen to eighteen years of age, who go up into the wilds of Maine and New Hampshire for a summer vacation. There are vivid scenes from their camp life, and equally vivid accounts of hunting and fishing expeditions, which will inspire the boys with a most ardent longing to go and do likewise. "The Boys of the Mirthfield Academy" is one of Lawrence H. Francis' attractive tales of English school-boy life. "Tales of Ancient Troy" are the stories of the Odyssey and Iliad adapted by Walter Montgomery to the comprehension of youthful minds. "Ruby and Ruthy" is for very small girls; it is a simple narrative of the plays of two little country girls, and is from the pen of Minnie E. Paull, the author of "Prince Dimple." "At the Sign of the White Swan," by Olivia L. Wilson, is an exciting story of the mountains of Pennsylvania, founded on events that occurred there fifty years ago; a succession of exciting mail robberies forms the central motive. Hildegard Grahame, who has been the subject of two volumes, viz.: "Queen Hildegard" and "Hildegard's Holiday," is again the heroine of a story by Mrs. Laura E. Richards, entitled, "Hildegard's Home." This story carries Hildegard away from her elegant New York home, of which her father's death deprived her, to a quaint country home, where, in new surroundings, she seems to develop new virtues and graces. A new and larger edition with new illustrations of "Hildegard's Holiday" is offered to holiday buyers, and also a new illustrated edition, by the same author, of "Captain January," a charmingly pathetic story of the New England coast published two years ago. "Elfie's Visit to Cloudland and the Moon" is rich in fun and new quaint figures that the fairy "E-ma-gi-na-shun" discloses to Elfie in his Realm of Fancy. The story originally appeared in St. Nicholas, is profusely illustrated by E. J. Austen, and is from the pen of Frances Vescelius Austen. It is one of the most attractive of the many children's books we have examined. A new field is traversed in "School-Boy Days in Russia," translated by Laura E. Kendall from the French of André Laurie, and illustrated with many page pictures by G. Roux. The events are novel and startling and utterly unlike those that might happen to a school-boy of any other nation. The scene is laid in the gymnasium at Moscow, and the plot is full of surprises and sensations. Especially for this happy season are the dainty, richly set volumes of the Christmas in Many Lands Series, consisting of "Jean Noël," "Dulce's Promise," "The Little Musician" and "Lischen and the Fairy," illustrating through a characteristic story Christmas in France, England, Italy and Germany. "Chatterbox for 1892" is one of the standards that is always in demand, as are "Oliver Optic's Annual, 1892," "Little Ones' Annual for 1892," v. 2, "The Nursery—U," "Chatterbox Gallery of Pictures," "Chatterbox Menagerie of Animals," and other well-known picture-books of this house.

A DIFFICULT INSTRUMENT TO PLAY UPON.

HARPER & BROS. offer a new volume in their favorite Boy Travellers Series, viz.: "The Boy Travellers in Central Europe." Col. Knox has followed the same methods in preparing this volume as obtained popularity in the previous issues of the series. Readers will find the same characters and the same general form of talk, observation and journal-making. Dr. Bronson is less conspicuous than before, as his professional and business engagements kept him away from the party for the most of the time, but he had no hesitation in trusting the details of the journey to our old friends Frank and Fred. The devotion of the two youths to the comfort and pleasure of Mrs. Bassett and Mary is worthy of the highest admiration, and it is not to be wondered at that mother and daughter thoroughly enjoyed the journey from the first day to the last. The route covered was through France, Switzerland and Austria, with excursions among the Alps of Switzerland and the Tyrol. Great care was taken to make the descriptions historically and geographically correct, the author having personally visited all the cities, towns and places of interest included in his narrative, and having travelled over the route more than once. There are the usual maps on the inside of the covers and the familiar profusion of pictures. "Canoemates" is a companion volume to "Campmates" of last year, by the same author, Kirk Munroe. It forms a volume of Harper's Young People's Series, having been a recent feature of their popular magazine of that name. Two boys—one from New York and the other from Florida—are the heroes of a number of exciting adventures which fall to them in a canoe trip up the great Florida Reef. Other episodes have their scene in the Everglades of Florida; the Seminole Indians figure in these, and there is a hunt for a panther and an adventure with a rattlesnake. Also in this same series are two other desirable volumes, "The Moon Prince and Other Nabobs," by Richard K. Munkittrick, and "Young Lucretia, and Other Stories," by Mary E. Wilkins. They have both been popular series in Harper's Young People. The latter is a collection of stories about New England children, told with all Miss Wilkins' peculiar humor and pathos. Charles Carleton Coffin, whose "Boys of '76" and "Drum-Beat of the Nation" have served to make history particularly attractive to young readers, has prepared for the same class a new life of "Abraham Lincoln," which is profusely illustrated and uniform in style and appearance with the works mentioned. It is the result of much research and a careful comparison of existing records, and may be recommended as one of the most trustworthy and one of the most entertaining biographies of the great President yet published. The bound volume of Harper's Young People for 1892 is a delightful present for all the children in the household. Boys and girls find it a never-ceasing resource when in search either of information or amusement. It contains the pen efforts of our best writers and the artistic efforts of our finest artists.

PORPHYRE AND THE CIRCUS HORSE.

From "School-Boy Days in Russia." (Copyright, 1892, by Estes & Lauriat.)

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co.'s new illustrated edition of Hawthorne's "Wonder-Book for Girls and Boys" is a splendid specimen of color-printing. Walter Crane, with whom the work had long been a favorite, selected it for illustration on his recent visit to the United States. That he has done his work con amore may be seen by the splendid designs in color that he has made for the book. Besides the frontispiece, title-page, initials and head and tail pieces he has designed twenty magnificent full-page illustrations exquisitely drawn and full of the classical feeling suited to Hawthorne's delightful rendition of the classical myths. The reproductions are wonderful to those who have compared them with the originals. The graceful head and tail pieces are designed to bear some illustrative relation to the text or symbolic allusion to the story. The artistic merits of this work will probably be most thoroughly appreciated by older people, though children cannot help being delighted with the book, too. A limited edition de luxe is in the market for lovers of fine and rare works. Both editions express Walter Crane's ideas from cover to cover, as even the details of binding, lining-paper, etc., are due to his taste and conception. This is the only important work in this classification we have to mention for this firm, but they have several little books whose fine literary quality specially recommends them for the children's book-shelf. One in particular is Frank Dempster Sherman's "Little-Folk Lyrics," a collection of charming lyrics for each month of the year, with forty other poems full of out-door life. They are fragrant with flowers and tell of Nature's changeable moods, of birds and animals and plants, and are stimulating in a rare degree to young minds. Agnes Repplier contributes to the Riverside Library for Young People "A Book of Famous Verse," for which she has selected a great variety of the very best British and American poems.

HUNT & EATON have always an excellent collection of juveniles, chiefly of a religious character, and specially suitable for gifts to Sunday-school scholars or libraries. They have recently issued Mrs. S. S. Robbins' popular stories of girlish struggles and aspirations as the Dale and Hillside Series, in ten volumes uniformly bound and boxed. The Alert Stories are a set of books for little folks from four to eight years old. There are eight of these little volumes of verses and stories, profusely illustrated and prettily bound. "A Tiff with the Tiffins," by Frances I. Currie, is a simple story for little children which conveys a wholesome lesson. A book for boys of all ages is Dr. Young's "Stories from Indian Wigwams," while their sisters will find equal pleasure and profit in "Miss Millie's Tryings," a story of two lonely and "literary" sisters, who endeavor to make a living by writing. It is by Mary E. Bamford, who is evidently familiar with the trials and humors of the situation she describes.

JOSEPH KNIGHT COMPANY have some charming books for little readers, several of which are old favorites in fresh holiday attire. "Winkle and Wrinkle" and "The Two Blizzards," both by Lynde Palmer, are attractive volumes of short stories for boys and girls, plentifully sprinkled with illustrations. "Ouida's" charing story of "The Nürnberg Stove," and its little master has been issued in a small quarto with fifty original illustrations and a color frontispiece showing the important stove itself. Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" have been illustrated by the celebrated French artist, H. Pille, and brought out in two volumes bound in half vellum, cloth and silk. Another very pretty book is "Old Friends with New Faces," photogravures from original studies of children, illustrating the Rhymes of Mother Goose.

LAIRD & LEE have a children's encyclopædia of poetry, containing well-chosen extracts from writers of past and present times. It is entitled "Royal Echoes," and comes in two styles of attractive binding.

LEE & SHEPARD have a delicious piece of fooling in Ingersoll Lockwood's new wonder-book, "Baron Trump's Marvellous Underground Journey," its keen wit and original humor adapting it to the entertainment of readers old and young. Little Baron Trump and his famous dog Bulger set out to find the entrance to the interior of our world, which the learned Dom Fum of the fifteenth century believed to be inhabited. The portals to "the world within a world" were discovered in Russia, and the ingenuity of Baron Trump and Bulger assisted them in making a dramatic descent into the Land of the Mikkamenkies (mica men), who are also called the Transparent Folk, where falsehood and deceit are unknown, as each one's heart may be looked into. Among other strange people found in this wonderful world one of the funniest is the "Rattlebrains, or Happy Forgetters," who considered no day well spent at the close of which they might not exclaim, "This day I succeeded in forgetting something that I knew yesterday." Such are the amusing imaginings with which Mr. Lockwood seeks to please the children, and which Charles Howard Johnson has again made real with many graphic pictures. All of Lockwood's previous wonder-books are again offered to the buying public in new covers and at a less price than formerly. "Oliver Optic"—Mr. William T. Adams—has written new volumes for the Blue and the Gray Series and All-Over-the-World Series. The first, "Fighting for the Right," is a thrilling record of the capturing of blockade-runners and suspicious Confederate ships on the Atlantic coast during the late war, in which "Christy" Passford, now Lieutenant Passford, is the leading character. The second addition,

SHE HURRIED DOWN THE PATH.

From "A Rosebud Garden of Girls." (Copyright, 1892, by Little, Brown & Co.)

"A Young Knight-Errant," describes an eventful voyage to the West Indies in Louis Belgrave's—the young millionaire's—yacht Guardian-Mother. "The Adventures of Toby Trafford," by J. T. Trowbridge, which has found many readers in its course through St. Nicholas, is issued in attractive book form with many illustrations. It is an admirable story, whose plot it would be wrong to divulge. It is what might happen in a thousand places. The hero is not an impossibly good boy, but he has manly instincts; and he is kept from follies and mistakes by the counsels of an excellent mother and of his wise and noble-hearted school-master. Effie W. Merriman, whose "Pards" and "A Queer Family" photographed a new line of social studies, has written a new story for girls called "The Conways."

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO.'s new version of the old ballad of "The Dragon of Wantly" made by Owen Wister, while especially adapted to please younger readers, possesses a sly vein of satire that the older ones will more thoroughly appreciate. The title is all that Mr. Wister has borrowed, the characters and plot being entirely his own. Like its predecessor of several centuries back "The Dragon of Wantly" is a burlesque upon the days of chivalry and the doughty deeds of its gallant knights. The "dragon" in this case is known as Francis Almoign, Knight of the Voracious Stomach and Grand Marshal of the Guild of Go-as-You-Please. He masquerades as a monk, and holds high carousals with his followers in an old monastery upon the spoils wrested from the poor. His pursuit and capture are most amusingly depicted, the entire romance being written in a capital imitation of the old-fashioned legends of the knight and the lady, the voracious dragon that demands a human sacrifice, the terror-stricken villagers, the departure for the crusades, etc. The illustrations by John Stewardson are unique and full of humor and in complete harmony with the text, carrying out its ideas with vivid appropriateness. A new illustrated edition of "The Wide, Wide World" appeals to a varied class of readers. Almost all ages have enjoyed this lovely story, and it will no doubt find in its new dress with a new generation a popularity as far-reaching as with the old. Frederick Dielman has made for the new edition a number of full-page drawings and small pen-and-ink sketches. Very youthful minds may count upon a large amount of pleasure to be derived from "Uncle Bill's Children" and "An Affair of Honor." The first is one of Helen Milman's stories, and is uniform in appearance with "Little Ladies" of last year. "Uncle Bill" is a bachelor uncle who is induced to take charge of two precocious children during a short enforced stay at the seaside. Their pranks are novel and funny, and have a most decided bearing upon a little love-affair of their much-tried uncle. "An Affair of Honor" shows how even a child may try to live up to the meaning of a noble name. "Maid Marian and Robin Hood," by J. E. Muddock, renders afresh the old legends of the fascinating hero of Sherwood Forest. "Hutchinson's Boy's Out-Door Games and Recreations," promised for last season's holiday time, has only just been issued. It is a perfect encyclopædia of games for boys, treating of swimming and bathing, athletics, boating, yachting, foot-ball, lawn tennis, lacrosse and a hundred other kindred topics. The lovely little stories written by "Ouida" for the young Prince of Naples some years ago, and collected under the title of "Bimbi," have been reissued with the old title and many new and striking illustrations by Edmund H. Garrett. "And Ebersen, the Graduate of Upsala," teaches a lesson in story form to young lads. The hero has been spoiled by over-indulgent parents, and ignores the golden opportunities of his life. André Laurie, who has written many capital books for boys, is the author. The scene is laid in Sweden. "Told After Tea" is a collection of stories illustrated with color and monotint pictures. The ever-popular fairy tales and nursery rhymes of "Puss in Boots," "Cock Robin," "Cinderella," "Old Mother Hubbard" and so on are issued in charming form, under the titles of "Treasury of Pleasant Books" and "Treasury of Old-Fashioned Fairy-Tales."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co.'s only book for the young people is "A Rosebud Garden of Girls," by Nora Perry, a collection of pretty stories about the woes and delights of a number of "sweet girl graduates in their golden hair" and other rosebuds "set with little wild thorns," who have not yet been freed from the restraints of school. The stories are called "The Cottage Neighbors," "Bessie at Boarding-School," "Maidie Grey's Afternoon-Tea," "A New-Year's Dinner-Party," "The Princess Emily" and "The Little Housebreaker." They are adorned with fourteen characteristic illustrations by F. C. Gordon.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.'s contribution to the holiday feast is "The Green Fairy-Book," the third, and we regret to hear from Andrew Lang probably the last of the fairy-books of many colors. First there was the "Blue Fairy-Book," then the children asked for more and Mr. Lang made up the "Red Fairy-Book;" and when they wanted more still, the "Green Fairy-Book" was put together. Here for the present the series will rest; but the trio of volumes are an unusually rich collection of the fairy tales of all nations, which few children that are real children would not be made perfectly happy in possessing. "The Green Fairy-Book," though offering new reading-matter, has a varied contents taken from the French, German, Russian, Italian, Scottish and English on the same lines as the other books. While a few of the stories only amuse, a majority of them teach excellent lessons in courage, generosity, unselfishness and the other virtues. The cover is green and gold, and there are numerous illustrations which are graceful and artistic, by H. J. Ford.

THE D. LOTHROP CO. have their usual bewildering array of children's books, of the same excellent quality of former seasons. A volume full of incident and travel is "Through Arctic and Tropics," by Harry W. French. With the aid of many pictures and an interest-text the young reader is carried in the wake of two energetic, wide-awake youths around the world. Boys will like this, as they will of "Jack Brereton's Three Months' Service," which Mrs. Maria McIntosh Cox tells of a boy's heroism and self-sacrifice displayed in the life of his family while his father is away at war. Another story for reading boys is "The Lance of Kanana," in which the author makes good use of the romantic history of Kanana, the brave Bedouin boy, who was the savior of Arabia from the hands of her enemies. "Down in Dixie," by Stanton P. Allen, is a winter, in which a young Northern girl takes an active part. Agnes Maule Machar, who wrote "Stories of New France," is the author. How a rich young girl, with no family ties, shared her surplus wealth with her less fortunate sisters forms the subject of Mrs. Colter's "A Gentle Benefactress." The imposing name of "Miss Matilda Archambeau Van Dorn," by Elizabeth Cumings, covers the personality of a weak little girl, who finds it difficult to live up to the brave deeds of her ancestors. "Figure Drawing for Children," by Caroline Hunt Rimmer, is invaluable for the kindergarten or home.

vivid and realistic account of life in a cavalry regiment from Bull Run to Appomattox during the late war. It is one of the brightest and most stirring accounts of the daily life of the soldier boys of '61 that has been written. "Gulf and Glacier," by Willis Boyd Allen, tells of what the Percivals did and saw in Alaska. Edward A. Rand's "Down-East Master's First School" is a quaint and amusing picture of school life in Yankee Land a generation ago. "The True Story of Christopher Columbus," written especially for young people—either boys or girls—has all the attractiveness that has characterized Elbridge S. Brooks' former books, and is thoroughly authentic. Young girls are provided for in numerous volumes of good reading. "Marjorie's Canadian Winter" describes the lively out-door games and life of a Canadian

Through simple drawings and descriptive texts, children are trained to use their pencils. Other stories on this house's list are "John North in Mexico," a story of the silver city, by Fred A. Ober; "Five Little Finger Stories," by Lucy Hamilton Warner; and "Stories from the Bible" and "Natural History Stories," adapted for the youngest readers. The bound volumes of the many favorite nursery periodicals are out in gay and brilliant attire. They include "Wide Awake—HH," "The Pansy for 1892," "Our Little Men and Women for 1892," and "Babyland for 1892."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have a new fairy tale by the author of "Sweet William" and "Little Marjorie's Love-Story"—Marguerite Bouvet, which is called "Prince Tip Top," and which is a genuine surprise, being entirely unlike her former successes. It is a jolly and healthy little bit of opera bouffe for children, full of fun and go, with a happy adjustment of fairy machinery. Miss Armstrong has entered thoroughly into the spirit of the story, and produced a series of fascinating pictures. "The Children's Life of Abraham Lincoln," by M. Louise Putnam, takes up a subject that is very popular this year. It is the third or fourth of the youthful biographies of Lincoln we have been called upon to notice, as especially gotten up for the holiday season. This one is rich in illustrations, and contains besides an excellent sketch of the life of Mr. Lincoln an admirable juvenile history of the Civil War.

MACMILLAN & Co.'s chief book belonging to this department is "Adrift in a Great City," a story of child-life under somewhat painful circumstances, by M. E. Winchester. A poor little descendant of a proud English house comes to live with his peevish maiden aunt and gouty uncle while still requiring a wet-nurse. After five years the aunt dismisses the nurse and the poor little boy is seeking for her when he finds himself adrift in a great city. He meets kind friends among poor people and helps support them by playing the violin, and all ends happily. The volume contains illustrations by G. P. Jacomb Hood. "Stories from the Greek Comedians," by the Rev. Alfred J. Church, illustrates the three schools of Greek comedy—the old, the middle and the new—the stories being taken from Aristophanes, Philemon, Diphilus, Menander and Apollodorus. They have sixteen illustrations after the antique with black background and figures in terra-cotta. In "The Siege of Norwich Castle," by M. M. Blake, the events occur in England in the year 1073, and relate to the last struggle against the Norman conqueror. Ralph de Guader left his castle in the hands of his countess and his knights while he went to fight elsewhere. The countess held the castle for three months against the forces of the Norman conqueror, but was compelled by hunger to surrender. "The Girls and I," by Mrs. Moleworth, illustrated by L. Leslie Brooke, will prove as great a favorite with the class of young people to whom it is addressed as "Nurse Hetherdale's Story." "St. Dunstan's Clock" by E. Ward, the author of "A Pair of Originals," is a story of 1666.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co.'s "Beautiful Lax of Nod" should find many purchasers on an author's name, Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox being one of the most popular of Western writers. She has written a collection of poems and prose stories specially suitable for reading to the little men and maids of the nursery. They have been very generously illustrated by the publishers.

THOMAS NELSON & Sons have an armful of books—a dozen or more—any one of which is sure to charm the lucky boy or girl to whom it is given. They are all delightful English stories of home and the English colonies and of different epochs of English history. Mrs. Evelyn Everett-Gree, a most prolific writer of children's stories, is the author of three of the more important volumes, all of an historical interest. In "The Church and the King" she has written a tale of England in the days of Henry VIII. with its opposing religious movements; "In the Wars of the Roses" she introduces the restoration of Henry VI. the struggles of the Houses of York and Lancaster and the succession of Edward IV. "The Lord of Dynevor" is a tale of the time of Edward the First; a pretty romance is woven into all three stories, brightened with its ardent scenes of love and friendship and episodes of self-sacrifice and chivalry the often sad and dreary descriptions of political and religious conflict. "The Iron Chain and the Golden" by Mrs. Charlotte Tucker ("A. L. O. E."), has for its central motive the history of two opposing factions of the Church of Rome in the days of the early Saxon kings—love being the "golden" chain, and the absence of it, or a celibate's life, the "iron" chain. Of more recent date and interest is "The Victoria Cross," by Maurice Gerard whose hero is a gunner in the British navy, wins the Victoria cross in a brave encounter with Zulus, loses it through another act of bravery, and then regains it in a strikingly dramatic episode. "The Merchant's Children," by Eleanor Stredder, presents a delightfully realistic picture of Hankow, the great tea-market of China. "The little people, Greville and Cordelia," "the merchant's children," have no end of odd adventures among the quaint natives of the Celestial Kingdom. "The Children's Voyage to the Cape," by Sarah L. Lindlater, is an interesting story of two helpful children who went from England to Cape Town, South Africa. "The Hot Swamp," a romance of old Albion, with many page pictures and no end of stirring adventures, will find many appreciative readers with the boys. It is from the pen of that prolific writer R. M. Balantyne. "Little Lives, and Threads of Gold to Guide Them," an allegory after the style of the "Pilgrim's Progress," presents in attractive setting, beautiful Bible precepts and promises. The children in the nursery are provided with suitable reading-matter, in highly decorative covers and with the embellishment of many pictures, colored and otherwise, in "Hans in Luck," "Favorite Rhymes and Riddles" and "Favorite Tales and Stories." Fairy tales that delighted many former generations are given in these volumes a new and beautiful setting.

THE PENN PUBLISHING CO. have one of Horatio Alger, Jr.'s, books for boys called "The Young Boatman." In it is related in a most interesting manner the experience of a bright, brave, manly boy, who supports his mother and himself by rowing passengers across the Kennebec River. To add to his trials his disolute stepfather, unexpectedly released from a term of imprisonment, appears upon the scene and contributes greatly to the discomfort of the hero. But he successfully combats all his perplexities, and in the end is on the high road to success.

PORTER & COATES make additions to their War Series by "Harry Castlemon," to the Wild-Woods Series by Edward S. Ellis, and offer a new book from the popular and prolific writer, Horatio Alger, Jr. Mr. Alger's book is entitled "Digging for Gold," and is a tale of early California days, with an energetic young hero, who runs away from a cruel stepfather. He is a Connecticut boy of sixteen, living in Iowa, when he conceives the idea of going to California and gaining wealth digging gold. He is without means to carry out his plans till in a lucky moment he saves a train of cars from going over a broken bridge. The grateful passengers present him with two hundred and fifty dollars, and he starts for the gold region. In the mines and through speculation in real estate he amasses the sum of eight thousand dollars, with which he returns to his home and his mother after his stepfather's death. "Marcy, the Refugee," continues the story of Marcy Gray, the North Carolina boy, who tried so hard, but unsuccessfully, to be "true to his colors." It is the fourth volume of the War Series, and is a flattering testimony to "Harry Castlemon's" ability in writing boys' stories. It holds the attention to the very end, through all of Marcy's new experiences as a suspected sympathizer with the North to the coming of the Burnside Expedition to Roanoke Island. Ellis' new book, "On the Trail of the Moose," again introduces Nick Ribsam, the young Pennsylvania-Dutch boy, after his terrible experience in the burning forest. To regain his lost health he lives for a winter in the Maine woods, hunting moose and other large game. A very pretty edition—the Boydell Edition—of Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" deserves special mention among the juvenile literature of this house. It is edited with an introduction by the Rev. Alfred Ainger and beautifully illustrated with twenty photogravures.

JAMES POTT & COMPANY have as usual a number of attractive and wholesome books for young people. "Dorothy Darling," by Mrs. George A. Paull, the loving chronicler of "Prince Dimple's" doings, is a simple little story of the innocent ways and pretty plays of a five-year-old girl. Four good stories for boys are: "The Cruise of the Crystal Boat," by Gordon Stables; "The Quest of Jack Hazlewood," by Marion Andrews; "Tar-Bucket and Pipe-Clay," by Major Groves, and "The Captain of the Cadets," by Henry Frith. The Faith, Hope and Charity Library contains three helpful stories, and is a most acceptable gift for a young girl, while boys will find pleasure in three volumes of stirring adventure issued under the title of The Days of Nelson Library. Another set of three prettily bound volumes includes "The Little Colonists," "The Young Governess" and "Rollica Reed."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS' Story of the Nations Series is for old and young, though prepared originally for young readers. The volumes have already become classics in the household, that all its members take turn in dipping into. The new volume, "The Story of Sicily—Phœnician, Greek and Roman," is of special interest as among the last literary work of Edward A. Freeman, who died just as the volume was going through the press. The history of Sicily is one of the longest and most unbroken histories in Europe. It has never been a nation in itself, but rather the meeting-place of many nations—hence its story is interwoven with those of nearly every country of the European continent. Mr. Freeman's narrative ends with the Roman Conquest, and it was his intention to write a second volume carrying the history of the island down to the time when it was merged into the new Italian kingdom. The "last of the Schoolmen and the first of the English Reformers," "John Wyclif," is the subject of the latest volume of the Heroes of the Nations Series, a companion series to the Story of the Nations Series, and one of equal popularity. Lewis Sergeant tells his story, and the volume is rich in pictures and portraits. Mr. Joseph Jacobs, the editor of the English Folk-Lore, follows up his "Celtic Fairy Tales" of last Christmas with a selection from the brilliant and fervid fancy of the East under the title of "Indian Fairy Tales." It will both entertain children and interest students of folk-lore. Mr. J. D. Batten illustrates the volume with plates, cuts and initials, embracing that grace and humor in the combination of which he is unique among book illustrators of the day. In the popular Rail and Water Series the new volume by Kirk Munroe is "Cab and Caboose," the story of a railroad boy. From the time Rod Blake wins the bicycle race and becomes the proud possessor of the Railroad Cup, all through the narrative with its thrilling adventures and escapes from wreck, fire, robbers, tramps and, worse than all, from an attempt to fasten a crime upon him, the boy readers (and surely girls, too) will not find a dull page. The illustrations are spirited and effective and from original designs. A number of stirring and dramatic stories are embraced in "Heroic Happenings," the latest volume in the Tales of Heroism Series. They are told in verse and story, and are from the graphic pen of E. S. Brooks. The first story, entitled "The Last Conquistador," tells how a boy gave up his life in defence of his post in Spanish Louisiana at the time of the American invasion. Other stories deal with the boyhood of Columbus, the true story of Cassabianca, and so on. Among the poetical pieces is the story of "The Boy's Crusade." They are all full of color and action, and cannot fail to interest bright young people.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. continue Prince Dimple's adventures in a new quarto volume. "Prince Dimple on his Travels," illustrated with many pictures taken from photographs of episodes in the life of an actual real little boy. Older readers are provided for in a pretty story of London life in the Strand by Sarah Dowdney called "The Child of the Precinct," and in "Godiva Durlough," a domestic tale by the same writer. Their new issues in the Charmers Series are "Aunt Liefy," by Annie Trumbull Slosson, the author of "Fishin' Jimmy," "Gentleman Jim," by Mrs. E. Prentiss, "The Old House at Four Corners," "Six Little Princesses," "The Las' Day," by Imogen Clark, and "Story Lizzie Told."

THE FLEMING H. REVELL Co. have an apparently endless list of story-books for young people of all ages and both sexes. Among the more recent ones are the issues of the Maple Leaf Series, the last volume of which, "For France and Freedom," written by Emma Leslie, is a very charming story of the French Revolution, in which the reader gets a clear and readable account of the early stages of that eventful period; the Pine Cone Series, to which "Des-and-go-one," by E. Blanch Hayward, has just been added, a story which finds reason for existence in the power of Christianity to transform life by removing even from the young unlovable qualities; and the Oak Leaf Series in which Edward Garrett's story, "Not By Bread Alone," has just been included. The volumes of all the series named are handsomely decorated in harmony with the title of the series—that is either with maple leaves, oak leaves or pine cones. Beside these we would mention "Ragged Simon," by Florence E. Burch; "Ina and Kitty," by Harriette E. Burch; "Katherine and I," by Mrs. Cooper; "Iltid's Friend," by Constance Cuming; "Broken Lights," by the author of "A Fellow of Trinity"; "The Child of the Ganges," a tale of the Judson Mission, by the Rev. R. N. Barrett, and "Bush Luck," an Australian story by M. Timperley. The annual bound volumes of Boy's Own Paper, The Leisure Hour, The Sunday at Home, and The Girl's Own Paper are perfect treasure-houses of pleasure and profit. They are rich in verses, short tales, serials and papers on many varied subjects, amusing and instructive. They are wonderful resources for dull and rainy days, and also for Sunday afternoons at home, as they contain suitable religious reading.

ROBERTS BROS.' list of books for young readers embraces at least a half dozen new specimens of the lovely stories that the imprint of this firm's name has made famous. "Under the Water-Oaks," apparently from a new writer, Marion Brewster, has its scene in a part of Florida that knows nothing of the cold winds of charming, as is also that of his playmates, who are real Southern boys, and no imitations. An active Northern boy enlivens the story towards the end, and there is a pleasant promise of further books about all the young people. That "Dear Daughter Dorothy" and "Betty, a Butterfly," have a successor should be welcome news a Northern winter. The little heroes live outdoors, their chosen play-ground being under the shade of the water-oaks. They sometimes hunt small game and have quite serious adventures. Their devoted companion is a cunning little ducky, whose exuberant spirits pervade the story; his talent for imitation and his wise and witty "Brer-Rabbit" talk are most cleverly photographed—for there can be no doubt the child has a living prototype. His dialect is to the many who have laughed and wept over these pretty stories. Miss Plympton calls her new book "The Little Sister of Wilfred." Twin sisters taken from a Home for Friendless Children and adopted when babies into families in directly opposite ranks of life, play the leading parts with humor and cleverness. "Wilfred" becomes the much-loved daughter of wealthy, cultured people; her "little sister," the "slavey" of a third-rate boarding-house, her touching, vivid individuality recalling Dick Swiveller's "Marchioness." How these two infant Dromios meet again after twelve years, recognize one another through their exact resemblance and agree to exchange experiences for a while—the princess becoming the "slave" and the "slave" the princess—is a pretty "comedy of errors" with a tender vein of real love and goodness that is beautifully told. As the author is again her own illustrator, the pictures necessarily represent her exact conception of her own characters. In "The Story of Juliette" an imaginative and lonely little French girl contrives much amusement for herself out of ordinary surroundings. She "makes believe" as successfully as "Sara Crewe." She is an "Enchanted Princess," a large and hideous blue dragon that adorns her father's gateway being her keeper; her father is the dethroned King driven from his kingdom by an angry parent, and she, the Princess, is waiting for her true knight. Her little romance materializes with an exactitude rarely known outside of Fairyland, although these scenes are acted in an out-of-the-way French village. The knight appears at St. Servans in the guise of an English lawyer; the blue dragon is slain—that is, broken by accident—and a will found in its capacious stomach which restores to the King his lost estates, and releases the Enchanted Princess from the thralldom of poverty and obscurity. Herbert D. Ward in "The Captain of the Kittiwink" relates the amusing experiences of two boys and a dog who go on a voyage along the New England coast in an old-fashioned fishing-boat and with an old-fashioned skipper. "More Good Times at Hackmatack" is an addition to Mary P. W. Smith's Jolly Good Times Series, and describes the doings on a New England farm fifty years ago, such as gathering maple syrup, husking corn, fishing and other pleasures that young ones could take a part in. Susan Coolidge's present to the youngsters is a prettily illustrated book of poems, entitled "Rhymes and Ballads for Girls and Boys." The Roberts Brothers include also among their juveniles two lovely stories by the author of "Miss Toosey's Mission," which, in our judgment, can scarcely come under this heading, although they are very delightful reading. Young people of eighteen or twenty or their elders might be made the recipients of either of them, but they are over the heads of children. They are called "Dear" and "Baby John," and both have the tender, pathetic touches so familiar in the author's writings. "Dear" begins the lives of two unconventional children and carries them through to middle age, and includes a sad love-story. "Baby John" is a tale of married life—of separation, misunderstanding and reconciliation.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have a handsome line of standard juveniles, stoutly bound in cloth and illustrated with full-page color plates from designs by Harrison Weir, Walter Crane, John Tenniel, Sir John Gilbert and other prominent artists. There are ten of these color pictures in each volume and numerous wood-cuts are scattered through the text. The series is entitled Routeledge's Colored Classics, and includes the old-established favorites "Robinson Crusoe," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Gulliver's Travels," "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Æsop's Fables," Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," and "Mother Goose's Nursery Rhymes," which are always welcome gifts. They also have G. A. Henty's thrilling story of "The Boy Colonists" and their Australian experiences.

TOUCHSTONE AND AUDREY.

From Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare." (Copyright, 1892, by Porter & Coates.)

F. J. SCHULTE & Co.'s only child's book "Vic, the Autobiography of a Fox-Terrier," by Mrs. Marie More Marsh, is a story that will appeal particularly to the little ones, but which older people will also appreciate. The illustrations are by Foerster, and there is a portrait of the heroine of the story engraved from a photograph which shows that the story is not altogether fiction. It is a story of a dog, as "Black Beauty" is a story of a horse, but it is by no means an imitation.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS are fortunate in being the publishers of several of the most popular of American writers. This season they offer new volumes from Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, Rossiter Johnson and Rebecca Harding Davis. Add to this goodly array the names of G. A. Henty and Robert Leighton, well-known writers from the other side, whose books are included in their catalogue, and we have a rare collection from which to choose. "Giovanni and the Other" is one of the most charming and sympathetic of Mrs. Burnett's recent writings. It is the initial story of a volume of stories about "children who have made stories," and gives the title to the volume.

"Giovanni" was a handsome Italian boy with a beautiful voice, who finally became a great tenor, and whom Mrs. Burnett met at San Remo while yet her sorrow for her own handsome boy was very new. His singing interested and consoled her, and she helped him to a career in the name of her own "Leo." This is not the only bit of autobiography. In "The Boy Who Became a Socialist" Mrs. Burnett again figures in connection with her second son, "Geof," in an amusing and instructive little sketch. Indeed something of the much-loved author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be found in all the stories, as the childish characters whose simple deeds they chronicle were real children and were more or less known to Mrs. Burnett. Princes and peasants are among their number—rare beauty and sympathy being shown in the treatment of their little histories. The spirit with which Mrs. Burnett was animated in writing this volume is indicated in her preface. "Remembering," she says, "that to my own childhood the story of a child whom as a real, living creature had a special fascination, I have put some of these sketches into words, trying to give them the color which surrounded them and made them stories and pictures to me, thinking that perhaps other children may like to read of small creatures who were as real as themselves, and not only beings of the imagination." The nine full-page illustrations which are part of this handsome volume are from the pencil of Reginald B. Birch, whose artistic efforts in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and "Sara Crewe" gained him deserved credit. New editions of these popular stories are in order for mention here. "The Clocks of Rondaine" is one of Frank R. Stockton's happiest efforts. Its quaint humor will probably be more appreciated by the older readers than the younger ones.

But for the latter there are plenty of story and incident. "The Clocks of Rondaine" is the opening story of a collection of seven, and illustrates with much sly humor the base ingratitude that is often the only reward of the would-be reformer. The little girl who endeavors to set aright "the clocks of Rondaine" discovers not only that the people of Rondaine prefer to have their clocks wrong, but that her own clock, that she has always believed infallible, is not correct. "The Christmas Truants," the fourth story in the collection, is very amusing. The "truants" are good little boys, who tire of the regulation Christmas and run away from school. In their travels they capture a band of robbers, whom they make sack a village and burn a town and do other horrible things for their entertainment. But in the end they find that a robber's life is a great deal more stupid than anything they had left behind them, and conclude to go back to school and enjoy what is left of the Christmas fun. So in each story some whimsical idea is elaborated with a matter-of-fact seriousness that has a very funny effect. Mr. Stockton's volume is uniform with "Giovanni and the Other," and illustrated in the same style by E. H. Blashfield, W. A. Rogers, D. C. Beard and others. The little hero of "The End of a Rainbow," by Rossiter Johnson, believes that a crock of gold is buried in the earth at the end of the rainbow that points earthward, and proceeds with much energy and a small retinue of devoted followers to find it. Though his efforts are not crowned with the success he sought, he does discover that the world is a very big place and that experience in any field is not to be despised. Robert Leighton has written a story of the Norse invasion of Scotland between 1262 and 1265 in "The Thirsty Sword." A fair picture of the times is offered, and the tone of the book is wholesome and manly. The "sword" received its characterization from the number of victims it had slaughtered, and as its bloody course receives no interruption in the hands of Earl Kenric, who seeks to revenge the death of his father, Hamish, a former king of Bute, it may be imagined thrilling incidents are not lacking. The new "Henty" books of this house are "Condemned as a Nihilist," a story of escape from Siberia; "In Greek Waters," a story of the Grecian war of independence (1821-1827); and "Beric, the Briton," a story of the Roman invasion, the time being during the reign of Nero. These three stories are unusually rich in adventure, and have a special charm for spirited, imaginative boys. They are well illustrated. We must not forget to mention Rebecca Harding Davis' story of life in Virginia seventy years ago, entitled "Kent Hampden." With many racy scenes and characters, a boy's spirited defence of his father's good name is vividly pictured. The story is very real and thoroughly American. Prof. Boyesen's "Boyhood in Norway" are charming stories of boy-life in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

SEARLE & GORTON have issued in inexpensive and attractive style some excellent new books for young people. "Afloat and Ashore," a stirring story by Dr. Edward Everett Hale; "Old Grip the Crow," a delightful bird autobiography, by Olive Thorne Miller, and "Mother Goose's Christmas Party," a practicable and amusing Christmas comedy, by Abby Morton Diaz, should win many appreciative readers. "Jay," by Ruth Hayes, known as a contributor to St. Nicholas and other juvenile publications, is a touching story of "a little hero worshipper who was himself a hero." "Anton and Antoine," whose history is chronicled by Rosalie Kaufman, were two frolicsome ants, who played and quarrelled in a semi-human manner. "Gypsy, the Story of a Dog," is by Helen Ekin Starrett, who shows a remarkable sympathy for the sufferings of our dumb friends, and "Midshipman Davy" is a thrilling story of Revolutionary times, by the popular Willis J. Abbot. An entirely new book for young olks, which has received enthusiastic commendation, is "A Slumber-Long," by Nina Lillian Morgan, who calls it "a story of a young girl, by a young girl, for young girls, and all girls and boys, young and old." It is a pretty tale of a young girl adversely situated, hungering for culture and congenial surroundings, but with no apparent possibility of satisfying her aspirations; yet she keeps sweet and dutiful through all, and finds that opportunity comes to all at last.

THE FREDERICK A. STOKES Co. show some beautiful work from the gifted Maud Humphrey, that old and young alike may enjoy. Taking a number of the dear old fairy tales, she has made a series of twenty-four plates which charmingly illustrate them, and which have been most artistically reproduced, the color printing having all the delicacy and clearness of the original water-color designs. This she calls "Maud Humphrey's Book of Fairy Tales," and it is most truly "her book," as she has given the old stories a fresh setting in her own words. A second book is made up of selections from this one and is called "Favorite Fairy Tales." It contains about half the matter of the first and is proportionately cheaper. The famous "Bunny Stories" originally published in the St. Nicholas, are collected into a volume with this title. The little characters in the stories are all "bunnies"—good, home-sheltered "bunnies"—who think, act and talk like little children. They were written by Mr. John H. Jewett to console his own little girl for the loss of two pet rabbits, and not only afforded her endless delight, but a large circle of her little acquaintances. The binding is attractive and unique; it is in cloth, with a frame on the front cover, enclosing a white panel on which appears the figure of Father Bunny wearing a coat of bright color. "Maggie Bradford's Fair" is a sequel to "Bessie Bradford's Prize," by Joanna H. Mathews, and the fourth volume of the series of sequels to the "Bessie Books." It continues to illustrate the virtues and little weaknesses of the popular young girls who have been the chief characters in these volumes, through new scenes and incidents. A delightful book in color for little children is "Aunt Nelly's Book of Non-Such," by H. C. Finlay, comic verses and most amusing plates.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS bring out each year such a bewildering array of exquisite juveniles that "comparison" becomes doubly "odious." Each book on their list is an example of lovely art-work and attractive make-up, while some of the best writers for young people are among their authors. This year they have over a dozen new publications, any one of which will delight little people on Christmas Day. "Flowers I Bring and Songs I Sing" is a handsome quarto containing original poems by Edith Bland, Helen Burnside and Arthur Skanes. There are sixteen full-page color pictures and fourteen monochrome illustrations by Maude Goodman, Bessie Simpson and Helen Maguire. "As Told by the Butterfly" is a book of charming verse by Mary Kennard, with color and monochrome illustrations by the Brundages and other well-known illustrators. Of the same general character are "Jacks and Jills," by E. M. Chettle; "Story upon Story and Every Word True," and "Listen Long and Listen Well." Fifteen of the best tales from the "Arabian Nights" have been rearranged by Helen Burnside, illustrated with twelve full-page color plates by Mr. and Mrs. Brundage and inter-

Columbus," "We've Tales to Tell," and "Is the Sweet Summer Time."

THE UNITED STATES BOOK CO.'s editions of Grace Greenwood's lovely volumes that have for nearly thirty years entertained young readers, have many claims to attention, even among the numerous new and brilliant claimants for the youthful public's favor. They are known as "Stories of My Childhood," full of personal recollections; "History of My Pets," all about cats and dogs and other tame animals; and "Stories of Many Lands" about the children of different countries. The volumes are quartos and full of pictures.

WARD & DRUMMOND's holiday juvenile is "Sybil Trevillian," a story for girls, by Mrs. Reginald Hughes, who writes under the pseudonym "Lydon."

WARD, LOCK, BOWDEN & Co. have one of Arthur Lee Knight's books for boys, "The Rajah of Monkey Island," a narrative of stirring adventure in the Eastern seas, which embraces encounters with savannahs, a wreck and a long sojourn and numerous adventures on an island in the Indian Ocean. They have also a number of stiff-paper-covered books for the nursery, adorned outwardly and inwardly with all the colors of the rainbow. "The New A B C of Animals" will do to teach the youngsters their alphabet; "Zooland" is a perfect menagerie of animals; "Alphabet of Games" is also to teach the alphabet, and is a combination of great letters and children playing games; "Pictures from the Scriptures" gives scenes from the Old and New Testaments; "Miss Dolly's House" and "A Visit to Venice" are "shaped" books filled with good things in the way of reading and stories.

FREDERICK WARNE & COMPANY have a new story for young people by Silas K. Hocking, author of "Her Benny," etc. It is called "Where Duty Lies," and is a tale of the Cornish coast. For little readers there is "The Coming of Father Christmas," written in verse, with illustrations by E. F. Manning, and illuminated in gold and colors; "A Modern Red Riding-Hood" by C. A. Jones, author of "Little Sir Nicholas," and "Merry Moments for Merry Little Folks," a pleasant volume of attractive colored illustrations with descriptive rhymes by Rose E. May.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. have a new popular edition of that classic of juvenile literapersed with numerous monochrome and process cuts, the whole forming a charming holiday book. Other new juveniles are: "By the Light of a Nursery Lamp," "Our Friends and all About Them," "What Really Happened," "Golden Days and Silver Eves," "Story of are, "The Prince and the Pauper," by Mark Twain.

THOMAS WHITTAKER's books are always welcomed by boy and girl readers. His stories are usually English in scene and character, and are by the best English writers for young people. "At the End of the Rainbow," by Julia A. Saine, tells amusingly of an English girl's visit to America, of her experiences in Colorado and her impressions of American life. Mrs. G. Linæus Banks has written a most pleasing story of English life in "Miss Pringle's Pearls;" Miss Phyllis Penelope Pringle is a quaint, noble little old maid with an eccentric pride in her "three precious P's," which to her symbolize the "pearls" of "prudence, patience and piety." She is a lovable little woman and plays fairy godmother to her young relatives in a delightful way. Of a very different character is George Manville Fenn's story of "The Rajah of Dah;" the Rajah is a most formidable Malay ruler, who keeps half a dozen English people in virtual captivity. The two boys who are among his prisoners have many exciting adventures—crocodile fishing, tiger hunting, etc.—and the story of their dangerous experiences is most interesting. "Above-board" is also an excellent book for boys. It is a sea tale by W. C. Metcalfe, telling of the stirring adventures of a sailor apprentice on board the ship Ocean Spray, bound from Liverpool to Valparaiso. Another of Mrs. Molesworth's charming stories will be welcomed by girl readers. It is called "Robin Redbreast," but "Robin" was neither a bird nor a boy. It was an old house, with a jutting red front and veiled wings, which played an important part in the history of Jacinth Mildmay, the girl heroine of the pretty story. "Virginia Dare," an historical romance of the sixteenth century, is by E. A. B. S. Virginia was a "real person," being the first white child born in the Virginia colony, and her true history as here related, though historically exact, is full of romantic interest.

THE WORTHINGTON Co.'s handsome volume, entitled "Magical Experiments, or, science in play," by Arthur Good, is just the book for the young person who wishes to make himself agreeable and entertaining in company. It is full of instructive and amusing experiments, which are very simple and need little apparatus. The directions given enable any one to make use of the book. The new color-books that the Worthington Co. display are bright and novel in pictures and texts. Elizabeth S. Tucker is the author of several, "Little Ways and Great Plays," "For Baby and Me," "Bubbles," and "A Cup of Tea;" they are mostly verses and stories, the text printed in monotypes and the page pictures in brilliant colors; the volumes overflow with good things in the way of funny plays and quaint children and amusing reading-matter; they are especially adapted to the understanding of the inmates of the nursery. "Worthington's Annual for 1893" has its usual variety of interesting stories, biographies and papers on natural history for the young; numerous page pictures in tints, in black and white, and in colors, add to the attractive reading-matter. "The Favorite," "The Boy's Own Book" and "The Girl's Own Book" are specimen volumes of a long list of quartos full of pictures and good reading and enclosed in handsome lithographic covers that this house makes a specialty of. The "Handy Book for Boys and Girls" is a capital resource for rainy Saturdays and during the long vacation, as it contains suggestions for making all kinds and sorts of things that amuse or occupy the young people. A work for reading boys is "Our Boys in Ireland," by Harry W. French, which tells about all that can be told of the little green isle and its beautiful landscapes and romantic and amusing legends. The characters are a party of bright American boys, whose sole object is to enjoy themselves. "With Stanley in Africa" gives an exceedingly interesting and complete account of the travels and adventures of Henry M. Stanley in the Dark Continent, and tells how he found Livingstone and rescued Emin Pasha.

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co.'s annual "Sunday Reading for the Young" is as interesting for 1893 as it has been in preceding years. It is admirably adapted to amuse and interest little people on the day they must "keep still," and it will provide pleasure and instruction for more than the traditional "month of Sundays." Besides a variety of short stories, poems, songs, sketches, etc., it contains two continuous stories, "Jim," a tale of school-boy life, and "At the King's Right Hand," an historical romance. It is illustrated with a colored frontispiece, and pleasing wood-cuts are lavishly scattered throughout the text. There are also several series of Scripture texts, Bible questions and short gospel lessons. A useful gift for a boy possessed of any mechanical skill is John A. Bower's volume of clear and simple directions "How to Make Common Things." Even a lad with no experience in handling tools can with this manual and patient effort succeed in making many "things" both useful and ornamental. "The Little Doctor," by Darley Dale, a story of Swedish life, and "Farthings," a new tale by Mrs. Molesworth, will also make excellent holiday gifts. This house is the agent of the publications of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which each year publishes several attractive juveniles. "Gil the Gunner," a story of an English lad's experience in India, is by George Manville Fenn, and is therefore a stirring story of adventure. Gil Vincent, a young officer in an English regiment, is the hero, and his experiences during a native revolt in barrack and in the field are vividly described. Another story for boys is "Born to Command," by Gordon Stables, whose sea tales are always full of vim and excitement; while Mrs. Molesworth tells little readers about "The Man with the Pan Pipes" in her own charming manner.

Specialties.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have their usual large supply of exquisite booklets, Christmas cards and shaped books. Among these we briefly mention "Steps to Heaven," a box with open frame front and easel back, in which are thirty-one cards with illustrations in colors and texts for each day of the month; "Sweet Posies," a packet of six booklets cut out in the shape of baskets and bunches of flowers put up in an envelope; "Voices of Comfort," a packet of twelve leaflets of familiar hymns, with colored illustrations intended for enclosure in Christmas letters to absent friends; and "Bible Gems," twelve booklets in a box shaped like a Bible. Among new attractions for children are "Push and Pull Pictures," a mechanical color-book with movable pictures; and "Transformation Pictures," a most ingenious set of shaped and movable pictures.

JOSEPH KNIGHT COMPANY have some very pleasing photogravure calendars for 1893, of which the most striking are "Little Maids Calendar," six fetching little photogravures of little children, each page having decorative border printed in two colors; "The Four Seasons Calendar," four designs from nature with verses and calendar for three months on each separate page; "The Landscape Calendar," twelve dainty bits of landscape printed in a variety of tints, and six different kinds of "Child-Life Calendars," each having the year's calendar engraved upon it and the photogravures printed in two colors.

LEE & SHEPARD'S "All Around the Year, 1893," is as dainty as ever. It has new designs in colors by J. Pauline Sunter, printed on heavy cardboard and ornamented with gilt edges, chain tassels and ring to make it practical as well as very pretty.

L. PRANG & Co. have two calendars for the quadricentennial year, which they have christened "Columbia's Calendar" and "A Columbus Calendar." The first is made up of Walter Crane's illustrations for his charming "Columbia's Courtship," which are here put up in the shape of a monthly calendar for the wall; and the second has fourteen illustrations in color by Victor A. Searles, giving the life of the great navigator from birth to funeral, put up in fine cover, and the same illustrations again put up somewhat differently and published as "The Life of Columbus in Pictures." These publishers again have been fortunate in securing four of Miss S. A. Winn's humorous animal pictures, quite good enough to be put beside her inimitable "Prize Piggies" on some cosey nursery wall. The animals are playing games this year as follows: "Tiddley-Winks" by cats; "High-Low-Jack" by donkeys; "Whist" by owls, and "Euchre" by dogs. All the old attractions of this house are again on the counters.

THE FREDERICK A. STOKES CO. have the finest line of calendars, souvenirs, etc., they have ever offered; high praise, indeed, for this house has done much fine work in this direction ever since it began to publish. There are forty-five calendars, ranging in price from 15c. to $3, also cut-out calendars of all kinds with odd and humorous designs and metal and leather frame calendars. Many of these show facsimiles of water-color designs by such artists as Maud Humphrey, Francis Day, H. W. McVickar, and Percy and Leon Moran. Photograph frames, pen-wipers, card-cases and all kinds of little articles to be sent as souvenirs to dear absent ones are ready in great abundance. A pretty gift to a bride, or one first emerging from bridehood, is "The Wedding-Gown," a volume intended to hold and keep together the many souvenirs of the wedding-time, a sort of classified scrap-book for pieces of the bride's dresses, wedding-cards and acknowledgments, cards of callers, etc., etc., an ingenious device to keep in a get-at-able place things to be shown to every friend that calls.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS CO. have provided many Christmas novelties, among which are entirely new lines, surpassing in beauty of design, richness of material, artistic combination of color and perfection in detail of manufacture their previous great successes in this direction. Sachets, mouchoirs, glove-cases, ribbon cards, flower-pot covers, table mats with floral and landscape designs, wall-splashes decorated with high-class lithography so highly finished that it will not spoil with wet; art prints, art gem panel calendars, greeting cards, Christmas and New Year mottoes, embossed papier-maché plaques, etc., etc., are among the many articles of temptation put upon the Christmas counters.

In the following pages are described the more important of Charles Scribner's Sons' new Publications, suitable for holiday gifts. . . . .

Life and Letters of Washington Allston.

By Jared B. Flagg,
N.A., S.T.D.

In dignity and importance both as a biography and as a picture of artistic and literary life here and abroad in the first half of this century, Dr. Flagg's account of Allston's career surpasses any recent addition to American literature. It is the first adequate biography of the great American painter, being based largely upon the notes and unfinished MS. of R. H. Dana, Sr., and upon other original materials, and is enriched with reproductions of his more famous paintings.

*With 18 Reproductions of Allston's Paintings.
Large 8vo, $5.00.*

John Addington Symonds's Life of Michel Angelo.

Access to the jealously guarded Buonarroti archives has enabled Mr. Symonds, the highest authority on the Renaissance, to embody in his work much new information and to present decisive evidence on controverted points in Michel Angelo's career. His main purpose throughout is to give a complete account of the great artist's life and works and to concentrate attention upon his personality. The illustrations reproducing his great works are a valuable feature of an important book.

*With Appendices, and
Large 8vo, 2 Vols.,
$12.50.*

Mr. Page's Marse Chan.

A Tale of Old Virginia.

"'Marse Chan' has for a dozen years ranked among the very finest short stories of the century. A new illustrated edition has just appeared, beautiful in binding and letterpress and with very clever illustrations by W. T. Smedley. It makes a charming gift-book."—Boston Times.

*Illustrated by
W. T. Smedley.
Sq. 12mo, $1.50.*

The Great Streets of the World.

Each of these famous thoroughfares, besides being described by one who is thoroughly familiar by long residence and close observation with its salient features, is illustrated by an artist whose work is also distinctive. Of these illustrations there are nearly one hundred, making the volume one of the handsomest ever published.

*With 100 Illustrations.
Large 8vo, $4.00.*

Popular Edition.

Cyclopedia of Painters and Paintings.

J. D. Champin, Jr., Editor.
D. O. Perkins,
Critical Editor.

4to, 4 Vols., $20.00 net.*

"The claim that there is nothing of the kind so comprehensive as this Cyclopedia is certainly true, as regards English dictionaries of artists, and the exact plan followed here has not been adopted elsewhere. No art book of the exhaustiveness of this monumental work has been attempted in this country, and this ambitious undertaking should be appreciated by those who stand in need of a comprehensive, well-arranged and well-edited book of reference."—New York Tribune.

*A few Sets of Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians, limited edition, remaining, 4to, 3 Vols., $75.00
net.*

Scribner's New Holiday Books.

The Children of the Poor.

By Jacob A. Riis.

In the same spirit and with the same thoroughness as he portrayed the life of "The Other Half," Mr. Riis writes in his new book of the Children of the Poor, with whose conditions, social and industrial, he is perfectly familiar. The book will create as general and deep interest as did its predecessor.

8q. 12mo, $3.50.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR: How the Other Half Lives. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

Afloat and Ashore on the Mediterranean.

By Lee Meriwether.

Mr. Meriwether visited, afloat and ashore, many unfrequented places, and being a practiced and admirable narrator, observing keenly and always with a sufficient sense of the humorous, his book will prove delightful reading even to old and experienced travellers. The volume is fully and handsomely illustrated from the author's Kodak.

12mo, $1.50.

Spanish Cities.

By Chas. A. Stoddard, D.D.

"One of the delightful books of travel last year was Dr. Chas. Augustus Stoddard's 'Across Russia' [12mo, $1.50]. This season the same author gives us another no less entertaining and instructive volume. Dr. Stoddard is the ideal tourist."

—Boston Beacon.

Travels Amongst the Great Andes of the Equator.

By Edward Whymper.

"The general reader will be held to close attention by the animated, brightly-colored style of the narrative, and will even find himself unconsciously absorbing the statistics, so well are the two elements of science and adventure woven together. A volume of rare and fascinating interest to any reader."

—Chicago Times.

With 150 Illustrations.

Large 8vo, $6.00.

Three Plays.

By Henley and Stevenson.

The three plays in this volume, "Deacon Brodie," "Beau Amant" and "Admiral Guinea," are literature as well as drama, and as such will appeal to all admirers of these celebrated authors. "Excellent as acting plays, they are no less excellent to read—brave companions for a walk in the woods, for a seat by the fire."

*Leid Paper.
Rough Edges.*

Famous Women of the French Court.

By Imbert de Saint-Amant.

MARIE ANTOINETTE } 3 vols.
$3.75.

EMPERESS JOSEPHINE } 3 vols.

EMPERESS MARIE LOUISE } 4 vols.
$5.00.

DUCHESS OF ANGOULEME } 2 vols.

DUCHESS OF BERRY } 3 vols.
$3.75.

Three volumes have just been added to this wonderfully popular series of historical biographies relating to the Duchess of Berry, who was the central and brilliant figure in the courts of Louis XVIII. and Charles X.

No more acceptable holiday present could be made than a set of fifteen volumes of these charming biographies. $1.25 per volume.

"The author's bright and charming style, his faculty of seizing and representing general points, and his wealth of personal illustration make a very readable book."—Watson.

Scribner's New Holiday Books.

Dainty Volumes of Verse by Distinguished Authors.

Eugene Field. With Trumpet and Drum. 16mo, $1.00. A collection of verse for and about childhood, marked by delicate feeling and humor.

Second Book of Verse. 16mo, $1.25. Another volume of characteristic poems, witty and tender, similar to the author's popular "Little Book of Western Verse."

H. C. Bunner. Rowen: "Second Crop" Songs. 12mo, $1.25. A volume of idyls, lyrics, old-fashioned chronicles, elegies, etc., in the author's most charming vein.

Anne Reeve Aldrich. Songs About Life, Love and Death. 12mo, $1.25. "The fruit of an ideal poetic temperament."—Philadelphia Record.

Ernest McGaffey. Poems of Rod and Gun. Illustrated. Sq. 8vo, $1.75. "As studies of nature from the sportsman's point of view these poems are admirably truthful and effective."—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr. Poems. With Portrait. Complete Edition. 12mo, $2.50. "She writes nothing but what is chaste and much that is very beautiful."—N. Y. Observer.

E. S. Martin. A Little Brother of the Rich, and Other Verses. 12mo, $1.25. "Wisdom and philosophy give body to his poems, and they are made buoyant through wit and fancy."—N. Y. Sun.

George Parsons Lathrop. Dreams and Days. Cr. 8vo, $1.75. "There is in them a sincere poetic feeling. The sentiment is true, pure, and elevating."—Chicago Advance.

Charles Henry Lüders. The Dead Nymph, and Other Poems. 12mo, $1.25. "They show a rare purity, delicacy, and finish."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Two New Volumes in the Cameo Edition.

Bitter-Sweet. Kathrina.

Poems. Each with an Etched Frontispiece.

By Dr. J. G. Holland.

In the dainty Cameo Series, the Scribner's have brought out the late Dr. Holland's two most popular works. They are printed by the De Vinne Press, and each has an etched frontispiece.

Readers who already have Mr. Mitchell's 'Dream Life' and 'Reveries of a Bachelor,' Mr. Cable's 'Old Creole Days,' and Mr. Page's 'In Old Virginia,' issued in this series, will be glad to place alongside them on the shelf these latest editions. They are as pleasant to look upon as any of the small volumes of these times."—New York Times.

Per Volume, 16mo, the top, $1.25; half calf, $2.75; half levant, $3.50.

N. C. Brownell. French Art: Classic and Contemporary Painting and Sculpture. 12mo, $1.25. Mr. Brownell writes with a full knowledge and with unflinching taste of French art, his point of view being critical rather than descriptive.

L. H. Stoddard. Under the Evening Lamp. 12mo, $1.25. A series of essays on literary subjects, his method being biographical and anecdotal.

L. W. Stoddard. South Sea Idyls. Revised Edition. 12mo, $1.50. "Pathos, poetry, dramatic action and humor are all in turn shown in simple perfection."—Chicago Times.

Henry Van Dyke, D.D. The Poetry of Tennyson. With Portrait. 12mo, $2.00. "No truer and more sympathetic analysis has been made of our greatest living poet."—E. C. STEDMAN.

L. L. Stevenson. Across the Plains, etc. 12mo, $1.25. "An added interest is given to several of the papers in that they are autobiographical."—Albany Argus.

Thomas Nelson Page. The Old South: Essays Social and Political. With Portrait. 12mo, $1.25. "They afford delightful glimpses of aspects and conditions of southern life."—Congregationalist.

Six Varied and Charming Volumes of Essays.

Charles Scribner's Sons' popular new books for the young. . . . .

A New Book by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

Giovanni and the Other: Children Who have Made Stories.

With 9 full-page Illustrations by R. B. BIRCH. Square 8vo, $1.50.

An autobiographic interest attaches to the twelve stories in this book, because they relate to Mrs. Burnett's sons and to other little people whom she has known. They all have the magic charm of disclosing the beauty of child life with sympathy, pathos and humor.

"The stories are beautiful in tone and style and color."—KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

EACH CROWN 8vo, FULLY ILLUSTRATED, $1.50.

"Mr. Henty's books never fail to interest boy readers. Among writers of stories of adventure he stands in the very first rank."—ACADEMY, LONDON.

"Probably the most popular writer of boys' books in England to-day is G. A. Henty. More than thirty volumes—all based on important historical events—have already come from his pen, and there seems to be no diminution of strength or abatement of skill or interest in his work. These new volumes are handsomely illustrated."—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

NEW VOLUMES FOR 1892-93.

BERIC THE BRITON:

A STORY OF THE ROMAN INVASION.

The story of a young Briton during the reign of Nero. The tale is full of vivid pictures of savage Britain and cultured Roman life, of thrilling scenes in the arena and in the city, during that interesting period, including a description of the burning of Rome.

"The author's style is concise and vigorous, and the story claims the reader's interest at the start and retains it until the end."—Newark Advertiser.

IN GREEK WATERS:

A STORY OF THE GRECIAN WAR OF INDEPENDENCE.

The scenes of this story are laid in and near Greece during the Greek war for national independence. Horace Beveridge and his father own a well-armed schooner in which they cruise for nearly two years, sharing in numerous fights and rescues on shore and at sea.

"A capital book of adventure, full of captivating incident."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

CONDEMNED AS A NIHILIST:

A STORY OF ESCAPE FROM SIBERIA.

Godfrey Bullen, the young hero, suspected of nihilism, is sent with convicts to Siberia; and his final escape from prison life, after numerous exciting adventures, affords material for a story of extraordinary interest.

"A narrative absorbing and thrilling. The pictures of Siberian prison life give the book a peculiar interest."—Christian Advocate.

The Bard of the Dimbovitza.

Roumanian Folk Songs, collected from the peasants by HELENE VACARESCO. Translated by Carmen Sylva and Alma Strettell. With an introduction by Carmen Sylva. Crown 8vo, cloth, ornamental, $1.75.

"The strange and beautiful songs seem a real treasure-trove, a valuable addition to the literature of the world."
—Preface.

New Volumes of the Muses' Library.

THE POEMS AND SATIRES OF ANDREW MARVELL. Edited by G. A. AITKEN. 2 vols., 18mo, $3.50.

WORKS OF ROBERT HERRICK. Edited by A. W. POLLARD. With a Preface by A. C. Swinburne. 2 vols., 18mo, $3.50.

"This edition is all that it should be in annotation, type, paper and binding; and Mr. Swinburne's Preface forms, as might be expected, an admirable critical introduction."—London Times.

Old Touraine.

The Life and History of the Famous Châteaux of France. By THEODORE ANDREA COOK, B.A. With numerous illustrations, including pen-and-pencil drawings by Jane E. Cook. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $5.00.

The object of this book is to reproduce, as far as possible, an accurate picture of the old life in the châteaux long the Valley of the Loire, the most famous in the history of France, and the most beautiful examples of her art.

Lord Chesterfield's Letters.

New revised and enlarged edition. With the addition of the Characters and other Miscellanies. Six portraits. 3 vols., 8vo, $7.50.

"This is certainly a most excellent and desirable edition of Lord Chesterfield's 'Letters and Characters,' the best, indeed, in many respects, that we have seen. It includes all that was published by Lord Mahon in his four-volume edition of 1845, together with the 'omitted passages' in the letters to the Bishop of Waterford and to Chesterfield's son, which were supplied in the supplemental volume of 1853, and now first appear in their proper places. The only omission is that of the letters written prior to 1739, and a few others, for the reason that they were addressed to a mere child and 'contain merely elementary instruction.'"—N. Y. Independent.

Etruscan Roman Remains in Popular Tradition.

By CHARLES GODFREY LELAND, Hon. F.R.L.S., President of the Gypsy-Lore Society, etc. With many illustrations, and copiously decorated with head and tail pieces by the author, illustrative of Etruscan Art. Small 4to, $5.50.

No one has studied this subject more carefully than the author of this volume, who was led into it by his researches in Gypsy-lore. Many strange facts and striking conclusions are detailed here for the first time, and the work is of the highest value. It is uniform with Mr. Leland's previous volume, "Gypsy Sorcery."

Sacharissa:

Some Account of Dorothy, Countess of Sunderland, Her Family and Friends, 1617-1684. With portrait after Van Dyke. By JULIA CARTWRIGHT. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, $3.75.

The Scottish Clans and Their Tartans.

With notes and illustrations by 96 double-page colored plates. Thick crown 16mo, $1.00.

This little book contains a list of native dyes, badges of the clans, war-cries, a map of Scotland, divided into clans, and historical sketches of the ninety-six clans, with double-page reproductions in colors of the tartans worn by them.

"Cavendish" on Whist.

The International Humor Series.

Cloth elegant, crown 8vo, per vol., $1.25.

Each volume will be well and copiously illustrated; in many cases artists of the nationalities of the literatures represented will illustrate the volumes. To each volume will be prefixed an introduction critically disengaging and marking the qualities and phases of the national humor dealt with; and to each will be appended notes, biographical and explanatory.

Among the early Volumes will be the following:

THE HUMOR OF FRANCE. Translated, with an introduction and notes, by Elizabeth Lee. With numerous illustrations by Paul Frenzeny.

THE HUMOR OF GERMANY. Translated, with an introduction and notes, by Hans Muller-Casenov. With numerous illustrations by C. E. Brock.

THE HUMOR OF ITALY. Translated, with an introduction and notes, by A. Werner. With 50 illustrations, and a frontispiece by Arturo Faldi.

THE HUMOR OF RUSSIA. Translated, with notes, by E. L. Boole, and an introduction by Stepniak. With 50 illustrations by Paul Frenzeny.

THE HUMOR OF AMERICA. Edited, with an introduction and notes, by J. Barr (of the Detroit Free Press). With numerous illustrations by C. E. Brock.

To be followed by volumes representative of ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, IRELAND, CANADA, CHINA, JAPAN, HOLLAND, SPAIN, PORTUGAL, etc.

Life and Letters of Joseph Severn.

By WILLIAM SHARP. With portrait and other illustrations. Demy 8vo, $5.00.

Severn is chiefly remembered now because of his close friendship with John Keats. It was in his arms that the young poet expired at Rome in 1821.

From the Arctic Ocean to the Yellow Sea.

The Narrative of a Journey Across Siberia, Mongolia, the Gobi Desert and North China. By JULES M. PRICE, F.R.G.S. With photogravure, portrait, fac-similes and 150 illustrations. Route map. Demy 8vo, $6.00.

"A remarkably good book. . . ."—London Spectator.

"A vivid and graphic account of travels in a region still but little known."—London Times.

"An agreeable book, well illustrated, which will find many readers, and will please them."—London Athenæum.

Paraguay: The Land and the People.

Natural Wealth and Commercial Capabilities. By Dr. E. DE BOURGADE LA DARDYE, edited by E. G. Ravenstein, F.R.G.S. With numerous full-page illustrations and large colored map. Crown 8vo, $2.25.

"Dr. de Bourgade writes with full knowledge of his subject, having spent two years in Paraguay, during which, besides exploring some of its less frequented parts, he carefully examined its political, social and economic conditions."

Argentina and the Argentines.

By THOS. A. TURNER, for many years resident in the Argentine Republic. Profusely illustrated. Thick 8vo, $3.00.

"It will be read by all who wish to have some insight into the affairs of a country with whose fortunes the private affairs of a very numerous body of European investors are deeply involved."—S. Amer. Journal.

Adventures Amidst the Equatorial Forests and Rivers of South America.

Also in the West Indies and the Wilds of Florida. To which is added "Jamaica Revisited." By H. VILLIERS STUART, of Dromana, author of "Nile Gleanings," etc. With maps and illustrations, royal 8vo, $7.50.

Two Happy Years in Ceylon.

By C. F. GORDON-CUMMING. With 19 full-page illustrations and a map. 2 vols., 8vo, $9.00.

"A grand book. Nobody can read a chapter without feeling that he has been learning something he is glad to know, and which he would despair of finding in any other book. It will long be a standard work on Ceylon."—N. Y. Nation.

"Miss Cumming's work is really a magazine of interesting subjects. Two more fascinating volumes of travel have not for many years issued from the press."—N. Y. Tribune.

D. Lothrop Company's Books for the Holidays.

BEAUTIFUL GIFT BOOKS—NEW VOLUMES AND NEW EDITIONS.

Famous Pets. By ELEANOR LEWIS. Fully illustrated. 4to, cloth, $3.00.

A perfectly fascinating book, suitable for all ages. Its stories of pets embrace horses, dogs, cats, birds, etc., and describe the pets of royalty, of genius, military pets, trained animals, etc., in a bright and captivating manner. The illustrations are numerous, of special value in themselves, finely executed, and the volume will appeal to lovers of art as well as lovers of animals.

The Holy Grail. By ALFRED TENNYSON. Illustrated by W. L. Taylor. Popular Edition. 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Tennyson's noble poem was never more fitly illustrated than by Taylor's beautiful drawings. The demand for a cheaper edition has led to the issue of the 8vo, which has all the attractiveness of the de luxe, in more convenient form for popular use.

A Lost Winter. By ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS. Illustrated by Mary Cecilia Spaulding. Popular Edition. 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

A new edition of this exquisite gift-book, in a popular size, which reproduces the original illustrations with admirable effect. No more acceptable souvenir of a Southern winter can be found than this dainty volume, with its haunting melody of verse and its delicious pictures.

The Arabian Nights' Entertainments. Edited by W. L. GRIFFIS, D.D. Lothrop's Library Edition. 4 vols., 40 full-page illustrations, $6.00; half calf, $10.00.

The popularity of this first distinctively American edition of the great classic was assured from the first, by the purity of the translation and the elegant illustration, printing and binding which combined to make it attractive both to the man of letters and the general reader. The Commonwealth well says: "Not only is this the best edition of the 'Arabian Nights' for popular and library use, but it is not likely to be surpassed."

Shakespeare's Complete Works. Family Edition. 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, $2.50.

This is one of the most comprehensive editions of Shakespeare ever published, a valuable addition to the home library. It contains an appendix and glossary, a critical biography and numerous illustrations.

The Pilgrim's Progress. By JOHN BUNYAN. With an illustrated memoir by Archdeacon Allen, and Macaulay's essay on "The Pilgrim's Progress." Family Edition. Illustrated. 8vo, cloth, tinted border, $2.50.

The demand for a choice edition of this perennial favorite is fully met in the present volume.

Child Classics. Compiled by MARY R. FITCH. Beautifully illustrated. New Holiday Edition. 8vo, cloth gilt, $1.50; holiday gilt, $1.50.

This exquisite gift-book familiarizes children with the poetry of Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Bryant, Dr. Holland, etc. The full-page illustrations are exceptionally fine. One of the most taking of all the gift books for children.

Shakespeare's Twilights. Some of the brightest, daintiest gems of Shakespeare's poetry upon nature, with original and beautiful illustrations by W. L. Chaloner and H. P. Barnes. Small 4to, gilt edges, $1.00.

A perfect bijou of a book.

Rab and His Friends. By Dr. JOHN BROWN. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman. New edition of this famous classic with Bridgman's characteristic drawings, which made such a happy hit last year. Small 4to, in box, $1.00.

Old Concord: Her Highways and Byways. By MARGARET SIDNEY. New edition, enlarged by new text, and many new illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

The value and charm of this favorite gift-book have been greatly enhanced by the additions made to it. The engravings are in the highest style of art, and render the beautiful effects of light and shade, of wood and sky, with wonderful delicacy. New views of interiors are also given, which will be of interest to all admirers of Hawthorne, Emerson, etc.

Leaves from an Artist's Field-Book. By WEDSWORTH WADSWORTH. Beautifully engraved by Andrew. Oblong quarto, cloth gilt, $4.00; full morocco, $8.00.

"No man has done more than Mr. Wadsworth to familiarize the people with American landscape. In the present volume he has given us not only a dainty and choice collection of his sketches, but has fitted them to a charming accompaniment of verse, appropriate and sympathetic."—Art Folia.

The Lost Earl. With Other Poems and Tales in Verse. By J. T. TROWBRIDGE. Illustrated. New edition, elegantly bound in delicate tints, with ornamentation in silver and gold. 8vo, $2.00.

Trowbridge has well been called "The American Hood." His poetry has both the wit and the pathos of the great English humorist, and, like his, an ever-popular quality in that it deals with the joys and sorrows of the common people.

Our Early Presidents, Their Wives and Children. From Washington to Jackson. By Mrs. HARRIET TAYLOR UPTON. With one hundred and fifty portraits, pictures and autograph letters. Quarto. gold cloth, $3.00; half calf, $6.00; full morocco, $8.00.

The years of research which Mrs. Upton put into this work, and the vast amount of hitherto unknown material which she has collected, give to her book an enduring and increasing value.

The illustrations have also been largely obtained from private sources, not otherwise available.

"With its value of material and illustration, its generous get-up in paper and print, and its artistic and effective binding, it completely meets the demand for a strictly American holiday gift."—Boston Advertiser.

Out-of-Doors with Tennyson. Edited with introduction by ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. Fully illustrated. Large quarto, bound in soft tints, with scroll and medallion in silver, $2.50.

All through Tennyson's poems there are choice bits descriptive of beautiful and familiar scenes, which are almost lost in the wealth of imagery. Mr. Brooks has carefully collated these, and, illustrated by beautiful views of scenes described, they form a volume that has especial significance at the present time.

With the Birds. Selected poems from the best English and American authors, with 50 full-page illustrations by GIACOMELLI, etc. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Giacomelli is acknowledged to be the world's greatest bird painter. His charming drawings illustrate such poems as the "Skylark," Jean Ingelow's "Nightingale," etc., and make up a book so unique and beautiful as to be without a rival.

The Shakspeare Oracle; or, Wheel of Fortune. 50 cents.

A unique and dainty device in the form of a game with diagrams and text, the purpose being to familiarize young people with Shaksperian poetry, while affording them social entertainment and pleasure.

It is destined to be immensely popular.

NEW AND FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

Oliver Cromwell. By Rev. GEORGE H.

CLARK, D.D. 12mo, $1.25.

Dr. Clark was prepared by long and careful research to write a complete biography of the "Great Protector." His book will have a permanent value in literature, as an accurate record of one of the most remarkable characters known to history.

"More and more is the character of Cromwell matter of study and interest among thoughtful men. A study like Dr. Clark's will be received with general and deep interest."—Rev. E. E. HALE, D.D.

CAROLINE HUNT RIMMER. 4to, cloth, $1.00.

Nothing could be more unique than these simple drawings, by which, with the descriptive text, children are trained to use their pencils in beautiful and accurate delineations of the human figure. The book will be invaluable for the kindergarten or the home.

A Gentle Benefactress. By Mrs. J. J.

COLTER, author of "Robbie Meredith," "One Quiet Life," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

The real blessedness of giving was never more delightfully shown than in the sweet and gracious young heroine, whose joy it is to make brothers and sisters of the poor and needy and suffering. As a book for home reading and Sunday-schools it takes a high place.

Miss Matilda Archambeau Van Dorn.

By ELIZABETH CUMINGS. 12mo, 75 cents.

The little girl who answers to this imposing name finds it hard to live up to the brave deeds of her ancestors, and her natural love of fun and her democratic ideas lead her into some amusing adventures.

"An exceedingly interesting and picturesque child."—Somerville Journal.

Through Arctics and Tropics. Around the World by a New Path for a New Purpose. By HARRY W. FRENCH. Fully illustrated. 4to, cloth, $1.50; boards, $1.00.

Mr. French's wide experience in many lands has given him a capital foundation for his present lively, rollicking story of the journey of two wide-awake youths around the world. There is plenty of incident and adventure, and a touch of romance to add to the interest, and the information given concerning strange people and places is thoroughly reliable.

Jack Brereton's Three Months' Service. By Mrs. MARIA McINTOSH COX. Illustrated.

12mo, $1.25.

A story of the war as seen from the home side, that of the soldier's wife and children. It is thoroughly absorbing, and tells with thrilling pathos of the bravery, self-sacrifice and devotion of those left behind. The Charleston, S. C., News says of it: "We have seldom seen so simple, unaffected and truly realistic a story. It will be as popular at the South as at the North."

The True Story of Christopher

Columbus. By ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. Fully illustrated, bound in full illuminated covers, special design. 4to, $1.25.

A thoroughly authentic and entertaining history of the famous discoverer whose name is on every tongue in the New World. Written especially for children, it is another instance of Mr. Brooks' skill in making them happily familiar with historical incidents and characters, without the necessity for tedious study of dry text-books.

Masterpieces of Prose. 4to, $3.00.

A volume containing selections from the best and deepest thinkers of the ages; embracing orations, events of the times, history, biography, essays, fiction, etc. The authors chosen represent a wide range, and include Emerson, George Eliot, Ruskin, Thackeray, Macaulay, Webster, Gladstone, Howells, Holmes, Louisa Alcott, Matthew Arnold, Curtis, and hundreds of others.

Down in Dixie. By STANTON P. ALLEN.

Fully illustrated. 4to, cloth, $2.25.

One of the brightest, most realistic and vivid accounts of the daily life of our soldier-boys that has yet been written. It gives the details of life in a cavalry regiment from Bull Run to Appomattox, and is full of fire, fun, pathos and patriotism.

The Lance of Kanana. By ABD EL AR-

DAVAN (Harry W. French). Illustrated by Garrett. 12mo, $1.00.

The thrilling story of Kanana, the brave Bedouin boy who was called the "Deliverer of Arabia." The terrible journey across the desert is rendered with masterly realism, and the whole story glows with the courage and self-devotion of the young hero.

Gulf and Glacier. The Percivals in Alaska.

By WILLIS BOYD ALLEN, author of "The Pine Cone Series," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.00.

A charming record of an actual trip from Boston, via Canada, to Alaska and back. Novel sights and scenes and lively incidents. A bear hunt and other adventures keep the reader on the qui vive of excitement.

The Down East Master's First

School. By EDWARD A. RAND. 12mo, $1.25.

A quaint, homely and enlivening story of a young "Down Easter's" experience with his first school in a typical section of Yankee land a generation ago. It abounds in amusing descriptions, yet has an earnestness of purpose and a genuine sentiment to give it force and character.

Italian Child-Life. By MARIETTA AM-

BROSI. 12mo, 75 cents.

The author's naive descriptions of home life, the games, the fêtes, the curious customs and different kinds of work and amusement, have a delicious foreign flavor.

"Many a more pretentious book on Italy fails to convey such a vivid series of pictures of the actual life of the country."—Boston Transcript.

FICTION, FACT, AND FANCY SERIES.

Edited by ARTHUR STEDMAN.

Set Complete in Box, Ten Volumes, Cloth, $7.50; Half Calf, $20.00.

Single Volumes, Cloth, 75 Cents; Half Calf, $2.00.

MR. BILLY DOWNS AND HIS LIKES. By RICHARD MALCOLM JOHNSTON, author of "Dukesborough Tales," etc. Col. Johnston has selected a number of his most characteristic and entertaining stories, now first published in book form, for a volume of the new "Fiction, Fact, and Fancy Series." Col. Johnston is easily the dean of Southern men of letters, and the announcement of a new volume from his pen calls for no further comment.

ESSAYS IN MINIATURE. By AGNES REPPLIER, author of "Points of View," etc. A new volume of this brilliant essayist's writings, in which she discourses wittily and wisely on a number of pertinent topics. No new essayist of recent years has been received with such hearty commendation in this country or England.

WRITINGS OF CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS. Edited, with an introduction, by PAUL LECHESTER FORD. Mr. Ford has for the first time collected in one handy volume translations of those letters, etc., of Columbus which describe his experiences in the discovery and occupation of the New World. With frontispiece portrait.

SELECTED POEMS BY WALT WHITMAN. Chosen and edited by ARTHUR STEDMAN. Shortly before Mr. Whitman's death, the old poet for the first time consented to the publication of a selection from "Leaves of Grass," embracing his most popular short poems and representative passages from his longer lyrical efforts. Arranged for home and school use. With a portrait of the author.

"Mr. Stedman's choice is skilfully made."—The Nation.

"The volume represents all that is best in Walt Whitman."—San Francisco Chronicle.

AUTOBIOGRAPHIA. By WALT WHITMAN. Edited by Arthur Stedman. The story of Whitman's life, told in his own words. These selected passages from Whitman's prose works, chosen with his approbation, are so arranged as to give a consecutive account of the old poet's career in his own picturesque language. Uniform with the new edition of Walt Whitman's "Selected Poems."

THE GERMAN EMPEROR AND HIS EASTERN NEIGHBORS. By POULTNEY BIGELOW. Interesting personal notes of his old playmate's boyhood and education are given, together with a description of the Emperor's army, his course and policy since accession, and the condition of affairs on the Russian and Roumanian frontiers. With fine portrait of William II.

"A book to attract immediate and close attention."—Chicago Times.

"An interesting contribution to evidence concerning Russia."—Springfield Republican.

"The book should have a place in the library of every student of politics."—Boston Pilot.

PADDLES AND POLITICS DOWN THE DANUBE. By POULTNEY BIGELOW. Companion volume to "The German Emperor." A highly interesting journal of a canoe-voyage down "the Mississippi of Europe" from its source to the Black Sea, with descriptions of the resident nations and casual discussions of the political situation. Illustrated with numerous offhand sketches made on the spot by Mr. Bigelow.

"This is the most expressive book on the Danube and the modern Danube region that has yet been printed."—Brooklyn Times.

DON FINIMONDONE: CALABRIAN SKETCHES. By ELIZABETH CAVAZZA. Though a native and resident of Portland, Me., and belonging to an old New England family, Mrs. Cavazza early became interested in Italian matters. Few American authors have so completely captured the Italian spirit as she has done in these pictures of Italian life among the lowly. Frontispiece by Dan Beard.

"This little book is something new and rare."—Atlanta Constitution.

"The whole book has a pungent originality very grateful to the jaded reader of commonplace romance."—Christian Union.

THE MASTER OF SILENCE. A Romance. By IRVING BACHELLER. Readers of Mr. Bachelier's stories and poems in the magazines will look with interest for his first extended effort in fiction.

"A well-named story is already on the road to success. . . . Altogether the story is a strange character-study, full of suggestion, earnest in moral purpose, and worthy of attention."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"There is no let up in the intrigue of 'The Master of Silence,' and there is plot and action enough in it to construct a bookcase full of novels by Howells and James."—Cambridge Tribune.

MERRY TALES. By MARK TWAIN. The opening volume of the new "Fiction, Fact, and Fancy Series." Contains some of the author's favorite sketches, including his personal reminiscences of the war as given in "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed."

"Very readable and amusing tales they are."—New York Sun.

"Thousands will welcome in permanent form these delicious bits of humor."—Boston Traveller.

THE AMERICAN CLAIMANT. By MARK TWAIN. The most widely known character in American fiction, Col. Mulberry Sellers, is again introduced to readers in an original and delightful romance, replete with Mark Twain's whimsical humor. Fully illustrated by Dan Beard. Cloth, 8vo, $1.50.

THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER. A Tale for Young People of All Ages. By MARK TWAIN. New popular edition of this "classic" of American fiction. It is a charming romance of the life and times of Edward VI., the boy king of England, and is considered by many to be Mark Twain's best work. Pronounced by high authorities one of the best child's stories ever written. Uniform with the cheap edition of "Huckleberry Finn." Illustrated. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00.

ADVENTURES OF HUCKLEBERRY FINN. (Tom Sawyer's Comrade.) By MARK TWAIN. New cheap edition of the laughable adventures of Huck Finn and a runaway slave in a raft journey along the Mississippi. Contains the famous description of a Southern feud. Illustrated by E. W. Kemble. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00.

MOONBLIGHT, AND SIX FEET OF ROMANCE. By DAN BEARD. In "Moonlight" the artist author has brought into play all those resources of humor, imagination and sarcasm for which he is so well known, to teach under the guise of a romance the lesson of the wrongs inflicted by capital on labor. In the light of the recent events at the Homestead mills, this book seems to have been prophetic. Illustrated by the author. Cloth, 8vo, $1.00.

"A strange but powerful book."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"He does not construct a Utopia like Bellamy; the reforms he proposes are sensible and would be profitable, if greedy capital could be induced to consider and try them."—Springfield Republican.

"It is a witty, gay, poetical book, full of bright things and true things, the seer donning a jester's garb to preach in; and one may be sure, under the shrug and the smile, of the keen dart aimed at pride, prejudice, self-seeking, injustice, and the praise for whatsoever is beautiful and good."—Hartford Courant.

IN BEAVER COVE AND ELSEWHERE. By MATT CRIM, author of "Adventures of a Fair Rebel." This volume contains all of Miss Crim's most famous short stories. These stories have received the highest praise from eminent critics and have given Miss Crim a position among the leading lady writers of America. Illustrated by E. W. Kemble. Cloth, 8vo, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"A writer who has quickly won recognition by short stories of exceptional power."—The Independent.

"Miss Crim is a writer of rare dramatic power, and her relations of events in the old and new South are full of fire, picturesque description and dramatic situations."—Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

ADVENTURES OF A FAIR REBEL. By MATT CRIM. This novel is the record of a deep and passionate nature, the interest in whose story is enhanced by her devotion to a lover, also a Southerner, compelled by his convictions to take service in the Northern Army. Striking descriptions of the campaign in Georgia and the siege of Atlanta are given. With a frontispiece by Dan Beard. Cloth, 8vo, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"It is a love-story of unusual sweetness, pathos and candor."—Christian Union.

"The incidents are varied, and the interest is never allowed to flag from opening to close of this enjoyable novel."—Philadelphia Ledger.

LIFE OF JANE WELSH CARLYLE. By Mrs. ALEXANDER IRELAND. Vellum cloth (half bound), 8vo, $1.75.

A remarkable biography of a wonderful woman, written and compiled by one in thorough sympathy with her subject, from material made public for the first time. The powerful side-light it throws upon the life and character of Thomas Carlyle will make the volume indispensable to all who venerate the genius, or are interested in the personality, of the sage of Chelsea.

THE SPEECH OF MONKEYS. By R. L. GARNER. Small 8vo, with frontispiece, cloth, $1.00.

Mr. Garner's articles, published in the leading periodicals and journals touching upon this subject, have been widely read and favorably commented upon by scientific men both here and abroad. The field he enters is absolutely a new one, and he has received such encouragement from scientific and literary sources that he has determined to pursue his researches in the heart of the Tropics, the native home of the great apes.

FLOWER O' THE VINE: ROMANTIC BALLADS AND SOSPIRI DI ROMMA. By WILLIAM SHARP, author of "A Fellowe and His Wife" (with Miss Howard), "Life and Letters of Joseph Severn," etc. With an Introduction by Thomas A. Janvier, and a portrait of the author. As one of the most popular of the younger English Poets, equal success is anticipated for the first American edition of Mr. Sharp's poems. Its welcome in the American press has been most hearty. Tastefully bound, with appropriate decorative design. Cloth, 8vo, $1.50.

"This volume of verse, by Mr. William Sharp, has a music like that of the meeting of two winds, one blown down from the Northern seas, keen and salty, the other carrying on its wings the warm fragrance of Southern fields."—The Literary World.

UNDER SUMMER SKIES. By CLINTON SCOLLARD. A poet's itinerary. Professor Scollard relates, in his charming literary style, the episodes of a rambling tour through Egypt, Palestine, Italy and the Alps. The text is interspersed with poetical interludes, suggested by passing events and scenes. Coming nearer home, visits to Arizona and the Bermudas are described in separate chapters. The volume is attractively illustrated by Margaret Landers Randolph, and is most suitable as a travelling companion or as a picture of lands beyond the reach of the reader. Cloth, 8vo, $1.00.

France in the Nineteenth Century, 1830-1890.

By ELIZABETH WORMELEY LATIMER. Profusely illustrated with portraits of celebrated characters. Crown 8vo, $2.50.

In this brilliant and absorbing narrative history is made as fascinating as fiction. It is safe to say that the rapidly changing and dramatic scenes of French history, from the fall of Napoleon Bonaparte to the fall of Boulanger, have never been more vividly portrayed. Mrs. Latimer possessed exceptional facilities for acquiring information, and has brought to her task fine scholarship, ripe judgment, and a most engaging literary style. The illustrations are numerous and lend an additional interest to the work.

A History of Modern Philosophy

(From the Renaissance to the Present). By B. C. BURT, A.M. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $4.00.

The work is divided into three periods, which are subdivided into groups of authors. A brief biography of each author is given, followed by a list of his principal works and a summary of his philosophy and of his relation to the history of modern thought. The content of his philosophic system and his influence upon succeeding thinkers are then briefly stated, together with the author's own comments and criticisms. The work is alone in the field which it occupies, and is notable for the accuracy of its facts and summaries and for its perspicuous style.

Sound and Music.

By Prof. JOHN A. ZAHM. Profusely illustrated. Royal 8vo, $3.50.

The service which Professor Zahm has rendered to all intelligent readers, especially to music-lovers, by this delightful, popular, yet rigidly scientific work, cannot fail of immediate and hearty recognition. The reader is taken into the physical laboratories of the most eminent living specialists, where he is permitted to witness their experiments and examine their marvellous mechanical inventions, particularly those of Koenig. The adoption by the author of a colloquial form of address, the lavish use of illustrations, and his own genial personality combine to make his pages doubly attractive.

References for Literary Workers.

By HENRY MATSON. Crown 8vo, $3.00.

This is pre-eminently a useful book. Prepared by the librarian of a large university library, the "references" are of that discriminating and practical character which long experience with the wants of students dictates; while the author's digests and summaries of topics, which are fairly encyclopedic in their scope and treatment, show great familiarity with the subjects discussed, and remarkable power of clear and condensed statement.

The Best Letters of Shelley.

Edited, with an introduction, by SHIRLEY C. HUGHSON. Laurel-Crowned Letters. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

The Best Letters of Cowper.

Edited, with an introduction, by ANNA B. McMAHON. Laurel-Crowned Letters. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00. (In press.)

These two latest additions fully sustain the high position the Laurel-Crowned Letters Series has taken, and are issued in the same tasteful manner as the previous volumes.

The Iliad of Homer.

Translated by ALEXANDER POPE. Laurel-Crowned Verse. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt tops, $2.00. (In press.)

Paradise Lost.

By JOHN MILTON. Laurel-Crowned Verse. 12mo, gilt top, $1.00.

These two noble poems will be welcomed in the correct text and tasteful dress of the Laurel-Crowned Verse Series.

Christmas Stories from French and Spanish Writers.

By ANTOINETTE OGDEN. 16mo, $1.25.

These exquisite stories from the best French and Spanish writers cannot fail of a hearty welcome from English readers.

Marianela.

A Story of Spanish Love. Translated from the Spanish of B. PEREZ GALDOZ by HELEN W. LESTER. Tales from Foreign Lands. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

This famous series of Tales from Foreign Lands has received a rich acquisition in this exquisitely beautiful and pathetic story by the great Spanish writer, whose refined fancy and literary charms half conceal his deep insight into human nature and his profound philosophy of life.

Counterparts.

By ELIZABETH SHEPPARD. With an introduction and notes by GEORGE P. UPTON. With portraits. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt tops, $2.50.

This edition of "Counterparts" is issued in the same beautiful style as "Charles Auchester," published last year. Though music plays an important part in "Counterparts," it is still, as its title indicates, a romance of temperaments, an ideal study of contrasting characters, embellished with all those charms of imagination and picturesque descriptions for which the young and gifted idealist and romancer was so famous.

Rumour.

By ELIZABETH SHEPPARD. With an introduction and notes by HARRIET PRESCOTT SPORFORD. With portraits. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt tops, $2.50. (In press.)

"Rumour" was the last of Miss Sheppard's three most popular romances. Apart from the intrinsic merits of the story, it derives especial interest from the fact that Beethoven stands as the model of one of its characters, just as Mendelssohn was portrayed in "Charles Auchester." It is uniform with the beautiful editions of "Charles Auchester," and "Counterparts."

Other Things Being Equal.

A Novel. By EMMA WOLF. 12mo, $1.00.

The unusual theme which George Eliot chose for treatment in "Daniel Deronda" has also been selected for this attractive novel, but with a very different solution of the race-question involved. The book will have deep interest for Hebrew and Christian alike.

Cousin Phillis.

A Story of English Love. By Mrs. GASKELL. Tales from Foreign Lands. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

"Mrs. Gaskell," says George Sand, "has done what neither I nor other female writers in France can accomplish: she has written novels which excite the deepest interest in men of the world, and which every girl will be the better for reading." "Cousin Phillis" is considered by many to be Mrs. Gaskell's best piece of work. It is a distinct gain to the notable series to which it has been added.

For sale by booksellers generally, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by the publishers.

Prince Tip Top.

Fairy Tale. By MARGUERITE BOUVET, author of "Sweet William" and "Little Marjorie's Love-Story." Illustrated by HELEN M. ARMSTRONG. Small 4to, $1.25.

Miss Bouvet's latest book, "Prince Tip Top," is so utterly unlike either of her earlier ones as to give her readers a genuine surprise. In this volume she has given loose rein to a merry and rollicking humor. It is a jolly and healthy little bit of Opera Bouffe for children, full of fun and go, with a happy adjustment of fairy machine-
Miss Armstrong has entered thoroughly into the spirit of the story, and produced a series of fascinating pictures.

The Children's Life of Abraham Lincoln.

y M. LOUISE PUTNAM. Illustrated by HELEN M. ARMSTRONG. 12mo, $1.25.

No public man was ever more truly childlike nor more readily understood by children than Abraham Lincoln. The author of this work has rendered a distinct service to the children of America by writing a life of the "Martyred President," and by introducing numerous selections from Lincoln's writings has correctly gauged the power of his simple "English undefiled" to interest her youthful readers. Aside from its biographical value the book contains an admirable juvenile history of the Civil War.

A Short History of English Literature for Young People.

y ELIZABETH S. KIRKLAND, author of "A Short History of France," etc. 12mo, $1.25. "A Short History of England," "Speech and Manners," "Dora's Housekeeping," "Six Little Cooks," etc.

This volume is intended as a companion rather than a supplement to Miss Kirkland's "Short History of England," giving, with that work, a comprehensive view of the rich and manifold civilization of "the wonderful little island."

Familiar Talks on English Literature.

from the English Conquest of Britain, 449, to the Death of Walter Scott, 1832. By ABBY SAGE RICHARDSON. A new and thoroughly revised edition. 12mo, $1.50.

This work has passed through many editions, and still firmly holds its high place among works on English literature. The present edition has been thoroughly revised and printed from new plates.

Echoes from the Sabine Farm.

being Certain Horatian Lyrics Done into English by EUGENE and ROSWELL M. FIELD. With many little picturings by EDMUND H. GARRETT. Limited edition. (In press.)

To those who know the authors it is needless to say that these translations are quite free from pedantry and mere literalness; and that, while some of the lyrics are singularly perfect reproductions of the originals, others are free adaptations to the spirit, the forms, and the speech of to-day. In them the poet boldly interprets the poet.

Our Cycling Tour in England.

by REUBEN C. THWAITES, author of "Historic Waterways." Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

A charming diary of a summer's cycling tour through southern England. The author interprets what he sees with rare sympathy, investing even hackneyed themes with all the attraction of novelty.

To England and Back.

1. Winter Vacation. By CANON KNOWLES. Portrait. 16mo, $1.00.

The personality of the author will charm his legion of friends no less than the fresh and unaffected character of the book itself.

The Complete Angler.

By THE CONTEMPLATIVE MAN'S RECREATION. By ISAAC WALTON. With an introduction and notes by EDWARD GILPIN JOHNSON. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

This edition of the "Angler" will be welcomed for its quaint and appropriate dress, its easily portable size, and above all for the scholarly essay and notes which accompany it.

Thaddeus of Warsaw.

By JANE PORTER. Finely printed and bound. 12mo, gilt top, $1.25.

This edition is uniform with that of "The Scottish Chiefs" and "The Children of the Abbey," published last year, which the Boston Times pronounced beautifully bound, faultlessly printed and thoroughly admirable editions.

How Do You Spell It?

By, Words as They Look. By W. T. C. HYDE. 12mo. (In press.)

By an ingenious but exceedingly simple device the author makes you see the word, both as you ought to spell it and as you would in all probability misspell it.

Valeria,

And Other Poems. By HARRIET MONROE. 12mo, gilt top, $1.50.

"Valeria" has already won from well-known critics pronounced and cordial commendation. Miss Monroe has also been distinguished by being selected to write the "Opening Ode" for the World's Columbian Exposition, which is included in this volume.

Some Rhymes of Ironquill of Kansas.

187 pages. 12mo, $1.00.

"The Rhymes of Ironquill" are as original as the verses of James Whitcomb Riley. Both the cordial praise of W. D. Howells and the sale in other form of thousands of copies of some of these poems attest their popularity.

Eleusis, and Other Poems.

By WILLIAM RUFUS PERKINS. 16mo, $1.00.

"Eleusis" was published anonymously, in a private edition, two years ago, and made a very marked impression in the limited circle where it was known, as disclosing evidence of a new and distinctive force in American poetry. The poem has been revised and somewhat extended, and now appears with the addition of a dozen lesser poems.

Poetry of the Gathered Years.

Compiled by M. H. 16mo, $1.00.

The poems that make up this collection embody thoughts and reflections upon mature life and old age. The selections reflect the excellent taste and refined appreciation of the compiler.

Songs and Sonnets, and Other Poems.

By MAURICE FRANCIS EGAN. 12mo, $1.00.

Mr. Egan's admirers will find in this volume many of their old favorites and also the more recent fruit of that culture which has won for him so enviable a position as a poet.

Poems of Robert Browning.

His own selections. Illustrated by THOMAS McILVAINE.

Poems of Mrs. Browning.

Illustrated by FREDERICK C. GORDON.

Aurora Leigh.

Illustrated by FREDERICK C. GORDON. This volume includes a few other of Mrs. Browning's Poems besides "Aurora Leigh," and with the preceding volume of the series forms her complete works. These volumes can be had boxed together in cloth, half calf or half levant. They come separately in all the more expensive bindings referred to below.

Lady of the Lake.

Illustrated by JOSEPH M. GLEESON. MR. GLEESON visited Scotland for the purpose of making these illustrations, and his drawings have the value of great accuracy, as well as artistic merit.

The standard works previously published in this popular series are: "Lucile," "The Princess, and Other Poems," "Faust," "Lalla Rookh," "Maud, and Other Poems," "A Treasury of Favorite Poems," "The Water Babies," "The Last Days of Pompeii," "The Arabian Nights Entertainments," 2 vols., and "Tennyson's Complete Poems," 2 vols.

Each is a remarkably beautiful 12mo volume, most profusely illustrated by new half-tone engravings after original designs made especially for the work. Many of the illustrations are full-page, and the remainder are of various sizes and odd shapes, and are set in the text in the French style, with wide margins.

"Orchid" or cloth binding, $1.50.

For a full description of choice bindings, ranging from $3.00 to $5.00, and for a list of the volumes in this series that are offered in sets, in the orchid or a beautiful red and white binding, send for DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.

brose Bierce and G. A. Danziger. With illustrations by THEODOR
HAMPE. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

As a model of pure, strong English this work will compare with anything in the language, and the interest of the story itself will commend it at once to the general public. The illustrations are unusually attractive, and the typographical execution of the book is unique and original.

AN AMERICAN NOBLEMAN. A Story of the Canaan Wilderness. By William Armstrong. With illustrations by HOLME. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. No. 22 of the Ariel Library.

A charming story of life among the lowly in West Virginia. Strongly and simply told, with a charming touch of humor and a touching pathos. An American novel of decided originality.

VIC: The Autobiography of a Fox-Terrier. By Marie Moore Marsh. Illustrated by FOERSTER. Cloth, 12mo, $1.00.

This is the story of a dog, as "Black Beauty" is the story of a horse, but it is by no means an imitation. It has elements of humor and humanity which will endear the book to all readers, and particularly to the young. We issue only one book for children this year, and this one is "Vic." We confidently believe that it will prove the favorite with little ones generally, judging from the delight and the eagerness with which the story was received by the children to whom the manuscript was read before it was given to the printers.

"The successful house of F. J. Schulte is a new one, but it is turning out a great quantity of books, which are crowding from countless book-counters and news-stands the multiplied trash which used to flood the country. Many of the Schulte books are with a purpose, but he is putting before his public, too, books that show the beginning of a live native literature in the Middle West. Men like Opie Reid, whose 'Kentucky Colonel,' and 'Emmett Bonlore' have the genuine self-respecting flavor of the soil, are doing a work for American literature which cannot be lightly estimated either in its influence or in direct achievement."—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

By D. Lewis Jones, Morris Jones, Edward Ffoulkes, H. Elvet Lewis, D. Tyssil Evans, D. Davies and O. M. Edwards. Edited by Richard Lovett, M. A. With many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, boxed..... 3.30
 "Welsh pictures" is the work of ten Welshmen, among whom illustrating the beauties of Wales has been parcelled out according to the special familiarity of each. The result is a pleasing volume."—London Times.

THE EARTHLY FOOTPRINTS OF OUR RISEN LORD, Illumined.

A continuous narrative of the Four Gospels according to The Revised Version, with introduction by Rev. John Hall, D. D. Illustrated by 113 full-page half tone re-productions. Small 4to, cloth.....net 1.50
 Gilt edge, with silk book mark, boxed.....net 2.00
 Full morocco, flexible, gilt edges, round corners, boxed.....net 3.75

Pictures reflecting the best in sacred art from Raphael to the present day are scattered profusely through the book.

"To many the life of the Christ will be a new book in this form. Though beyond the introduction it contains no word except what is found in the four Gospels, yet when read continuously, without the breaks necessarily made by the different stories of the four evangelists, the narrative takes on new force and lifelikeness. The very fact that this is not our usual method of reading the Word will give it a new reality."—Golden Rule.

A GIFT OF LOVE, and Loving Greetings for 365 Days.

By Rose Porter. Long 18mo. Parti-cloth..... 1.00
 White cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.25
 Decorated silk, silver top, in box..... 1.75
 "A Gift of Love" is the work of a loving heart. It contains a text of Scripture for every day of the year with the addition of an appropriate thought in poetry of prose all bearing on the theme of love. The work must have called for a great amount of patient toil. But it has not been spent in vain, for the volume will prove a blessing to many a soul. To use it day by day for a year thoughtfully and prayerfully, must result in a rich growth in love on the part of the user. The author is well known and esteemed for her previous works' sake."—The N. Y. Observer.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE SERIES.

By Rev. F. B. Meyer, containing CHRISTIAN LIVING, THE PRESENT TENSES OF THE BLESSED LIFE, AND THE SHEPHERD PSALM. 3 vols. in box. 18mo, cloth..... 1.50
 White vellum cloth, silver top, in box..... 1.75
 D. L. Moody says: "Few books of recent years are better adapted to instruct and help Christians than those of this author. He is a man mighty in the scriptures, saturated with Bible facts and truths."

PRAYERS FROM THE POETS.

By Martha Harger. 16mo, two colored cloth, gilt top..... 1.00
 Leatherette, boxed..... 1.50
 "This volume is admirable. The Prayer are better suited to some of our moods than formal Litanies and are selected from excellent sources. The book will be a dear treasure to many hearts."—The Churchman.

KIN-DA-SHON'S WIFE.

An Alaskan Story. By Mrs. Eugene S. Willard, Home Missionary of the Presbyterian Board of America to Alaska. With illustrations. 8vo, cloth..... 1.50
 "Being a close observer and in deep sympathy with the native population in their struggles towards a Christian Civilization, Mrs. Willard has gained a more intelligent knowledge of their character, of their needs and hindrances than perhaps any other person."—Dr. Sheldon Jackson.

HEROES OF THE GOODWIN SANDS.

By Rev. Thomas Stanley Treanor. With many illustrations. 8vo, Cloth..... 1.50
 "It is a book of most engrossing interest, and as stimulating as it is readable."—The Record.
 "The deeds of daring are thrilling in the extreme. Suitable for the public library or for the home."—Times.

HENRY MARTYN, Saint and Scholar.

First Modern Missionary to the Mohammedans. 1781-1812. By George Smith, C.I.E., LL.D. With Portrait, Map and Illustrations, Large 8vo, cloth, gilt top. .... 3.00

The author has, with the skill already displayed in his life of Carey and Duff, produced in this volume what will, in all probability, become the standard life of Henry Martyn.

"Dr. Smith fills up with healthy, human detail what before lay in bare outline. We have here a Martyn who can talk, laugh, and fall in love like other people, but who, while relating himself wholesomely in this way to the rest of his fellows, in what was special to his character and his work, still rises to heights that pierce the heavens."—Christian World.

JOHN G. PATON, Missionary to the New Hebrides.

SOMETHING NEW.

MADE EQUALLY ATTRACTIVE WITHOUT AND WITHIN.

Illustrated Gift-Books of Melody and Song. Silk-Finish Binding.

There are many songs which are never forgotten. Songs old and familiar, which sing their way deeper and deeper into our hearts every time we hear them.

We have just brought out several such well-known songs, and made of them something entirely new. Taking a single song, we republish it in handsome book form, with words and music in full and with numerous full-page half-tone engravings illustrative of selections from the Stanzas. The result is something attractive enough for any centre-table. Something equally appropriate to lay upon a piano or organ. Something to please the lover of music, of poetry, or of art.

While the music of each song is given, these books are not simply music-books. They are, rather, never-to-be-forgotten poems, most artistically illustrated and illuminated by G. W. Brennan, F. M. Gregory and Joseph Lauber. Their main object is that of presentation-books, appropriate for birthdays, holidays and weddings.

There are nine of these books, comprising the following:

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY.

I WISH I WAS IN DIXIE'S LAND.

OLD UNCLE NED.

DARLING NELLY GRAY.

BLACK EYED SUSAN.

SHANDON BELLS.

BLUE BELLS OF SCOTLAND.

NEW! SUPERB! COMPLETE ATLASES.

The Graphic Atlas and Gazetteer of the World.

close study of all regions likely to be of interest. By printing both sides of the sheet the Atlas and Gazetteer together are brought into the compass of a volume no thicker than one that would contain the maps alone if they were printed in the usual fashion."

With over 220 maps, charts, plans of cities, etc., all revised to the present date. Also gazetteer with nearly 55,000 places and results of new census. By J. G. BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S., F.R.S.E. Quarto (size, 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  x 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches, half morocco, gilt top, \$7.50.

Throughout the atlas the countries of the world have been treated with fulness in proportion to their commercial importance and interest.

In the United States section a separate map is given of each of the States and Territories.

The Canadian Provinces are treated in similar detail.

These maps have been specially compiled from the latest and best Government Survey Maps, and have undergone local revision for the verification of New Counties, Townships and Railways.

The Gazetteer of the World is a valuable feature for such a book of reference. It contains entries for about 55,000 places, is compiled from the latest authorities, and is specially complete in American names.

The results of the new census have been incorporated. For compactness and portability this volume is, in proportion to its ample contents, quite unique among atlases.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

"An admirable example of mapmaking, a thorough work of art in its way, clear, compact, precise, with hardly a broken letter even to be found. . . . The States of this country, and generally the important political divisions of the world, are delineated separately, so that 128 maps afford ample details for

PUBLIC LEDGER | PHILADELPHIA.

"Of the making of new atlases there is no end, but there is always room and a warm welcome for a good and concise one. The present Atlas is both, and is a perfect example of 'multum in parvo.' The requirements of a geography should be clear maps, a full index and convenient size for handling and reference. Professor Bartholomew's book fills these conditions with perfect satisfaction. The charts are unusually numerous and complete. . . . In all there are 128 full-page plates. The same degree of care and good editing characterizes the Graphic Gazetteer, the index portion of the book. It is truly named a concise dictionary of geography, for one line is sufficient to give all the required information as to the situation of every province, city, town or village, mountain, river or stream in the four quarters of the globe."

NEW YORK TIMES.

"Another valuable Atlas from the Messrs. Nelson is called 'The Graphic Atlas.' It contains also a Gazetteer, and is edited by Mr. Bartholomew. In size it is a convenient large octavo or small folio. The comfort of having maps and a gazetteer combined and presented in not too large a volume is obvious. We should say that the volume, from its convenient form and completeness, would meet the general demand."

The Globe Hand Atlas.

A series of fifty-to maps, illustrating political, physical, commercial, astronomical and classical geography, along with sixty sectional maps of important cities and districts and a general index giving the situation, latitude and longitude of over five thousand places throughout the world. By J. G. BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S. 8vo, cloth, inked sides, $1.00.

This Atlas has been carefully prepared, and contains all recent discoveries and changes, and its physical and classical maps and other educational features make it valuable for schools and colleges.

"Comprehensive and accurately adjusted to represent the latest discoveries. . . . We have not met with a more complete book of the kind in such a cheap form, and we cordially recommend it."—The Churchman.

"An excellent book of reference for the general student, representing as it does the latest discoveries in the different departments of geography. It is in a most convenient form for the study table."—Public Opinion.

"A most valuable work in a small compass."—Journal of Commerce.

"These maps are of sufficient size and detail for all ordinary purposes. One map showing the North Atlantic steamship routes will attract special attention."—School Journal.

PUBLICATIONS

WALTER CRANE,

during his recent stay in America, furnished us with a work from his pen and brush which is one of the finest of all his many beautiful productions.

It is entitled

COLUMBIA'S COURTSHIP. A picture history of the United States in twelve emblematic designs in color, with accompanying verses. The illustrations are in full colors, in facsimile of WALTER CRANE'S original paintings. They are an allegorical history of America from the Norseman's time to the Great Chicago Fair. . . .

Columbia's Calendar Is another publication in which the above illustrations are used for a monthly calendar for the wall. . .

A Columbus Calendar Is another new publication for the coming quadricentennial. Fourteen illustrations in color by VICTOR A. SEARLES, of the life of Columbus, from birth to funeral, in fine cover in full colors. The same illustrations, elegantly bound, with accompanying historical poem, will be published as . . .

The Life of Columbus in Pictures. The pictures and decorative ornamentalions are unique and very attractive, and the work cannot fail to be very popular. . . .

Our travellers show during their second trip a number of additional publications of a highly attractive character. Among them are four humorous animal pictures by Miss S. A. WINN, the painter of our popular publication, "The Prize Piggies." The animals are attentive players of various games, as follows:

TIDDLEY-WINKS
(CATS).

HIGH-LOW-JACK (DONKEYS).

WHIST

EUCHRE

Holiday Publications of Raphael Tuck & Sons.

Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." An important gift-book. A large imperial quarto volume, superbly illustrated by Ludovic Marchetti, Lucius Rosal, and Oreste Cortazzo, in 12 colored and 12 monochrome pages, with 22 pages letter-press and numerous wood-cuts. Published in three styles of binding. A gift-book, par excellence. The beautiful illustrations have been especially designed for this work by these famous artists, and the productions have been completed in the highest class of lithography. Cloth, two colors, gold title, $5.00; cloth, fancy blocked cover, $5.00; limp morocco, gold title. $7.50.

Book of Good Wishes. Poetry and pictures by Emily Barnard. 16 pages color and 81 pages highly artistic monochrome illustrations. A magnificent gift-book, whose pictures and lines contain an endless number of good wishes, pure and noble in sentiment. Every page is a superb work of art. Bound in cloth with gold title, and spray of pansies on cover, gold edges, etc. Size 9½ x 12. $3.50. Also bound in white and pale blue, or white and pale pink, with spray of orange-blossoms on cover. Designed and most appropriate for wedding gift. $3.50.

"The School for Scandal." Sheridan's inimitable comedy, superbly illustrated by Lucius Rosal in 18 colored plates of the very highest class of lithography. A miniature world, in which the living creations of the dramatist move and speak. More interesting even than life itself, because richer in quick action, clean-cut repartee and dazzling wit. It is the Kohnoor of the stage, deserving and now receiving a costly and artistic setting. 54 pages of extra-heavy paper, beautiful letter-press, and numerous wood-cuts; new style cloth binding. Gold titles and edges. Large 4to volume, $7.50.

George Eliot, "Her Early Home." By Miss Swinnerton. The life of this wonderful genius has become the property of the world! Her books have long been its delight. Everything that reveals her first impressions, her observations of character and surroundings in early life is of absorbing interest alike to the scholar and casual reader. We find much in the youth of this Queen of English fiction that accounts for her famous characters and the shaping of her literary art. The fine illustrations vividly represent the scenes and sights of her girlhood. With portrait and numerous illustrations from her different works by G. G. Kilburne, R.I., and Patty Townsend; 16 pages colored illustrations; 86 pages monochrome; 52 pages folio; gilt edges; bound in cloth; gold stamp on cover. $3.50.

"By Mill and Stream." "Sweetest eulogies and voices of praise to Nature's charms." Culled from the "Garden of English Song." Illustrated by A. Wilde Parsons and Chas. Noakes. Poetical selections from Arthur Hugh Clough, Samuel Rogers, Thos. Miller, Wm. Shakespeare, Percy Bysshe Shelley and others. Arranged by Helen Marion Burnside. 16 full-page color illustrations. 40 pages 8vo, gilt edges, bound in cloth, gold stamp on cover, $2.50.

"Ready, Aye, Ready." Annals of military heroes. By Captain J. Percy Groves. Illustrated by Harry Payne and Arthur Payne. Dedicated by special permission to Field Marshal, H. R. H., the Duke of Cambridge, K.G. A splendid work, full of superb illustrations, with most interesting letter-press. Large 4to, 42 pages, cloth, gilt edges, $3.50.

Country Idylls. A collection of poems by Wadsworth, Lowell, Hemans and others, illustrated in monochrome and color, after the famous water-colors of Birket Foster. 36 pages, every page illustrated. Bound in cloth, stamped cover, gold title, gold edges, etc., size 10 x 7½, $1.50.

The Voyage of Columbus and the Discovery of America. A souvenir of the 400th Anniversary. The story of Columbus treated in a delightfully fresh and novel manner, which will deeply interest young and old alike. Large folio book, original poem by E. Nesbit, and 12 full-page plates of the most exquisite water-color designs by Will and Frances Brundage. Texts and pen drawings by J. Pauline Sunter. Handsome cloth binding, gold titles. $5.00.

"Characters of Charles Dickens." Portrayed in a series of twenty-four full-page colored illustrations, by Kyd. Interleaved with characteristic utterances of the most familiar creations of the author. Size 7¼ x 10¼; large octavo. "The characters of Charles Dickens are something more than fictional creations; mere creatures of the imagination. They breathe and live in real flesh and blood; they exist in our very midst; we know or seem to have known them personally." Bound in handsome cloth, gold embossed, $2.00.

"On Service." Annals of military incidents at home and abroad. By Captain J. Percy Groves. Illustrated by Harry Payne and Arthur Payne in 28 colored and 53 monochrome pages. Without exception the most superb and profusely illustrated military book ever placed upon the market. Every page illustrated in either color or monochrome. Cloth, blocked cover, gilt edges, $5.00.

"On and Off Duty." Episodes of military life. By Captain J. Percy Groves. Illustrated by Harry Payne and Arthur Payne. Dedicated by special permission to Field Marshal, H. R. H., the Duke of Cambridge. Large 4to, 38 pages, cloth, gilt edges, $3.00.

Dorothy's Island.

By Jennie M. Drinkwater,

Author of "My Lady," "Second Best," "Marigold," etc. 12mo, 433 pages.....$1.25
"Like her other works, this author has woven a touching story full of the pure love of home, free from sensationalism, and yet so interesting that one regrets while reading it any interruption that requires it to be laid aside. There is a charm about the story in its homeliness, its freedom from artificiality and its naturalness."—Sentinel.

Miss Ashton's New Pupil.

By Mrs. S. S. Robbins.

12mo, 263 pages.....$1.25
A story of college life for young ladies. This author is one of the most gifted writers in this class of book. Like her other works, this author has woven a touching story full of the pure love of home, free from sensationalism, and yet so interesting that one regrets while reading it any interruption that requires it to be laid aside. There is a charm about the story in its homeliness, its freedom from artificiality and its naturalness."—Sentinel.

Back the Hunchback.

By James Otis,

Author of "Toby Tyler." Illustrated. 12mo, 390 pages.....$1.00
There is nothing more rare and faithful to boy life than the books by this author. Whoever has read "Toby Tyler" will want this new book by Mr. Otis.

Social and Present Day Questions. Frederic W. Farrar, D.D., F.R.S.

8vo, 380 pages.....$2.00
"No man who is at all interested in the social and sociological problems of these restless and unsettled times should fail to read and ponder the thoughtful and trustworthy statements with which this book is literally crowded from beginning to end."—Ansonia Sentinel.
"A thoughtful discussion of many of the most profound problems of the day."—Spectator.

The Harvest of Yesterday.

By Emily S. Holt,

Author of "Countess Maud." A Tale of the Sixteenth Century. 12mo, 300 pages.....$1.25
Among the numerous and gorgeous figures which crowd upon the canvas of the early Reformation period, one of the most brilliant and imposing is Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. He and his have been several times chosen for the principal figures of a historical tale. But there is one episode in his life which few know—one sad and alas! true story that has scarcely come to light. That story is told in these pages.

It's Well.

By Emily Sarah Holt,

Author of "White Lady of Hazelwood," etc., etc. 12mo, 325 pages.....$1.25
The writer has succeeded in giving vivid and life-like characters to the personages in this story of five centuries ago. This insight into life so far removed from to-day is given with rare fidelity. It is rich with pictures of the ancient life of the period woven into a story of unusual interest.

Are Lorimer's Heritage.

By Evelyn E. Green.

Illustrated. 12mo, 338 pages.....$1.25
A quick-tempered, but noble-hearted fellow who is looked upon as the black sheep of a wealthy English family. His exile from home; his hard knocks and worldly discipline; his return home and the unearthing of the family skeleton make a strong and absorbing story.

PRESS NOTICES.

"Dr. Newell's ocean romances are crowded with stirring incidents and thrilling adventures, and are as vivid and true in their way as any of Clark Russell's or Herman Melville's."—Boston Transcript.

"The author is the most graceful writer of his class, and he has written nothing better than these sea stories of sailor-love and sailor-hardships."—Rochester Herald.

"From a literary standpoint, they are the best stories of life at sea ever published. There is a finish and smoothness which make every chapter fascinating."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"Life on a whaler offers good material for a boy's story, and it is not too high praise to say that 'The Fleetwing' is far and away the best of the many that have been written."—Boston Com. Bulletin.

Beautifully illustrated, printed on fine paper, bound in cloth, with handsome dies in black and gold. For sale at all bookstores. Will be mailed on receipt of price by the publishers,

The
Present for 1892
Mrs. Rorer's
Cook Book

Are you on the lookout for a Christmas present? Then bear in mind, a woman always appreciates a good cook book. She cannot have too many. And, whether it comes at Christmas or any other time, she has a warm welcome for it.

Mrs. Rorer's Cook Book is as big and generous as a Christmas heart. It is full of bursting of good cheer. Its goodness makes it the best cook book published. It is just the thing to give to mother, wife, sister, sweetheart, teacher, or friend.

Just think of a book of nearly 600 pages, and every recipe in it dead-sure. And then, there are the valuable hints on marketing, and use of left-overs! Why the cost of the book is as nothing compared to the money saved by its use.

Mrs. Rorer is thoroughly proficient in her calling. She teaches and lectures with a full and complete mastery of her subject. Her book is herself in print. She makes the beginner's way easy, and lightens the cares of the perplexed housewife. You will make no mistake in selecting this book. It will bring pleasure to some one every day in the year.

Bound in neat, presentable, oil-cloth covers. Sold by all booksellers, or we will mail it, and pay postage. Price $1.75

TWO USEFUL COOK-BOOKS.

9 Practical Methods of Utilizing Boiled Beef and the Original Recipe for Stewed Chicken. By BABET. Preface by Mme. de Fontclose. Translated from the French by A. R. 1 volume, oblong 16mo, 75 cents.

To the practical housekeeper this little manual will prove invaluable, as it not only gives the recipes for cooking beef, but also the accompanying sauces and flavorings. The recipes themselves will promote a desire for experimental cooking, both in those who know the culinary art and in those who care little for it. For the ordinary mortal who wants to live well the book is full of delightful surprises.

What One Can Do With a Chafing-Dish. A Guide for Amateur Cooks. By Miss H. L. Sawtelle. Oblong 16mo, 75 cents.

"'What One Can Do With a Chafing-Dish' tells how one can make various appetizing dishes in a chafing-dish, ranging from clams, lobsters, and various rechauffés of fish to a capitolade of turkey, with intermediate plats of vegetables, eggs, etc.—an astonishing long range of dainty dishes that the amateur cook can prepare without the heat and disorder of a kitchen stove."

"No one who has not tried it knows how much satisfaction to the palate can be derived at small cost from the use of a chafing-dish."

A Dainty Little Book on a Curious Subject.

The Story of the Token as Belonging to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. By ROBERT SHIELLS. pp. 170. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

The book contains a well and clearly written account of communion tokens so long used in the various families of the Presbyterian Church.

"It is a distinguished monument, even in its small shape, to the enthusiasm and research of a numismatist of true fire."—The Collector, N. Y.

"It is an accurate and reliable work which will amply repay the student of Presbyterian Church customs."—N. Y. Observer.

THE HOOSIER SCHOOL-MASTER.

A NOVEL.

Revised, with an Introduction and Notes on the Dialect.

By EDWARD EGGLESTON.

THIS Library Edition is issued in commemoration of the publication and sale of one hundred thousand copies of this fascinating work, which has enjoyed an undiminished popularity from the moment of its publication, and has had the honor of many translations. The questions of its merit have been settled by the public at home and abroad. THE HOOSIER SCHOOL-MASTER was the "FILE-LEADER" of the present DIALECT MOVEMENT IN AMERICAN FICTION. The great hold that this story has on the heart and mind of the public causes the sales of the Hoosier School-master to increase rather than diminish. The time has come when we may ask ourselves whether this is not ONE OF THE FEW BOOKS DES-TINED TO RANK AS CLASSICS. Mr. Eggleston has written an extended preface to the present edition giving many curious facts regarding the origin and history of this novel. The Library Edition is beautifully printed and bound, and is worthy of the world-wide fame of this most American of all American books. Cloth, 12mo. PRICE, $1.50 postpaid.

LEE IMPORTANT NEW WORK BY GEORGE BARNETT SMITH.

History of the English Parliament.

Together with an Account of the Parliaments of Scotland and Ireland. By GEORGE BARNETT SMITH, author of "The Prime Ministers of Queen Victoria," "The Life of the Right Hon. W. E. GLADSTONE, M.P.," etc., etc. ILLUSTRATED WITH FAC-SIMILES OF NUMEROUS VALUABLE HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS connected with constitutional history. In two volumes, 8vo, cloth, boxed, $6.00.

"There are no fewer than seventeen appendices, in the shape of 'Constitutional Addenda,' dealing with a great number of matters affecting Parliament and the Constitution. The work differs entirely from the many existing constitutional histories treating of the government of England at various periods. It is the first complete, consecutive record of the English Parliament as a legislative institution from the earliest times to the present day. In addition to the Parliamentary journals and official documents, all the constitutional writers of authority upon each epoch have been consulted in its preparation—a fact which will sufficiently testify to the magnitude of the undertaking."—London Academy.

A Biographical History of Guy's Hospital.

By SAMUEL WILKS, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., and G. T. BETTANY, M.A., B.Sc. Demy 8vo, cloth, gilt top, $5.00; large-paper edition, crown 4to, half morocco, limited to 100 copies, $10.00, net.

This new work aims at giving a complete history of the famous Hospital from the time of its foundation down to the present day. The book is the result of vast research, and contains much valuable information which is not to be obtained elsewhere, but, notwithstanding the scholarship it displays, it is written in a bright style, and contains many amusing medical anecdotes and experiences. Every one in the medical profession, especially those who are, or have been, connected with "Guy's," should possess this history; and the general reader will find it a work of interest and information.

Women Writers: Their Works and Ways.

A New Volume of Literary Biographies. By C. J. HAMILTON, author of "Marriage Bonds," "The Flynns of Flynnville," etc. With 12 FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

Among the celebrated authoresses dealt with in this new work are Frances Burney, Madame de Staël, Mrs. Barbauld, Hannah More, Joanna Baillie, Maria Edgeworth, Jane Austen, Miss Ferrier, Mary Russell Mitford, and other writers, the stories of whose life and literary doings are attractively set forth. The book is one which will prove instructive and pleasant reading.

The Printing Arts.

An Epitome of the Theory, Practice, Processes and Mutual Relations of Engraving, Lithography and Printing in Black and in Colors. By JOHN WHITFIELD HARLAND. WITH ILLUSTRATIONS. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

This new work should be of invaluable service to the craftsman who is engaged in any branch of the subjects with which it deals. The various departments of the Printing Arts are so dovetailed one into the other that no one who is engaged in any special branch can pretend to understand his work thoroughly unless he has considerable knowledge of the branches with which his own is in connection. These are the days in which the "mechanic" who wishes to rise must work with head as well as with hands, and no handier volume could be placed in the hands of the earnest workman than this useful handbook.

The Rajah of Monkey Island.

Or, The Adventures of a Middy in Eastern Seas. By ARTHUR LEE KNIGHT, author of "Ronald Halifax," "Jack Trevor," etc. WITH ILLUSTRATIONS by WALTER S. STACEY. Crown 8vo, cloth, gilt, $1.00.

The narrative embraces encounters with Arab slave-dhows, a wreck and a long sojourn and numerous adventures on an island in the Indian Ocean. The good tone of the writing and the absence of all coarseness make this an admirable gift-book for boys, and the spirited illustrations add to its attractiveness.

By Rev. H. N. HUTCHINSON, B.A., F.G.S., author of "The Autobiography of the Earth" and "The Story of the Hills." With 62 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

A popular account of some of the larger forms of ancient animal life, of which, says the author, "a good deal more is known than might at first be supposed." The dragons of old time, the great fish-lizards, the mastodon, mammoth, Indian monsters, American monsters, etc. are described, and numerous restorations are shown in full-page drawings.

NEW JUVENILE BOOKS.

STORIES TOLD IN AN AFRICAN FOREST.

By A. J. MOUNTENEY JEPHSON, author of "Emin Pasha and the Rebellion at the Equator." With numerous illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

The original home of "Brer Rabbit" was in the African forests, and the delightful folklore stories told by the black men around Stanley's camp-fires will be sure to attract the lovers of "Uncle Remus." In addition to these quaint tales Mr. Jephson furnishes some picturesque sketches of the strange experiences of the white explorers in the wilds of Africa.

MUM FIDGETS, and THE TWO RICHARDS.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS WHITTAKER announces "A Short History of the Prayer-Book," by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington, rector of Grace Church, New York. It will contain also an account of the rise, progress and completion of liturgical revision.

THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY has just issued Arthur Waugh's "Alfred, Lord Tennyson: a study of his life and works." The volume is attractively printed and contains a portrait and 21 illustrations from photographs specially taken for this work.

LOVELL, CORYELL & COMPANY have just ready "Sea Mew Abbey," a story of smuggling, by Florence Warden; "Mammon," an admirable story of English life, by Mrs. Alexander; also new editions of W. Clark Russell's "The Wreck of the Grosvenor" and of Minnie Gilmore's "A Son of Esau."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & CO. will publish at once Henry George's new work entitled "A Perplexed Philosopher." The forthcoming book is an attack upon Herbert Spencer's famous recantation of his equally famous utterance upon the land question in "Social Statics." Mr. George seeks to convict the expounder of the synthetic philosophy not only of inaccurate reasoning but of disingenuous assertions.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish on the 12th inst. "The Chouans," by Balzac, being the 22d of Miss Wormeley's translations from the great French novelist; "The Empty Purse," a volume of poems by George Meredith, containing among others that fantastic poem "Jump-to-glory-Jane;" and new editions of Samuel Adams Drake's "Around the Hub, a boy's book about Boston;" and W. A. Mowry's capital "Talks with My Boys."

LOVELL, GESTEFELD & COMPANY announce a new series to be entitled The Religious-Political Series, to be edited by Stephen Maybell. The volumes now ready are "Civilization Civilized, or, the process of socialism," by Stephen Maybell; "Land Currency, or, no tax," also by Stephen Maybell; a revised and enlarged edition of Prof. J. H. Patton's "The Democratic Party: its political history and influence," and "Our Silver Coinage," by John A. Grier.

TAIT, SONS & CO., 31 Union Square, N. Y., the new publishing firm, start out with the following new books: "The Diary of a Nobody," by George Grossmith and Weldon Grossmith (illustrated); "The Fever of Life," by Fergus Hume, the first of the Holyrood Series; "The Old Maid's Club," by I. Zangwill (illustrated); "My Friend Pasquale," by J. Selwin Tait, the senior partner of the firm and author of "Who Is the Man?" "The Neapolitan Banker," etc.; and "A Conquering Heroine," by "The Duchess," the first of the Shandon Series. They will issue shortly "A Battle and a Boy," by Blanche Willis Howard; "Those Girls," by John Strange Winter; "The Secret of Narcisse," a romance by Edmund Gosse; and "When I Lived in Bohemia," by Fergus Hume.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. publish to-day "The Old English Dramatists," by James Russell Lowell, edited by Charles Eliot Norton, criticising the works of Marlowe, Webster, Chapman, Beaumont and Fletcher, Middleton and Ford, of which there will also be a large-paper edition; "The Song of the Ancient People," by Edna Dean Proctor, with an introduction by John Fiske and ten colored illustrations by Julian Stott, reproduced in aquatint; "Francis Drake," a tragedy of the sea; and "The Mother, and other poems," by S. Weir Mitchell; the third volume of "A Journal of American Ethnology and Archaeology;" and the Salem Edition of "The House of the Seven Gables," uniform with the inexpensive edition of "The Scarlet Letter," which has proved such a salable book. On December 10 this house will bring out Robert Grant's "An Average Man" in the Riverside Paper Series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

P'tit homme was the sobriquet of Charles Leffor, page in the service of Count Goutran de Platere. This lad is called upon to testify as to the murderer of his master. On his evidence and that of Mathilde de Clozier is dependent a man's guilt and a woman's honor. The issues of the trial of the Baron de Clozier are sensational and surprising.

Bookworm (The): an illustrated treasury of old-time literature. [Fifth series.] N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1892.] 380 p. il. Q. cl., $3.

Like the four preceding volumes this is a treasure-house of odds and ends and rare information relating to books such as all true book-lovers enjoy reading.

Bouvet, Marguerite. Prince Tip-Top: a fairy tale; il. by Helen Maitland Armstrong. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. 7-184 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Okushee, the island kingdom of a strange people called the Cerulites, is the scene. Their king, who is desirous of marrying his daughter, consults with the queen as to how to encompass this. The result of their consultation is a birthday ball given in honor of the Princess Cerulea. To this are bidden many princes, native and foreign, notably Prince Tip-Top, on whose action the fate of the princess depends.

Boyesen, Hjalmar Hjorth. The golden calf: a novel. Meadville, Pa., Flood & Vincent, The Chautauqua Century Press, 1892. c. 230 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The moral deterioration of a young fellow with high ideals which are gradually crushed by sordid aspirations for wealth to be gained at any price, is the groundwork of the story. The country boy who leaves his New England home whole-souled and honest is drawn into the whirl of New York life, where he forgets his village sweetheart, marries an unlovely woman and develops into a brilliant, wealthy, corrupt politician. Mr. Boyesen wishes to describe the "American worship of the golden calf" and to expose the workings of "political machinery."

Briggs, N. R. American tanner; cont. improved quick methods for tanning all kinds of light skins, such as sheep, goat, dog, rabbit, etc., with or without the wool or fur; with hints how to cure skins and color wool or fur; incl. description of necessary implements and their uses. with printed key and the matter divided into sections for the testing of speed either in shorthand or typewriting. N. Y., I. Pitman & Sons, 1892. 40 p. D. pap., 30 c.

Containing actual correspondence, giving the forms and expressions generally used in the offices of railroads, law and various other branches of business. Written in the reporting style of Pitman phonography.

Butterworth, Hezekiah. Little Arthur's history of Rome from the Golden age to Constantine. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1892.] 8+256 p. map, il. D. cl., $1.25.

Aims to prepare the young reader for an interest and zest in his classical studies. The author has quoted freely the most picturesque stories of Virgil, Livy, Suetonius, and has sought to illustrate notable events by the vivid words of the Roman orators. The book is illustrated with over 100 full-page cuts and vignettes.

Clark, Imogen. The las' day; il. by S. Olivia Rinehart. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1892.] c. 4-52 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

When dissension enters the lives of Dave Tucker and his wife the couple determine to separate within a given time. The last day in the interim finally arrives, and with it comes a surprise, which is the main incident in an old-fashioned love story.

Coffin, C. Carleton. Abraham Lincoln. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] c. 10+542 p. por. il. O. cl., $3.

With the aid of innumerable pictures and from a vast amount of material Mr. Coffin has constructed a life of Abraham Lincoln specially adapted for young readers. To the great accumulation that has already been written of the greatest of our Presidents, Mr. Coffin adds his own experience. He made Mr. Lincoln's acquaintance the night following his nomination as candidate for the Presidency, and met him often afterwards in exciting periods of the war. He says "this volume is to be regarded as a sketch of the life and times of Abraham Lincoln rather than as a biography. His intellectual and moral qualities will be seen far better in the historic narration than by any analysis that might be given."

Colomb, Mme. C. Hermine's triumphs; il. by H. Vogel. N. Y., Appleton, 1892. c. 326 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Hermine is left at the age of two years and a half on the hands of a kind sea-captain, who takes her to her great-uncle in Marseilles at the request of her father, who has died on the voyage home from tropic lands. The child is badly received, and the kind "Papa-Captain" takes her into his own family and shares his poverty and loves between her and his other children. After eight years the old merchant in Marseilles repents and takes the child to his house. She is the means of bringing about the good fortunes of "Papa-Captain's" family. By the author of "Colette." A good picture of home-life in southern France.

highlands of Scotland; ed. by the brother, Maj.-Gen. J. North Crealock. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892. 40 pl., il. 4°, cl., $40.

*Dana, C. L. Text-book of nervous diseases; being a compendium for the use of students and practitioners of medicine. N. Y., W. Wood & Co., 1892. 520 p. il. 8°, (American ser. of medical text-books.) cl., $3.25.

Day, Oscar F. G. The devil's gold: the story of a forgotten race. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1892.] c. 4-309 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 21.) pap., 50 c.

In 1856 Harold Ritchie met with a disappointment in love which caused him to readily accept his Uncle John's invitation to join him in California. Immediately after the arrival of himself and a friend in that country he gets into a quarrel with a desperado which results in the death of the latter and the finding of a glass flask that had inscribed on its surface directions to the region which held the "Devil's gold." Acting on the message of the flask Harold and his companion started for this unknown country, where they have a series of startling adventures in which the people of Nahaeco (the walled country) figure extensively.

Dean, Mrs. Andrew. A splendid cousin. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1892.] c. 2+188 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 18.) cl., 50 c.

The heroine is an unpractical, selfish and ambitious English girl, who, chiefly by a charm of manner, succeeds in making all who come in contact with her believe that she is an ideal character and a musical prodigy. By these assumed traits she succeeds in almost overwhelming a womanly little cousin, whose part in a pathetic story is decidedly interesting.

Deland, Mrs. Margaret. The story of a child. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 8+226 p. D. cl., $1.

The story of the childhood of a lonely, sensitive, imaginative nature is artistically told. Little orphaned Ellen Dale lives with her grandmother in Old Chester, a beautiful corner of northwestern Pennsylvania. She is educated according to the system prevailing in that section without any regard to her peculiar individuality. The sufferings of the child from uncontrolled imagination and a hungry little heart are made vividly real to the reader. Ellen finally runs away, and her return home brings about the climax of a little romance that runs through the tale as a connecting thread.

*Dick's (W. B.) choice pieces: selected pieces for young children; incl. prologues, epilogues and recitations for Christmas, Arbor day and other anniversary exhibitions. N. Y., Dick & Fitzgerald, 1892. 16°, pap., 25 c.

*Dick's (W. B.) festival reciter: cont. select pieces and programs suitable for Washington's birthday, Fourth of July, Memorial day, Thanksgiving day, Arbor day, Christmas, Easter and May day. N. Y., Dick & Fitzgerald, 1892. 16°, pap., 25 c.

Dodge, Grace H., ed. Thoughts of busy girls, written by a group of girls, who have little time for study, and yet who find much time for thinking. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1892.] c. 9+137 p. nar. D. cl., 50 c.

An introduction explaining the origin of the book is included with fourteen papers, entitled What constitutes an ideal womanhood and how to attain it; Purity and modesty, two words of value; Married and single life; Family life; Hints as to education and books; How to cultivate good manners; Jealousy: what is it?; Practical matters; Influence of art upon life; Women as moral reformers; Glimpses into the business part of life; How can we help one another?; Definition of certain words; Club life, its power.

Doyle, A. Conan. The great shadow: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] c. 3+218 p. D. cl., $1.

A story of the Scottish border at the time when the terror of the first Napoleon was as a great shadow lying across the land and darkening the lives of half the people in Europe. The story is told in a chatty, reminiscent style, the slight plot affording pleasant glimpses of Scotch home-life and culminating in a most thrilling description of the battle of Waterloo.

Dulles, C. W., M.D. Accidents and emergencies: a manual of the treatment of surgical and medical emergencies in the absence of a physician. 4th ed., rev. and enl. Phil., P. Blakiston, Son & Co., 1892. c. 154 p. il. D. cl., $1.

*Dumas, Alex. Count of Monte Cristo. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., 1892. 2 v., 8°, cl., $2; hf. levant, or hf. cf., $5. In 4 v., il. 8°, cl., $4; hf. levant, or hf. cf., $10.

Ellwanger, G. H. In gold and silver; il. by W. Hamilton Gibson and A. B. Wenzell. N. Y., Appleton, 1892. 7+156 p. S. cl., $2. Edition de luxe, $5.

In this volume the author carries the reader from the Orient to the outdoor life of our own country, through four short stories. "In Gold and Silver" has been magnificently illustrated by two of the foremost American artists, W. Hamilton Gibson and A. B. Wenzell, who have furnished full-page drawings, vignettes and initials; while there are several pen-and-ink drawings of Oriental articles by W. C. Greenough, and there is a specially designed title-page and cover by H. B. Sherwin.

Endlich, F. M. Manual of qualitative blow-pipe analysis and determinative mineralogy. N. Y., The Scientific Pub. Co., 1892. c. 3+456 p. diagram, il. O. cl., $4.

This work has been prepared as a manual for the use of students working under the direction of a teacher as well as for those who depend upon self-instruction. The entire arrangement of the volume is essentially new, and the various tables as well as all enumerations of mineral species have been carried out in alphabetical order wherever possible.

Ewing, Hugh. A castle in the air. [New issue.] N. Y., G. Munro, [United States Book Co., 1892.] c. '88. 8+273 p. D. (Seaside lib., no. 2082.) pap., 25 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., April 23, '88. [84.] Originally published in Holt's Leisure hour series.

Festetics, Kate Neely. In mother's place; or, the Jay family. Phil., The American S. S. Union, [1892.] c. 2-385 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The scene is Virginia. After the death of Mrs. Jerome an older daughter comes to the front as the practical head of the house and attempts to fill her mother's place by making a cheery home life for the father, a busy lawyer, and numerous brothers and sisters, all of whose initial letters are, oddly enough, J. Her experience, not an uncommon one, covers the most interesting portion of a story in which the other characters help or hinder according to their various moods.

Finley, Martha F., ["Martha Farquharson," pseud.] Elsie at Viamede. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1892.] c. 2+293 p. D. (Elsie books.) cl., $1.25.

The scene of the latest Elsie book is in New Orleans. Besides the incidents surrounding a visit to Grandmamma Elsie, as Viamede is considered a fitting place for a recital of the main facts of the War of 1812 Captain Raymond's recouital of these takes up most of the volume.

*Finn, Francis J. Harry Dee; or, making it out. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1892. 12°, cl., $1.

Foots, Mary Hallock. The chosen valley. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 3+314 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A young man, the son of a western millionaire, who has received his education as a civil engineer in Europe, is suddenly called home and separated from his mother, with whom all his young life has been spent abroad, and from whom he has not received the most favorable opinion of his father. Near the Pacific slope he finds his home, and is soon initiated into the long-time feud that has existed between his father and his neighbor and at one time partner, a highly educated Englishman of scientific training. The original subject of quarrel had been the method of building works to irrigate "the chosen valley." The young hero's position as a disinterested party, his love for the daughter of his father's enemy, and his new insight into his father's character, are all full of interest.

*Fouard, Constant, (Abbé). St. Peter and the first years of Christianity; tr. from the 2d ed., with the author's sanction, by G. F. X. Griffith; with an introd. by Cardinal Gibbons. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892. 25+422 p. 8°, cl., $2.

Fuller, T., and Hooker, R. Fuller and Hooker: selections. [Also,] Extracts from the ecclesiastical polity; with introd. and explanatory notes by J. Scott Clark. N. Y., Eifingham Maynard & Co., 1892. 48 p. S. (English classic ser., new ser., no. 12.) pap., 10 c.

G., A. R. Gleams and echoes, with wood-engravings from drawings by eminent artists. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893 [1892.] c. unp. O. cl., $2; silk, $3.

Poems of nature, illustrated from drawings by Turner, Jones, Schell, Clinebat, Dielman and Lippincott, engraved by Anderson, Reed and Williams.

Galdos, B. Perez. Marianela: a story of Spanish love; from the Spanish by Helen W. Lester. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 2-243 p. S. (Tales from foreign lands.) cl., $1.

The story is laid in the region of the zinc mines of Socartes, Spain. A young man, born blind, receives his sight through a celebrated oculist. He finds that a poor girl who has been his constant guide and dearest friend is a dwarfed, pale, unsightly being. Marianela is so shocked by his disappointment that she falls a victim to acute meningitis and the ending is tragic. The descriptions of scenery and the study of human emotions show fine work.

Gaskell, Mrs. Eliz. C. Cousin Phillis: a story of English love. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. 5-222 p. S. (Tales from foreign lands.) cl., $1.

A well-known English story, first published in 1865. The volume is notably neat in "get-up" and well made.

Gatewood, Julia Howard. Wedded unwooded: a novel. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1892. c. 4-517 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The mystery that enshrouds the marriage of Odessa Huntington and Carl Cresson is revealed in a story of sensational incidents and unexpected ending.

Gaye, Selina. The great world's farm: some account of nature's crops and how they are grown; with a preface by G. S. Boulger. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893 [1892.] 9+365 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The title is taken from Drummond's "Tropical Africa." The writer states that nine-tenths of the world's fields are cultivated by those who labor without hands, the air, wind, frost, rain, snow, sun, glacier, river, earthquake, volcano, the worms, insects, birds, etc. Together these keep the world green, and would keep it green if there were not a man in it. It is then described what changes man has made on Nature's great farm. Full index.

Gilmore, Minnie. A son of Esau. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., 1892. c. 7+353 p. D. (Lovell's ser. of American novels, no. 6.) pap., 50 c.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., July 23, '92, [1089.]

Gilmore, Minnie. The woman who stood between. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1892.] c. 4-155 p. D. cl., $1.

The hero Van Vost, is a pronounced anarchist at the age of thirty. His unsuccessful father, a theoretical German, has made him swear all his life "to hate with an undying hatred, relentless as fate, strong as death, fierce as hell, the proud, the rich and the mighty." He meets a woman who is anxious to join his work but cannot agree to become his wife. His tragic end spoils his self-appointed scheme to right the wrongs of humanity. The story is told by the hero from the prison cell where he is awaiting capital punishment.

Gray, T. Elegy written in a country churchyard; with a selection from the odes and sonnets. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, [1892.] 84 p. 1 il. Tt. (Literary gems, 4th ser.) flex. leath., 75 c.

Green, Mrs. Evelyn Everett. The doctor's dozen. Phil., The American S. S. Union, 1892. 5-239 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

A doctor in England dies, leaving a dozen children. With a reduced income they set about the problem of maintaining the common family life. They have to fight against the pride which made them feel disinclined to seek situations, but their good sense, energy and mutual helpfulness carry them through the hard places.

Green, J. R. A short history of the English people. [New] illustrated ed.; ed. by Mrs. J. R. Green and Miss Kate Norgate. V. 1. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] 26+468 p. por. Q. cl., $5.

It was a favorite wish with Mr. Green to see English history interpreted and illustrated by pictures which should tell us how men and things appeared to the lookers-on of their own day, and how contemporary observers aimed at representing them. His "Short history" was selected by his wife as especially adapted to this purpose. The pictures are from authentic sources, and illustrate the arts, industries, costumes, coins and domestic and ecclesiastical architecture of the period dealt with by the historian. In addition to these the work also contains an exhaustive series of portraits of eminent persons, besides several colored maps and colored reproductions from manuscripts, illuminated missals, etc.

*Greenwood, Alice D. Empire and papacy in the middle ages: an introduction to the study of mediæval history for use in schools. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 11+227 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Griffis, W. Elliot. Japan in history, folklore and art. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 7+230 p. S. (Riverside lib. for young people, no. 10.) cl., 75 c.

Dr. Griffis, who by years of residence in Japan is exceptionally qualified to write of that country, has here given in compact form the history of Japan, so far as this can be readily understood by Westerners, and an account of the change from Old Japan to New. He has told a number of interesting stories from the Japanese folk-lore, and has described many of the Japanese customs, making an excellent book to introduce Japan to American young people.

Grossmith, G. and Weedon. The diary of a nobody; il. by Weedon Grossmith. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] 235 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The "nobody" is a London city clerk who records in his diary the every-day doings of his uneventful life. His wife and son, a few friends, servants and tradesmen make up his little world, and his petty adventures, conjugal bickerings, holidays, "parties," badinage and practical joking are the chief episodes in a sketchy narrative of second-class London life. The chapters originally appeared serially in Punch.

Guthrie, F. Anstey. Voces populi; [reprinted from Punch,] il. by J. Bernard Partridge. 2d ser. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892. 3+156 p. sq. O. hf. cl., $1.75.

The voces populi overheard at the British Museum, in an omnibus, on the ice, in a fog, on bank holidays, at the horse-show, at a music hall, and in other haunts of the middle-class Londoners for these twenty-eight amusing dramatic scenes. Like the first series these photographic bits of London life originally appeared in Punch.

The object of "The foundations of rhetoric" is to train young people who have mastered the elementary principles of writing to say in written language correctly, clearly and effectively what they have to say.

Hocking, Silas K. Where duty lies. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1892. c. 3-359 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Frank Carey at his father's death is left in charge of a little stationery and printing shop, from the profits of which he must support his mother and younger brothers and sisters. He feels called to be a Methodist preacher, but does his work where duty lies. Later he writes instructive novels. He is the means of restoring to her parents Elsie Pentwyn, who was stolen from her rich home many years before Frank meets her among very peculiar surroundings. Later these two young people find their duty lies in the slums of great cities.

Hume, Fergus. The fever of life. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] c. '91. 2-381 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The author of "The mystery of a hansom cab" has again unravelled a mystery compounded of circumstantial evidence and unexpected dénouement in a murder case. The heroine is a Maori woman, married in early youth to a scion of an English nobleman's family. She tires of him and seeks her fortunes as an opera singer in the United States. Her mother-love brings her back to be paid companion to her daughter, and from this bold move springs the tragedy that underlies the story. Scenes on the Riviera and in England.

Hyne, C. J. Cutcliffe. The new Eden. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1892. 6-258 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The prologue indicates that an earnest student of evolution had at some previous period placed a man-child and a woman-child on two islands in the tropics. The story tells the lives of these beings, living in a state of nature, their meeting after they have grown, their life together, the advent of a little Cain into their Eden, their trials and vague unrest until they wake up satisfied as sun worshippers. The epilogue leaves the question open: "Are they to be envied?"

- On Rupert and Mary Howard's arrival at the house of their aunts, in St. Edward's square, London, Rupert explains why his sister is forced to appear immediately after the death of their father in a red cloak. Later the little girl and this same garment figure in an episode both pathetic and amusing, hence the title, "A modern Red Riding-Hood."
- Kimball, R: B. Virginia Randall: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1892. 6-480 p. D. (Madison sq. ser.) pap., 25 c.
- La Rame, Louise de, ["Ouida," pseud.] The tower of Taddeo. N. Y., Hovendon Co., [1892.] 2-318 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.
- The scene is Florence. "Ser Checchi," a dealer in old books, lives in an ancient tower with his daughter Beldia. Though he loves his business he is no business man, and becomes impoverished through a worthless son and false friends. Under an Italian law there is no mercy for a debtor, and his treasures are seized to be sold, and he dies from the blow. The tower is torn down for modern improvements and Beldia is in poverty when an old lover arrives from South America and rescues her.

Macleod, Mrs. Alick. The silent sea: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1892. 366 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 728.) pap., 50 c.

The Silent Sea is around Australia. The gold mines and sheep ranches of that vast country offer the scenes for the action of the characters, many of whom are decidedly original. There are two heroines, one "twenty-nine and a bit" when the story opens, the other sixteen. The hero is twenty-one. The fascinations, dangers and peculiarities of Australian life are instructively pictured.

*Mitchell, S. Weir, M.D. Roland Blake: a novel. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. 12° (Riverside pap. ser.) pap., 50 c.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louise, ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] An enchanted garden: fairy stories; il. by W. J. Hennessy. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1892. 4+221 p. il. S. (The children's lib.) bds., 75 c.

Impelled by a wish for amusement Alix and Rafe search the garden of an old English manor house whose care-taker tells them stories of The three wishes; The summer princess; The Christmas surprise; and The magic rose.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louise ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] The girls and I: a veracious history; il. by L. Leslie Brooke. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 5+192 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

It is the custom of the young hero of the story to allude to himself and four sisters as "The girls and I." He tells in a rather patronizing way how his sister Anne was responsible for the loss of a very valuable jewel, how this heirloom was recovered under very peculiar circumstances and in a strange place, and of a visit to Fewforest.

Moltke, Count Helmuth v. Moltke, his life and character: sketched in journals, letters, memoirs, a novel and autobiographical notes; tr. by Mary Herms; il. from drawings by Moltke, portraits and fac-simile letters. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] 9+332 p. O. cl., $8.

"Our knowledge of the Field-Marshal must be supplemented from notes regarding his family and his own life, from journals of travels and records of the many impulses, scientific and artistic, to which his travels gave rise; further, from an attempt in the region of belles lettres—the novel of 'The two friends,' in which he, the man of eight-and-twenty, paints himself true to the life; finally, from the vigorous productions of his old age, with their strivings after the highest truth, which, under the title of 'Consolatory thoughts,' form the conclusion of the volume. With these autobiographical notices has been effectively incorporated that which has been said concerning Moltke's endeavors and performances by those whose duty it was to criticize or report upon them."—Editor's note.

Monroe, Miss Harriet. Valeria, and other poems. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. '91, '92. 7+301 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The title piece of this collection of poems is a tragedy in five acts, the scene being a small Italian state of the fourteenth century. Upon this narrow stage the author has caused to be enacted a drama which has won from well known critics pronounced and cordial commendation. Miss Monroe was distinguished by being selected to write the "Opening ode for the World's Columbian Exposition," which is included in this volume.

Morris, W. Smith, M.D. An unconditional surrender: a comedy in three acts. Phil., The Penn Pub. Co., 1892. 48 p. D. (Keystone ed. of popular plays.) pap., 15 c.

Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. The cuckoo in the nest. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. 8-357 p. D. cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c.

"The cuckoo in the nest" is Patty Hewitt of the "Seven Thorns"—a little country inn—who forces herself into the aristocratic family of the Percys of Greyshott Manor, by marrying their imbecile son Ger vase, generally known as the "Softy." The manner in which she enters Greyshott after Lady Percy's death and routs her enemies—the servants and visitors—takes possession of old Sir Giles, and attempts to feather her own nest, is amusingly told.

*Oliphant, Mrs. Marg. O. W. The makers of Venice: doges, conquerors, painters and men of letters. Extra il. ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 15+411 p. il. por. 8°, hf. buckram, $6.

*Palmer, Fanny Purdy. A dead level and other episodes. Buffalo, N. Y., C: Wells Moulton, 1892. c. 2+270 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The first story tells how a woman accomplished the social downfall of a gallant young Confederate officer, and thus placed him on a "dead level" with herself morally and socially; following are nine other stories called Meeta; Matt's lovers; Outside the pale; The story of a singer; April and August; A woman; The story of a scapegrace; Doctor Waldemar's title; Arnold's creed.

On the threshold of his life Robert Grey is engaged to his cousin. His two most intimate friends love this girl also, one most unselfishly, the other with less noble motives. One of these friends dies under suspicious circumstances, and Robert Grey is tried for murder. The tragedy is finally most ingeniously and scientifically explained. The three young men are students at Cambridge, England, and college life furnishes many incidents of the story.

Putnam, M. Louise. The children's life of Abraham Lincoln. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 2-290 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The aim of this brief biography, which records the notable incidents in the life of Lincoln from his birth to his assassination, is to give comprehensive information relative to the War of Secession and the machinery of the United States Government. It is, the author claims, a purpose to instruct rather than amuse young readers.

Ralph, Julian. Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair: the chapters on the Exposition being collated from official sources and approved by the Department of Publicity and Promotion of the World's Columbian Exposition. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] c. 9+244 p. il. O. cl., $3.

Does not pretend to be a guide either to the great city of Chicago or to the Exposition; is rather a series of descriptions of the peculiarities and attractions of Chicago, and of the most novel and inviting of those features of the Exposition in regard to which it was possible to gain reliable information at the time the author was in Chicago—Oct., 1892. Many of the chapters have already appeared in the Harper periodicals.

Repplier, Agnes, comp. A book of famous verse selected by Agnes Repplier. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 8+244 p. D. cl., $1.25; 16°, (Riverside lib. for young people.) cl., 75 c.

The author of "Books and men" and "Points of view" studies the tastes, feelings and desires of children in this compilation from the best-known songs of England and America. She wishes to give them "martial strains which fire the blood, fairy music ringing in the ears, half-told tales which set the young heart dreaming, brave deeds, unhappy fates, sombre ballads, keen, joyous lyrics and small jewelled verses." With notes. About 120 poems.

Rhodes, Ja. Ford. History of the United States from the compromise of 1850. In 2 v. V. 1, 1850-1854; v. 2, 1854-1860. N. Y., Harper, 1898 [1892.] c. 10+506; 9+541 p. O. cl., $5.

These two volumes embrace the history of eleven years—a brief period, but one fraught with the most momentous consequences. Beginning with an introductory chapter on the origin and progress of negro slavery in the United States, the author traces the history of the famous compromise measures of 1850, gives an account of the absorbing political controversy which throughout this period engrossed the whole attention of the nation, relates the downfall of the Whig and the formation of the Republican party, tells about the struggle for supremacy in Kansas, and finally describes the events which led to the defeat of the Democratic party by the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860. The work is the result of thorough and scholarly investigation, and will be welcomed as a most complete, judicious and fair-minded history of that important period.

Rives, Amélie, [now Mrs. J. Armstrong Chanler.] Barbara Dering: a sequel to "The quick or the dead." Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893 [1892.] c. 4-285 p. D. cl., $1.25.

When the story opens more than two years had passed since Barbara had sent Jack Dering away from Rosemary. His unexpected appearance again upon the scene and Barbara's final acceptance of him gives the motive of the story. Their married life is a stormy one, from which the spirit of "Val," Barbara's first husband, is not altogether exorcised. Another unconventional couple, with a husband as cold and colorless as ering is vivid and passionate, varies the monotony of the Derings' domestic infelicities.

A fine and spacious mansion is Wendover House, full of ancient grandeur and family memories, but dim and gloomy till it is brightened by the presence of little Paul, a walf who comes mysteriously into the home, bringing to light an old love and an old quarrel. Miss Wendover is a forbidding recluse, cold as an iceberg till thawed by the witchery of the child who alone has the key to her heart. Life in the Wendover house is portrayed in the words of its several actors, who tell their stories frankly.

The author pictures the effect of a great spiritual revival upon the social life of Chicago. In giving this picture he brings in a group of four very interesting men. Richard Bruce, the hero, is a young man just out of college, and an author of ideals so high that he prefers to shovel coal rather than write sensational stories. His chum and devoted friend, Tom Howard, is a reporter upon a daily paper. It is Tom's conversion which marks the beginning of the great revival.

The theme of Mrs. Toland's poem is Plato's Atlantis, with its tropical splendor, its peace and prosperity. The beauties of the Isle and the semi-mythological character of the subject afford abundant opportunity for illustration. Illustrated by full-page photogravure reproductions of drawings by Bloomer, Weir, Church, Dieleman, Jones, Jacacci, Denman, Dumond and Twaotman, and numerous decorative designs throughout the text by A. F. Jacacci. Mrs. Toland is the author of "Eudora," "Legend Laymone," "Tiafayac of the Yosemite," etc.

Toby Trafford was the son of a former senior member of the firm of Trafford & Tazewell. Although it was expected that Toby would eventually enter this business house in accordance with the wishes of his dead father, the latter was in no hurry to take decisive measures. The unexpected failure of the house, however, complicates matters, and Toby is seen in a menial position until the adventure which makes him at once a hero and the pilot of the Queen of the Lake.

The author of "The house on the marsh" lays her story on the lonely rock-bound coast of Yorkshire, and pictures the dangers and adventures of bold, reckless smugglers. A young girl brought up in a convent goes home to live with her unknown father in Sea Mew Abbey, and day by day makes discoveries that at last point to a man whom she believes a faithful servant as her father, and the most enterprising smuggler of the dreaded gang. The details show all Miss Warden's old skill at detective work.

Williams, Meta E., ed. Tales from the Mabington. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1892. 11+189 p. 1 il. S. (The children's lib.) bds., 75 c.

Selections from Lady Charlotte Guest's translation of the Mabington first written in Welsh during the fourteenth century. The stories included in this volume date from the beginning of the time of King Arthur of Round Table fame. They tell of episodes in the lives of Killurgh, called Prince of the Swine's Burrow, with many exploits of King Arthur, namely: How Arthur obtained the cube of the werewolf; How Arthur warned the men of Cornwall of the coming of the Widewaster.

Wolf, Emma. Other things being equal. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 3-275 p. D. cl., $1.

At a brilliant evening reception in San Francisco Ruth Lewis, a young Jewess, meets Dr. Kemp, a celebrated Christian physician. The point of the story of home-life and filial devotion to an old father and a young, beautiful mother is that "other things being equal," a difference of religious creed should make no difference in married happiness.

Woods, Mrs. Katharine Pearson. From dusk to dawn. N. Y., Appleton, 1892. c. 310 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author of "Mezerott—Shoemaker" has again written with ethical purpose. Her hero is Cyril Deane, a young Episcopal deacon in a poor American parish, who discovers within himself an unknown power of controlling and helping others. A faith-healer, a theosophist, an orthodox clergyman and a strong mesmerist and magnetic medium, all hold discussions as to how the world may be made a good place to live in. True love towards one's fellow-men sums up the rather involved solution.

Zangwill, I. Children of the Ghetto: being pictures of a peculiar people. Phil., The Jewish Pub. Soc., 1892. 2 v., 2-451; 2-328 p. D. cl., $2.50.

A serious novel dealing with the life of the Jews who swarm in the East End of London. The writer is in sympathy with his subject, but aims at impartiality. He presents vivid pictures of that strange London Ghetto in Whitechapel, where old beliefs and habits exist comparatively uncorrupted by Christianity and wealth, and he writes as one who knows intimately the strange and uncouth habitants of this London Jewry. The second volume introduces "The grandchildren of the Ghetto," the wealthier and more refined Hebrews who have removed from the slum district. The entire novel presents a most graphic and comprehensive picture of the little known details of every-day Jewish life.

Zangwill, I. The old maids' club; il. by F. H. Townsend. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] c. 4-833 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The "Old Maids' Club" was founded by Lillie Dalemer at the age of seventeen. According to its conditions of membership every candidate must be under twenty-five, beautiful and wealthy, and have refused at least one offer of marriage. Its by-laws required the members to regard all men as brothers, not to keep domestic pets, not to have less than one birthday a year, to abjure medicine, art classes and Catholicism, never to speak to a curate, not to wear caps, curls, etc., and also worded a number of general recommendations. The history of this club is brightly told and facetiously illustrated.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

THOMAS BIRCH'S SONS, Philadelphia, announce the sale on December 6-7 of an interesting collection of Washington letters. The collection embraces the letters of Washington to Joseph Jones and James Madison during the Revolutionary War and the Constitutional Convention, and also during Washington's occupancy of the Presidential chair. Joseph Jones was a delegate from Virginia to the Continental Congress from 1777 to 1778, and again from 1780 to 1783, and besides being honored with the confidence of Washington he was also intimate with Jefferson, Madison, and other shining lights of the American Revolution, and was noted as Washington's representative in the Continental Congress. The record of James Madison, President of the United States, and the leading spirit in the construction of the Federal Constitution, is well known to every one. There are also letters from Edmund Randolph to James Madison as well as the original draft of the Rev. Jacob Duché's noted letter to Gen. Washington. The collection was made by J. C. McGuire, of Washington D. C., and is the result of a long life of industrious collection, beginning with the purchase from Payne Todd, son of Mrs. Madison by her first husband, of the Washington-Madison papers. It is of almost inestimable value, as it is undoubtedly one of the greatest gatherings of historical material relating to the Revolutionary War, the formation of the Federal Union, and the second war with Great Britain that has ever been made. The catalogue, a valuable historical work in itself, has been prepared by Stan. V. Henckels, to whom the collector of valuable documents is again laid under heavy obligations. The price of the catalogue is $2.50.

BANGS & CO., N. Y., will sell at auction December 8, the stereotype and electrotypes plates, books bound and in sheets, of the Baltimore Publishing Co., including Ryan's Poems and other well-known publications, embracing Catholic Prayer-Books and a number of school and miscellaneous books.

THE original manuscripts of a number of poems by the late Alfred Tennyson and his brother, the Rev. Charles Tennyson Turner, are to be sold at auction by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge on December 23. Most of these manuscripts are in the handwriting of Lord Tennyson.

DECEMBER 6-7, 3 P.M.—Miscellaneous and medical books, incl. the library of the late Dr. J. H. Douglass. (614 lots.)—Bangs.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 3, 1892.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

EFFECTS OF THE COPYRIGHT LAW.

AFTER fifteen months' practical working the international copyright law can to a certain extent be judged by its results. England, France, Germany, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland have so far accepted the terms of copyright reciprocity offered by the law, and there is every reason to expect that Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Greece and Spain will shortly accept its provisions. Since its enactment 18,000 copyrights have been granted to foreign authors, foreign composers and foreign designers—a number which will be largely increased by the end of the year. In the words of Mr. R. U. Johnson, secretary of the American Copyright League: "The operation of the law, so far as can be judged from a year's trial, is all that its friends expected. English authors have come into their own, and are greatly pleased with the law; and I am convinced that neither any petty defect of it, nor the manufacturing clause itself, is a serious obstacle to the publication of any continental book for which there is likely to be a demand in this country. The 'book trust' so confidently prophesied by the enemies of the bill is still in the mythical state. Literature of the best class is probably cheaper and more abundant than ever, while the American author, for whom it was feared that 'nothing was to be done,' is being gradually secured in his rights in the whole of Western Europe."

Mr. A. R. Spofford also expresses himself equally satisfied with the working of the law. He points out that:

"The first great benefit of the international copyright law is the gradual decline in price of the standard foreign works. Heretofore, when, for instance, an English publishing house was not protected in its editions of the best medical and scientific works by foreign authors, there was but one course to pursue—charge an immense price to the limited market, which rarely extended beyond England proper and not generally to the continent. With the copyright law mutual on both sides of the Atlantic, all this has considerably changed already, and I look for it to change still more. These foreign houses have gradually become encouraged to establish branches in New York, because the provisions of the law require that books copyrighted here must be manufactured in the United States, and the result is a much more popular price for the publications. Heretofore it has been a case of small sales and big profits, and now the publishers are content with a smaller percentage of gain because larger sales are a very reasonable possibility. At any rate the intelligent and well-read portion of the people will profit by the arrangement, because it is not only bound to bring about, but already has brought about, better editions of various works typographically and at considerably reduced prices.

"So far from creating monopolies, as was urged against the bill before its passage, the outcome has been just the reverse, something which I think we are in a good position to determine upon here at the Congressional library, the Mecca of every prospective piece of copyright literature.

"But the best result, perhaps, from an American standpoint, is the cleansing effect this international arrangement has had upon that pernicious type of trashy literature which smacks of Zola and Du Boisgobey. It is a peculiar fact, but most of the cheap novels with which American readers have been flooded in the last fifteen years were written by English and French authors. Unprotected by copyright on this side, the innumerable publishing houses in the United States who make a specialty of cheap books, simply pirated the contents of foreign novels and then vied with each other in cutting down to the lowest price the trash they had conglomerated under villainous covers and in type ugly enough to cause a reader ophthalmia.

"Much of this literature has been of an immoral nature, and the effect upon youthful readers is plain enough. But the issue of that class of matter has received a very material setback through the international copyright law, and gradually it may be shut off altogether, although the dime novel of home production will still be on deck. However, that is less injurious, publicly and socially, than the code of French morals as disseminated through these cheap publications."

The routine of issuing domestic copyrights alone now calls for some 75,000 letters from the librarian's office annually, and with an additional foreign correspondence of 30,000 more, to say nothing of the work of issuing the necessary documents and certificates, it is not to be wondered at that the librarian finds himself seriously handicapped by want of proper facilities for handling this ever-increasing volume of business. He points out very plainly that Congress must give him the necessary assistance or this government will be placed in a rather discreditable position before the foreign nations which are parties to the international copyright agreement. When the required fees are promptly paid by foreign applicants for copyright, it certainly is not proper that the granting of these applications should be delayed by an inadequate clerical force, such delay causing often serious loss to the authors and publishers, who must necessarily wait until thoroughly protected before putting their productions in the market.

So far, the foreign copyrights issued include books, periodicals, dramatic and musical compositions, photographs, chromos, maps, prints, designs, paintings, drawings and lithographs. Of these the greatest number of applications are for copyright on musical productions and lithographic work, the latter being a branch of copyright in which foreigners far outnumber domestic applicants. Naturally, English authors are in the majority, closely followed by the Germans, who take precedence in scientific works. France is third. Other nations have as yet made a comparatively small showing, though the number of their applications constantly increases.

We quite agree with our London contemporary, The Publishers' Circular, which, in discussing Mr. Maurice Thompson's recent strictures on the "royalty system," exclaims, "How old systems fall into disrepute!" Charles Dickens, to refer to only one of the old fogies, was of opinion that the royalty system affords the only fair and equitable means of transacting business between author and publisher. But he did not think it would ever become general because of the haste of writers to "realize" on the products of their brain. Grub Street has receded considerably since Dickens' day, and authors are now better able to abide by the methods which are likeliest to bring the best returns. It has been thought by the successors of Dickens and their publishers that the plan of royalties was a fair and satisfactory one. Mr. Maurice Thompson thinks otherwise. To Mr. Thompson's acute business mind the royalty system is the very worst ever invented by the perverted wit of man. It is, he declares, unbusinesslike, and has the further fault of being an insufficient incentive to virtue on the publisher's part. Mr. Thompson unfortunately does not with any clearness say what is to take the place of the system he condemns. He speaks, indeed, of a courageous application of "the principles of supply and demand and of bargain and sale," but what is meant by these words he leaves his readers to imagine. It is reassuring to learn that Mr. Thompson humanely concludes "there is not the slightest call for any ill-feeling toward publishers or for any ill-treatment of them."

BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATIONS.

NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS' AND NEWS-DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the above association took place on November 22. Meeting called to order by C. D. Raymer, who moved that in the absence of both president and vice-president T. J. O'Leary, of St. Paul, take the chair.

Minutes of the last meeting read and approved.

D. D. Merrill Company, of St. Paul, made an application for membership, which was received; they were unanimously elected as members.

Communication from A. Isaacson, newsdealer of St. Paul, Minn., asking for information, referred to secretary, and ordered filed.

S. T. Taylor, of New York, publisher of La Bon Ton, and A. McDowell & Co., of New York, publishers of La Mode, La Couturiere, La Mode de Paris and Paris Album of Fashions, were emphatically in favor of having their magazines held at the full retail price by all dealers, and gave orders through their wholesale agents that the prices should be maintained. The association recommends their publications to the consideration of the trade throughout the United States.

The resignation of T. Alexander, of Minneapolis, Minn., as assistant secretary, was received and accepted. Chas. D. Raymer, of Minneapolis, Minn., as secretary, resigned in favor of Edw. Ackerman, of Chicago.

Under unfinished business, were received communications and reports of committees on the "cutting of prices" by irregular competitors. Very favorable reports received: in fact, the "cutting of prices" has been practically stopped, through assistance of publishers, news companies and the trade, on the Cosmopolitan, Review of Reviews, La Bon Ton, A. McDowell's publications; Scribner's Magazine and the Ladies' Home Journal. The above are recommended to the kind consideration of the trade.

E. P. Parcher moved that thanks be extended to Mr. Hardick, as manager of the Minnesota News Company, for his kind attention and courteous treatment in combating the cutting of prices.

Owing to the absence of many of the dealers in text-books, the report from the committee on that subject was not read, it being deemed advisable to hold the same for the next meeting.

The next business was the election of Edw. Ackerman, as secretary, and C. D. Raymer, of Minneapolis, as assistant secretary.

Under the head of new business there was a general and friendly conversation in regard to the association having their meeting in St. Paul, in January, 1893, and of having at the same time a supper at some appropriate place.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again as call. It is expected that the next meeting will be held in St. Paul about the middle of January next.

CHAS. D. RAYMER, Secretary.

THE DUTY ON FOREIGN PERIODICALS REMOVED.

THE Treasury Department has instructed customs officers that foreign publications issued at regular intervals, containing parts of several continued stories, which publications are unsuited for binding in book form, may be admitted free of duty, as periodicals. Heretofore these publications have been classified as printed matter, dutiable at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem.

A NEW PUBLISHING HOUSE.

TAIT, SONS &amp; COMPANY.

WE welcome most cordially to the ranks of the book trade the new firm of publishers which has been organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey under the name of Tait, Sons & Company, with a capital of $150,000.

The new company proposes to devote itself to the publication of high-class general literature by domestic and foreign authors. Its first announcement includes copyrighted publications by Edmund Gosse, The "Duchess," Fergus Hume, Blanche Willis Howard, T. Zangwill, George and Weldon Grossmith, and other well-known writers.

The president of the company, Mr. J. Selwin Tait, who is well known in banking circles, is himself an author of repute, with an exceptional knowledge of foreign literature; perhaps he is most widely known, however, by his contributions on financial topics to the Evening Post and other prominent papers of weight in monetary circles.

Mr. Albert B. Yohn, of Indianapolis, Ind., who has assumed the management of the company, is familiar to the trade as an energetic, pushing bookseller, familiar with every detail of the business, as his excellent work as associate editor of "The Stationers' Handbook" has amply demonstrated. His connection with the book business for nearly a quarter of a century renders him a valuable addition to any new company whose aim it is to circulate high-class literature.

The company's premises are situated on the second floor of the Jackson Building, 31 Union Square, North, New York, adjoining the premises of the Century Magazine. The office fronts on Union Square, from which it extends back to Eighteenth Street. It has a superficial area of about 5000 feet with a capacity of probably a half a million of volumes.

In arranging the premises every detail of the work has been done under the eye of an architect familiar with the requirements of the trade, and the result is one of the most complete and elegant publishing establishments in the city.

THE JEWETT CO. VS. BENJ. F. BUTLER.

THE decision in Gen. Butler's book suit has been rendered by Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., and as somebody has aptly put it, "Butler is both a winner and a loser."

The judge decided that the General had broken a contract which he made with the C. F. Jewett Publishing Company in taking his manuscript away and placing it in the hands of another house, but he also decided that the book was not a success, that the contract was therefore worthless to any publisher, and that no damages were recoverable. He was willing to hear further testimony regarding expense incurred by the Jewett Company, as damages might be awarded on that score. In Judge Holmes' decision, this paragraph is written regarding the publication of war memoirs in two volumes at a price as high as seven dollars: "The more I think of it the less am I able to bring my mind to the belief that it would have been possible, in the existing condition of the market with reference to this particular subject, for a publisher to have made any appreciable profit on a book published in that form and at that price. I cannot but say to myself that seven dollars is a good sum to pay for that kind of a book."

According to later report it looks as though Gen. Butler would have to pay something on account of the withdrawal of his book. On the question of damages Judge Holmes has reported to the Supreme Court that if it is decided that the contract was valid and the General not justified in breaking it, then the sum of $2500 with two years' interest should be paid by the author to the publisher.

SOUTH CAROLINA SCHOOL-BOOKS.

EVERY five years the State Board of Examiners of South Carolina adopts a list of books for use in the public schools and makes a contract with publishers to supply them at certain rates. The present contract was made in 1888 and expires next September. Under it the retail dealers were to get 16½ per cent. discount. Since then the prices have been reduced and the discount has been increased to 20 per cent. State Superintendent of Education Mayfield, in his annual report therefore recommends that the State Board be given power to strike from the list any book not sold at the agreed retail price, or on which the agreed discount is not allowed to the retail dealers; and that the publishers be required, at the discretion of the State Board of Examiners, to keep one or more depositories of their books within the State where they can be obtained at the agreed prices without delay and with a proper discount to the trade.

PROPOSED NEW METHOD OF MEASURING TYPE.

THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE representing publishers, Typothetæ, compositors and type-founders, which met at the Yates Hotel, Syracuse, N. Y., November 28, adopted the following preambles and resolutions:

Whereas, The present manner of remuneration for type composition, owing to the system of measurement, is unjust and inequitable for both employer and employees; and

Whereas, Differences capable of adjustment exist between the employing printer, the compositor, the publisher, and the type-founder; therefore be it

Resolved, That the lower-case alphabet of all faces of body type shall not measure less than fifteen lower-case letter Ms of its own face; that the thirteen letters of the alphabet most frequently used, c, d, e, i, s, m, n, h, o, u, t, a, z, shall equal the length of the remaining thirteen letters of the alphabet.

AUTHORS' READING.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION of the United States will give under its auspices an authors' reading at Chickering Hall, New York City, on the evening of January 16, 1893. Among the authors who will read from their own works are F. Hopkinson Smith, "A Day at Laguerre's;" Charles Dudley Warner, "A Bear Story," by request; General James Grant Wilson, "An Episode of the War;" Edward Eggleston, Will Carleton, Marion Harland, Gertrude Atherton, Robert Grant, Wm. H. McElroy, and others. Thomas Nast, the caricaturist, will execute a few of his celebrated off-hand sketches.

It is hoped to make it the literary event of the season, bringing together many of the noted writers of the day, which promises a rare treat for the reading public. It has the endorsement of the leading publishers, and such writers as Richard Watson Gilder, William Winter, George Kennan, Marietta Holly, Julia Ward Howe, E.

C. Stedman, Thos. Bailey Aldrich, Edward Everett Hale, Col. T. W. Higginson, Richard Harding Davis, Capt. Chas. King and others, who will be given a place of honor on the stage. The price of admission will be $1.50 and $1 for reserved seats, tickets for which may be obtained of the committee having the matter in charge, viz.: Charles A. Burkhardt, chairman, with E. P. Dutton & Co., 31 West 23d Street, New York; John A. Holden, treasurer, with Thos. Whitaker, 2 Bible House, New York; Wm. J. Kelly, publisher, 123 West 23d Street, New York; J. F. Vogellus, with Henry Holt & Co., 29 West 23d Street, New York.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW VS. THE N. Y. EVENING TELEGRAM.

THE editor of the New York Evening Telegram states in the issue of that paper for November 23 that its recent infringement of the American copyright of the North American Review by reprinting in full Mr. Gladstone's article entitled "A Vindication of Home Rule," was "the result of an oversight while the editor of the Telegram was seeking permission from the proprietor of the Review to publish the article," and that he is "pleased to announce that the matter has been amicably adjusted with the proprietor of the North American Review."

OBITUARY.

EGBERT L. JANSEN died in Detroit, Michigan, on November 12. He, after Mr. S. C. Griggs, was among the earliest pioneers of the book trade in Chicago. He was born in Goshen County, New York, and removed when quite young to Chicago, where he was the protégé of his brother-in-law, Wm. Bross, who later became Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois. In about 1850 or 1851 he entered the bookstore of Mr. Griggs, and became a partner in this successful and enterprising establishment probably as early as 1853.

He remained a partner in this firm until after the great fire in Chicago in 1871, when Mr. Griggs retired from the old concern to establish another devoted entirely to publishing. Mr. Jansen then became the senior partner in the new firm of Jansen, McClurg & Co. He remained a partner in this firm until February, 1887, when, owing to ill-health and other reasons, he retired from business and went to live in Ypsilanti, Michigan, the childhood home of his wife.

Mr. Jansen was a man of quiet and retiring disposition, and consequently was not as well known in the trade as many men who have occupied less important positions; but yet there are many among the publishers and wholesale stationers, and perhaps still more among the Western country customers who will long retain very kindly memories of his quiet yet genial disposition and manner.

J. A. CHAIN.

We regret to state that the sad news of the death of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Chain is confirmed. They were passengers on the ill-fated P. & O. steamer Bokhara which was lost during a typhoon on October 10, while en route from Shanghai to Hong Kong. Mr. and Mrs. Chain left their home in Denver last March with the intention of making a two-years' tour around the world. They sailed from Victoria, B. C., for Japan, and from Japan visited Corea and China. On their voyage to Corea their ship nearly went down in a typhoon, and while in China they were present at some of the anti-missionary riots, narrowly escaping with their lives. James Albert Chain, who has for years been one of the best-known business men of Denver, was born December 24, 1847, at Columbus, O. In 1860 he moved to Lewiston, Ill., and entered business life as a clerk in a dry-goods store. Later he studied for the ministry, but his health broke down under continual application and he went to Colorado in hope of restoring it. After spending a year or so on a cattle ranch, he revisited Illinois and from there went to Indianapolis, where he was married to Miss Helen Henderson. On his return to Denver he opened a book and stationery store at the corner of Sixteenth and Larimer Streets in company with James McCartney, S. B. Hardy, an old friend of Mr. Chain's at Jacksonville, soon afterward bought out McCartney, and the firm of Chain & Hardy began its long and prosperous career, the establishment soon becoming the model bookstore of Denver. Some six years ago the business was removed to its present quarters on Arapahoe Street. Mr. Chain was one of the foremost business men of Denver, public-spirited, active, a generous giver to worthy objects, and a man who made many warm friends. His wife was a popular and successful artist, having studied in Paris and under Inness in New York. Her paintings found ready sale and as a teacher she was unusually successful. They had no children.

LOUIS SCHICK.

LOUIS SCHICK, the well-known German publisher and bookseller, died suddenly of heart failure in a restaurant on Illinois Street, Chicago, on Wednesday, November 23. Louis Schick was born in 1842, in Homburg, Germany. His father was also a bookseller, and a descendant of booksellers. At the age of seventeen young Schick emigrated to America, and reached Chicago in the early sixties. He began work as clerk in the well-known Schölkopf business, and worked himself up to the position of book-keeper. Later he established himself in Madison Street and opened a German bookstore under the firm-name of Meininger & Schick. The great fire robbed him of all, but he soon again opened a store at the corner of Lake and Clark Streets, where he continued until 1889, when he abandoned retail bookselling and threw all his interests into publishing. The novels published in the Collection Schick have become quite popular, as is also Schick's Humoristische Bibliothek. Translations of Max Nordau's "Conventional Lies of Our Civilization" and "Paradoxes" appeared with his imprint, and also the popular guide-book "Chicago and Its Environs." During the past few years Mr. Schick lived a very retired life. He was unmarried.

THOMAS ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE, whose death occurred November 11 at Clifton, England, was an elder brother of Anthony Trollope, whom he strongly resembled. Though comparatively little known to the world of readers, he was a man of great mental attainments and very considerable literary ability. He was born in 1810, and during his long life had contracted friendships with many famous people. More than half his life was passed in Italy and for upwards of twenty years no house in Florence saw more or better company than his. Trollope was engaged throughout his life in literary and journalistic work. He wrote many capital novels, for which he never obtained the credit he deserved, several valuable historical works, and some interesting books of travel, and he frequently contributed to the leading reviews. He was long the Florence correspondent of The Daily News, and afterward represented The Standard at Rome, where he removed in 1870. Among his most intimate friends were Thackeray, Lever, Landor, George Eliot, George Henry Lewes, the Brownings, Archbishop Whateley, Wilkie Collins, Dean Milman and Sir James Hudson.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ANDREW LANG is at last to publish a book on St. Andrews.

POULTNEY BIGELOW has entitled his forthcoming book "The Ragged Edges of the Czar's Empire."

HENRY M. STANLEY is said to be at work on an article on the subject of the slave trade in Africa.

DR. GEORG EBERS will shortly issue his autobiography under the title of "Geschichte meines Lebens."

GEORGE MEREDITH has been elected president of the English Society of Authors to succeed Tennyson.

THERE is a rumor that Mrs. Elizabeth Phelps Ward is to write a sequel to her quaint and merry book, "The Old Maid's Paradise."

F. MARION CRAWFORD, the well-known novelist, is at present in this country and has arranged to give a series of readings from his works in the principal cities of the United States during the winter.

MARK TWAIN has settled down for the winter with his family at Florence, Italy. He has just sent a story to the Century, which will appear in the January number. It is called "The £1,000,000 Bank-Note."

BRET HARTE is engaged making another collection of his short stories, which will contain "Sally Dows," at present running in the English Illustrated Magazine, "The Conspiracy of Mrs. Bunker," which originally appeared in the Idler, and several other shorter stories.

MRS. MARAH ELLIS RYAN, whose recent works, "Told in the Hills," "A Pagan of the Alleghenies" and "Squaw Elouise," have attracted considerable and favorable notice, is taking an extended tour through the Western States. It is understood that the collection of material for another interesting volume is the principal object of her trip.

M. ZOLA has accepted the proposals of the London Weekly Times and Echo for the serial rights in England of his forthcoming novel "Dr. Pascal," and the English translation will commence publication in that journal simultaneously with the serial publication in Paris, towards the end of February next. The novel will, Zola says, be mainly "a story of the emotions."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

REGINALD DE KOVEN edits the new department of Music and Drama in Harper's Weekly.

THE report that Sydney Rosenfeld, the dramatist, has been appointed editor of Frank Leslie's Weekly has been denied by Mr. W. J. Arkell, the publisher of that paper.

MARCUS B. HUISE, for many years editor of the London Art Journal, has retired from that position and will be succeeded by Mr. D. C. Thompson, author of the "Life of Thomas Bewick," "The Barblon School of Painters," and other works.

WOLCOTT BALESTIER's posthumous novel, "Benefits Forgot," begins in the Christmas Century. It is a novel of life in Colorado, and is said to be full of adventure and romance. "Leaves from the Autobiography of Salvini" begins in the same issue.

Success is the title of a popular illustrated family magazine, published at fifty cents a year by the American Press Co., Baltimore, Md. Its specialties are short stories, household economy, travel, society, men and women of the time, our boys and girls, the home circle, art and literature. It is illustrated.

Uncut Leaves is described by its conductor, L. J. B. Lincoln, of the Deerfield Summer School of History and Romance (whose address is 233 Fifth Avenue, New York), as "a manuscript magazine" which is "read" to its subscribers once a month, its contents being essays, stories poems, critiques and so on, not yet published, and when the authors can be persuaded to read their own articles, this personal feature adds to the zest of the readings. The notion was tried last season in Boston, New York, Washington and Chicago, and will be extended to other cities this season. According to the prospectus, these prominent authors have taken part in the readings: R. H. Stoddard, E. C. Stedman, R. W. Gilder, Eugene Field, T. W. Higginson, Arlo Bates, Edwin D. Mead, Hamilton W. Mabie, E. S. Nadal, Agnes Repplier, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Frances Hodgson Burnett, Elizabeth W. Champney, Mary E. Wilkins, Sarah Orne Jewett, Alice Wellington Rollins, Harriet Monroe, Robert Grant and F. Hopkinson Smith.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES E. LAURIAT a week ago celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home in Brookline, Mass. They received the congratulations of hundreds of warm friends, to which we add ours and the wish they may live together in unbroken happiness to see a repetition of the event and many years beyond.

RICHARD W. BALLARD, who for many years has represented E. P. Dutton & Co. on the road, has severed his connection with that house.

H. T. THOMAS, formerly manager of Charles Scribner's Sons' subscription department, has resigned.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

MACMILLAN & BOWES, Cambridge, England, have just issued Pt. B of "A Catalogue of Books Printed at or Relating to the University, Town or County of Cambridge." This portion of the catalogue, like its predecessor, shows great care and scholarship in compilation and annotation. It covers the whole of the eighteenth century, the preceding part dealing with the period from the earliest issue of the Cambridge press in 1531; a third, announced as in preparation, will carry the work down to the present time; while a fourth will comprise addenda, mss., maps, engravings, etc. Though intended, in the first place, as a sale catalogue, the large number of the entries and the accuracy of the details given raise this work to a high place among local bibliographies. For the eighteenth century we find here recorded just 500 books printed at Cambridge, besides as many more that have some connection with the university, the town or the county. Work from the presses of the following printers is represented: University Press, John Hayes, John Owen, Cornelius Crownfield, Joseph Bentham, W. Fenner, R. Walker & T. James. S. & J. James, John Baskerville, Fletcher & Hodson, John Archdeacon, Francis Hodson, T. Fletcher, Benjamin Flower, Archdeacon & Burgess, John Burgess and M. Watson (147 p., 1071 titles, 8° pap., 2s 6d.)

THE 250th catalogue has just been issued from the "Caxton Head," 232 High Holborn, London, by James and Mary Lee Tregaskis. Beautifully printed on good paper, and lavishly illustrated with fac-similes, it ought to be a joy to the collector's heart. The works offered for sale have been derived, as an interesting preface informs the reader, from many sources, including the Borghese Library at Rome, and such collections as those of the late G. F. Gibbey, Sir Benjamin Morris, and Lady Fanny Howard. From this volume the London Academy says Elzevirs "have fallen to a few shillings; while for two first editions of Lewis Carroll—which any of us may have improvidently given away to a child, now a married woman—no less than eleven guineas is asked. We here learn, for the first time, that a number of liturgical books, in sheets, were saved from a fire at the Hôtel Plantin some six years ago. The examples of Blake appear cheap." (1243 titles, il. ed., 5s.; plain ed., 6d.)

"JAHRBUCH FÜR DEN DEUTSCHEN BUCHHAND-EL 1893." Under this title K. F. Koehler, of Leipzig, issues his annual catalogue of books in stock in good bindings. The catalogue contains some 8000 standard works of all publishers, which the house sells to retail booksellers at net prices, according to the well-known system adopted by the large German jobbing houses. An excellent index to the headings facilitates reference to any required subject. An appendix contains a list of dealers in the principal articles connected with the book, paper and stationery trades, a calendar, a number of useful tables, a condensed bookseller's bibliography, and other information useful chiefly to the German bookseller. The catalogue itself, however, will be found handy for reference by booksellers in this country. (385 + 38 p., 16°, 1 mark.)

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued a new portrait catalogue of their standard publications and popular works of fiction. It includes 185 portraits of distinguished writers whose book, bear the imprint of that house, together with a descriptive list of several thousand works in all departments of literature. It is a catalogue worthy of a place in every library. (204 p. 16°.)

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO., as already noted, have issued a new edition of their portrait catalogue which has over 50 portraits of authors, including three new ones which will be of general interest, viz., F. Hopkinson Smith, Kate Douglas Wiggin and Mrs. Jane G. Austin. Walter Crane has designed a new cover for this issue. (152 p. 16°.)

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready a useful "Musical Literature List," arranged alphabetically under author's names with cross-references to the more important subjects. Added to this is given a list of leading musical works of standard value suitable for works of reference, text-books and also for general reading. (64 p. 32°.)

W. H. LOWDERMILK & CO., Washington, D. C., have just ready the 11th part of the 8th volume of the catalogue of United States Government publications, edited by John H. Hickox.

THE October Bulletin of the Boston Public Library contains, in addition to the accessions to the library from July to October, a list of the writings of Christopher Columbus and of the works relating to him in the possession of the library; a continuation of the chronological index to historical fiction (begun in the "Bulletin" for January, 1892); and fac-similes of five broadsides (hitherto unprinted) in the possession of the library.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—D. Appleton & Co., 1 to 5 Bond Street, N. Y., have just issued an attractive, illustrated catalogue of their holiday books. (36 p. 16°.)—J. W. Bouton, 8 W. 28th St., N. Y., Reminders of editions of English and French books. (No. 19, 400 titles.)—Arthur H. Clark, 183 Dearborn St., Chicago, Imported books, especially Americana and theology. #### LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE OPEN COURT PUBLISHING CO. will issue for the holidays "Truth in Fiction, Twelve Tales with a Moral," by Paul Carus.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready "A Millwood Romance and Other Stories," by A. L. Donaldson, a new candidate for literary honors.

THE official register of the German exhibitors at the Chicago Columbian Exhibition shows that in the booktrade 330 houses will be represented.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL CO., Indianapolis, will issue in December "Green Fields and Running Brooks," a new book of verse by James Whitcomb Riley.

A LIFE of the late Daniel Dougherty, by a well-known biographer, is announced for early publication. The material is furnished by the widow of the orator.

THOMAS HARDY's new novel, which is being issued serially in Harper's Bazar, is to be, it is reported, entirely rewritten by its author before being published in book form.

It is claimed that 50,000 copies of Barrie's "The Little Minister" have been sold in the United States. Hardy's "Tess" has had a success rivalling Barrie's masterpiece.

FUNK & WAGNALL'S COMPANY have just issued "Six Song Services," with connective reading, designed for special religious services and Christian entertainment, by Philip Phillips & Son.

REV. D. O. CROWLEY, San Francisco, has in press "Irish Poets and Novelists." The work will embrace biographical sketches of nineteen or twenty popular Irish poets, with illustrations.

BENZIGER BROTHERS have become the exclusive agents in the United States for the publications of Burns & Oates, of London, and now keep a complete stock of their books on hand.

THE plates and stock of the Twentieth Century Publishing Company have been purchased by the Humboldt Publishing Company, and the magazine of that name will be hereafter published by the latter company.

THE YOUNG MEN'S ERA PUBLISHING CO. will publish at once "Inductive Studies in the Minor Prophets," by Prof. W. W. White; and the fourth edition of Rev. H. T. Sell's "Supplemental Bible Studies."

WILLIAM HENRY BANT, at one time private secretary to Sir Edward Grey, M.P., was arrested in New York last month on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Among his victims were several prominent New York publishers.

THE EXCELSIOR PUB. HOUSE has in press "Brown's Business Correspondence and a Manual of Dictation," by William H. Brown; and Wilson's "Modern Dances," containing the "York," La Pavane, Military Schottisch, Christmas Polka, Highland Schottisch, Waltz Caprice, etc.

THE first two editions printed of the holiday Agapida edition of Irving's "Granada" have been exhausted by the advance orders. Messrs. Putnam trust they may be able to complete the printing of a third edition before Christmas. A new impression of the companion edition of the "Alhambra" is now ready.

OUR attention is called to the fact that the limited edition of Eugene Field's "A Second Book of Western Verse" was not published by Charles Scribners' Sons, but was printed privately at the University Press. There were 300 copies of which Charles Scribners' Sons obtained 100 copies and A. C. McClurg & Co. the remaining 200 copies. The volume has about 75 poems.

THE well-known embossed binding which has distinguished Bohn's Libraries from the earliest issues will be abandoned with the new year in favor of the new style, which for some time past has been obtainable as an alternative. As Messrs. Bell will in future keep this only in stock, those who wish to complete sets of any particular subject or author in the old binding, should lose no time in ordering the necessary volumes.

THE CENTURY CO. will issue shortly a volume of verse by Robert Underwood Johnson, associate-editor of The Century, to be called "The Winter Hour, and Other Poems." The title poem is a recently written piece of 500 lines, with interludes, and is of a contemplative character, and on fireside themes, revery, books, art, music, conversation, etc. With a few exceptions, the other poems are collected from various periodicals.

AUSTIN DOBSON's republished volume of "Eighteenth-Century Poems," headed by "Beau Brocade," with fifty pictures by Hugh Thomson, had, according to the London correspondent of the N. Y. Times, a reception unique in the experience of living English makers of verse. Fully 10,000 were ordered by the trade before it was published, and an edition on large paper at a fancy price was subscribed three times over. Lytton's posthumous poem, "King Poppy," on the other hand was received quite coldly by the press.

TELEMAQUE T. TIMAYENIS, who was lodged in Ludlow Street jail recently upon the charge of fraudulently obtaining money from Peter N. Ramsey, has been released on bail. The complainant charges that Timayenis made false representations as to the profits of the Minerva Publishing Company and thereby induced him to invest. Timayenis declares that a contract was made between them, and Ramsey advanced $4,000 to bind the bargain. Ramsey afterward failed, and Timayenis had paid him back $1,500 of that amount.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have completed arrangements for a series of volumes to be entitled the Library of Economics and Politics, each issue of which will treat in a fresh and interesting manner some question of the day. The series will be under the editorial control of Prof. Richard T. Ely, and the volumes now announced are: "The Independent Treasury System of the United States," an historical and critical study of the subject by David Kinley; "American Charities: a study in philanthropy and economics," by Amos G. Warner, Superintendent of Charities in the District of Columbia, and "Repudiation of State Debts in the United States," by William A. Scott. These volumes will appear at regular intervals, and will be followed by others full of practical suggestion and information on topics of timely interest.

GINN & Co., Boston, have devised a "Department of Special Publication," for the getting into print of "valuable works of a special character and a high grade." In other words, they propose to manufacture and lend their imprint to any work of this description on the simple insurance not of profit but against loss. This insurance will be ascertained by sending out prospectuses to the class interested in the proposed publication, partly at the author's expense. Professors, it is intimated, may thus secure desirable text-books by a guarantee to use them for a certain number of years. Societies and colleges also may use this department for the publication of monographs. They have just issued "A French Reader," by A. Dufour, a graded collection of extracts chiefly from modern writers, preceded by short biographical sketches of the authors.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce for early publication "Uncle Remus and His Friends," a new and delightful book by Joel Chandler Harris; and "Aladdin in London," a story of mystery and adventure by Fergus Hume, author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab." They have just issued the Centenary Edition of Shelley's poetical works, edited with an introductory memoir by G. E. Woodberry, beautifully printed and brought out in a limited large-paper edition in eight volumes as well as in the regular four-volume edition; "The Chosen Valley," a novel of Western life by Mary Hall-ock Foote; "Historical and Political Essays," by Henry Cabot Lodge; "Prose Idyls," a volume of delicate and fanciful essays by John Albee; and "The Army of Northern Virginia in 1862," by William Allan, a colonel in the Confederate service.

JAMES H. CARLETON, a wealthy citizen of Haverhill, Mass., bought a part of the Whittier homestead, in East Parish. The purchase includes the house and land around it, also the barn and other buildings on the opposite side of the road and several acres of land. The farm is large and the greater portion is still retained by the owner, Mr. Elliott. The farm was sold to the late James Chase by the Whittier family, about 1837, and later was bought by the late Samuel C. Elliott and by him sold to his brother George. It is understood that Mr. Carleton will present the homestead to the city of Haverhill, with such conditions as will cause it to remain a memorial of John Greenleaf Whittier forever. About one year ago an unsuccessful effort was made to purchase the place in the interest of the Whittier Club, with a view to its being held as a memorial.

THEODORE L. DE VINNE & Co. are printing the new rubricated Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which will be known in ecclesiastical history as the "Standard of 1892." The edition consists of 1162 copies. Of this number 650 copies are printed in royal octavo size on good book paper, and bound in cloth, with polished red edges; one of these is to be presented to each delegate to the General Convention which recently assembled at Baltimore. The type will then be reimposed to a leaf 10 x 4 inches, and 500 copies printed on hand-made paper and 12 copies on vellum. Those on hand-made paper are to be bound in parchment and offered for sale at $20 each. One of the vellum copies will receive unique treatment, both in printing and binding, as it will be the property of the General Convention; it is designated "The Standard Book," and all other copies must be certified as accurate transcripts of it. The eleven remaining copies on vellum will be printed and handsomely bound at the personal expense of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, who will present them to those who have been most actively engaged in preparing this sumptuous edition.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "The Armies of To-Day," a collection of interesting descriptive articles showing the standing armies of Europe, the United States and Mexico, illustrated by Remington, Thulstrup, Zogbaum and Woodville; the first volume of their handsome illustrated edition of Green's "Short History of the English People"; "Autobiographical Notes of the Life of William Bell Scott," a volume of delightful recollections of literary and artistic life in Edinburgh; "Moltke, His Life and Character," a new issue in the Moltke series, compiled by Mary Herms, from the letters, diaries and MSS. of the great field-marshal; the first two volumes of a "History of the United States from the Compromise of 1850," by James Ford Rhodes, who concludes his second volume with the election of Lincoln; "Chicago and the World's Fair," an excellent descriptive manual by Julian Ralph; and "Foundations of Rhetoric," a high-school text-book by Prof. A. S. Hill. The bound volume of Harper's Young People for 1892, which fully equals its predecessors in the beauty, value and variety of its contents, and Charles Carleton Coffin's interesting biography of "Abraham Lincoln," are also just ready.

MACMILLAN & Co. will shortly publish an important work by C. M. Williams entitled "A Review of the Systems of Ethics Founded on the Theories of Evolution." The work is divided into two parts of nearly equal length, of which the first is historical, giving in detail the position of each of the prominent writers on evolutionary ethics; while the second or constructive portion presents the combined results of such independent investigations in chapters dealing with the concepts of evolution; intelligence and "end;" thought, feeling, and will; egoism and altruism; conscience and the moral progress of the race; the ideal and the way of its attainment. They announce that the recently completed edition of Foster's "Text-Book of Physiology" in four parts is to be supplemented by the issue of an appendix on "The Chemical Basis of the Animal Body," by A. Sheridan Lea, lecturer on physiology to the University of Cambridge, England; also, a new work on the heavens and their origin, under the title of "The Visible Universe," by J. Ellard Gore, the author of "Star Groups," etc. The book is a discussion of the theories which have been advanced from time to time as to the construction of the heavens, celestial chemistry, stellar distances and motions, etc., and is illustrated by stellar photographs and lithographic plates.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will shortly issue "Studies of Travel in Greece and Italy," two volumes of historical and archaeological studies by the late Professor Freeman; a twentieth edition of "Haden's Dictionary of Dates and Universal Information," carefully revised and brought down to date; "Dogmatic Christianity," discussed by a Roman Catholic Archbishop and by the Hon. Wm. Dearing Harden; "The Gospel and its Earliest Interpretations," a thoughtful study of New Testament doctrine by Rev. Dr. Orello Cone; and "The Meaning and Method of Life," a biological study by Dr. Geo. M. Gould. They will have three volumes of essays: "Studies by a Recluse in Cloister, Town and Village," the "recluse" being Rev. Augustus Jessop, author of "Trials of a Country Parson;" "Ruminations," by Albert Mathews; and "Tasks by Twilight," by Abbot Kinney. There is also announced a delightful collection of weird "Voodoo Tales," as told by the "Aunties," gathered by Mary A. Owen; and three new volumes of verse: "A Country Muse," by Norman R. Gale, the first London edition of which was exhausted in one week after publication; "Red Leaves and Roses," by Madison J. Cawein; and "Mål-mörda," a poem of Irish history by J. I. C. Clarke. Two very useful little books are the convenient "Pocket Encyclopædia" and "Carlsbad—a Medico-Practical Guide," by Dr. Emil Kleen.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just issued "Hermine's Triumphs," a story for girls and boys by the popular French author Mme. Colomb. The popularity of this charming story of French home life, which has passed through many editions in Paris, has been earned by the sustained interest of the narrative, the sympathetic presentation of character, and the wholesomeness of the lessons which are suggested. "General Taylor," a biography by Major-General O. O. Howard, U. S. A., will follow Mahan's "Farragut" in the Great Commanders Series published by D. Appleton & Co. General Howard has visited the scenes of Taylor's campaigns in Mexico, and his book will be found to be an authority for those who are interested in the military history of our country. This biography contains a portrait and several maps. The Appletons also announce that a new novel by Paul Lindau, author of "Lace," will be published immediately in Appletons' admirable Town and Country Library. The title is "Hanging Moss," and the story describes certain phases of social life in Berlin, with a change of scene to this country in the latter part of the book. They have nearly ready in one convenient volume a collection of the choicest specimen of English verse entitled "Three Centuries of English Love Songs." The selection has been made with rare discrimination by Ralph Caine, a brother of Hall Caine, the well-known novelist, and will be presented in a dainty, specially bound volume, with a frontispiece after Angelica Kauffman.

FOREIGN NOTES.

SPECIAL interest has been taken in London in the announcement of the translation of Regamey's "Japan in Art and Industry," and a first supply of 2000 copies has been ordered for the London market.

MRS. OLIPHANT'S forthcoming history of the Victorian age of English literature will have an interesting feature in the shape of hitherto unpublished letters from distinguished authors, discussing their own works.

CHAPMAN & HALL have just published a new "Life of Cervantes," by Mr. James Fitzmaurice Kelly. It is described as a biographical, literary, and historical study, with a tentative bibliography from 1585 to 1892, and an annotated appendix on the "Canto de Caliope."

A VOLUME entitled "The Book of Delightful and Strange Designs" is issued by the Leadenhall Press, and other publishers in London and abroad. It gives one hundred fac-simile illustrations of the art of the Japanese stencil-cutter, with an introduction by Mr. Andrew W. Tuer, which seems to be reproduced in the language of every country in which the book is published.

FREDERICK EVANS, alias "the Duke of Teck," whose real name is Masson P. Helmboldt (and who is the second son of Dr. H. T. Helmboldt of "Buchu" fame), was committed to prison in England for swindling. Helmboldt is between thirty and thirty-five years old and quite deaf. He has written poems and books of travel, his three published volumes of poetry showing merit of a high order.

THE late Thomas Nelson, the publisher, of Edinburgh, left $300,000 in legacies for the erection and equipment of five workmen's clubs and reading-rooms, which will be erected gradually, and will be so fitted as to attract workmen. Among other institutions to receive benefits are the Free Church of Scotland and the Edinburgh Infirmary. It is reported that Mr. Nelson's estate amounts to about a million pounds sterling.

MR. RUSKIN'S forthcoming book, "The Poetry of Architecture," will contain a collection of essays, the first part describing the cottages of England, France, Switzerland and Italy, and giving hints for picturesque cottage building; and the second part treating of the villas of Italy and England, and concluding with a discussion of the laws of artistic composition and practical suggestions of interest to the builders of country houses. The text will be accompanied by fourteen plates in photogravure from unpublished drawings by the author, besides nine full-page and other new wood-cuts.

MR. HENRY LABOUCHERE, in Truth, on Nov. 16, exposes another fraudulent society of science, letters and art, similar to that for conducting which Sir Gilbert Campbell and others were recently convicted of swindling and sent to prison. Dr. Albert Sturman recently founded the Bosses' Society, of which he made himself secretary. Sir Henry Valentine Gould, an impecunious Irish baronet, eighty-seven years old, was the president of this society. Branches were started in the United States and in Berlin to sell certificates of membership and grant fellowships. Each fellow was privileged to wear a hood of black silk, lined with mauve. Mr. Labouchere concludes his exposure by saying: "The gullibility of the British public is illimitable."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusives of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Right words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Apologetics.

By Prof. A. B. BRUCE, D.D., Free College, Glasgow. Crown 8vo, $2.50, net.

Prof. Bruce's book is the third volume in the International Theological Library, of which Prof. Driver's extraordinarily successful "Literature of the Old Testament" was the first, and Dr. Smyth's "Christian Ethics" the second.

The Swiss Reformation.

Vol. VII. in the History of the Christian Church.

By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D., LL.D. Illustrated. Large 8vo, $4.00.

A new volume in Dr. Schaff's great work, treating of the part played by Calvin and Zwingli and their Swiss contemporaries in the Reformation, and having a special interest in connection with the present controversy in the Presbyterian Church.

The Poetry of Tennyson.

By HENRY VAN DYKE, D.D. Third edition.

With portrait. 12mo, $2.00.

A new edition of a remarkably successful book containing important additions.

"Without doubt this appreciative and discriminating study is the best general companion to the reading of Tennyson that exists."—The Examiner (N. Y.).

The Mission of the Church.

Four Lectures delivered in the Cathedral Church of St. Asaph. By the Rev. CHARLES GORE, editor of "Lux Mundi," etc. 12mo, $1.00.

The relation of the Church of England to Society, the problem of meeting independent and hostile opinion, and the question of unity within the Church are the principal themes in Mr. Gore's characteristically fresh and invigorating book.

The Refounding of the German Empire.

By Col. G. B. MALLESON, C.S.I. With 4 portraits on copper. Events of Our Own Time Series. 8vo, $1.75.

The popularity of Col. Malleison's "Indian Mutiny of 1857," in the same series, indicates that this new book will meet with equally wide appreciation.

Rowen "Second Crop" Songs.

By H. C. BUNNER. 12mo, $1.25.

"Rowen," as the title indicates, is a second harvest of poems by Mr. Bunner, whose "Airs from Arcady" achieved such a literary and popular success. The poems are varied in character, and all marked by Mr. Bunner's winning and unmistakably characteristic touch.

With Trumpet and Drum.

By EUGENE FIELD. 16mo, $1.00.

A dainty little volume of poems for children and about childhood, written in a charmingly sympathetic spirit, and distinguished by their great delicacy of feeling and humor.

Sermons

On subjects connected with the Old Testament.

By S. R. DRIVER, D.D. 12mo, $1.75.

This volume is supplementary, to a certain extent, to the author's important work, "Introduction to the Literature of the Old Testament." It indicates the direction in which the Old Testament may be fruitfully studied and be made practically useful.

The Religious-Political Series

By STEPHEN MAYBELL.

This Series is issued in the interest of the Religious-Political movement which is at present becoming not only national but international. The following volumes in this series are now ready:

Civilization Civilized;

Or, The Process of Socialism. By STEPHEN MAYBELL. Paper covers, 50 cents.

"We have attentively read this essay and find it a detailed plan to remove forevermore all pecuniary distress and all political ills. Our emotions were, first, surprise; second, pleasure; third, conviction and delight. That our author has really found the philosopher's stone for the removal of all human ills is certain. Every friend of humanity should have a copy of this book."—AMERICAN LIBERTY, Hampton, Va.

Land Currency; or, No Tax.

By STEPHEN MAYBELL. Paper covers, 25 cents.

"Every person who desires a clear and comprehensive exposition of the great issue before the American people should not fail to read Stephen Maybell's 'Land Currency.'"—J. B. CRIFFS, Albion, Iowa.

"You have done, and in my judgment are doing, more to properly educate the masses and thereby elevate mankind, than any other author, living or dead."—E. J. LOOMIS, Chenango Lake, N. Y.

Now Ready :

Mr. WAUGH'S STUDY OF THE LIFE AND WORKS OF BARON TENNYSON.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson,

A Study of His Life and Work. By ARTHUR WAUGH, B.A. Oxon. With portraits and 21 illustrations from photographs specially taken for this work. One vol., octavo, cloth, gilt top, uncut edges, $3.00.

This volume contains the first attempt to study the late Laureate's work in direct reference to his biography—hat is to say, to review the individual development in connection with the work in which it resulted. Without making an undue claim to rank as a final or official biography, it contains much more information about the poet than has hitherto been collected into a single volume, and is perhaps, the fullest study of his poetry yet attempted.

"The result, we may at once say, is an interesting and well-written book, the work of one who has studied Tennyson's poetry with faithful devotion. Mr. Waugh has told his tale with accuracy and judgment, his analysis of the 'Idylls' is excellent, and the accounts of the various dramas given are interesting."—London Daily Chronicle.

"Mr. Waugh's book is one which can be warmly recommended. It is scholarly and unhyssical; the narrative part is a remarkably full and careful cento taken from the journals, memoirs and correspondence of the age, arranged in excellent taste, and the criticism, if sometimes a little timid, is sound and wholesome. . . . A valuable feature of Mr. Waugh's book is the prominence it gives to a consideration of the plays."—Saturday Review.

"Mr. Arthur Waugh's 'Alfred, Lord Tennyson' contains evidence of faithful study of the Laureate's literary career; it displays an intimacy with Tennyson's Poems such as we should expect from one who aspires to be his biographer; and Mr. Waugh's discriminating judgments have evidently cost time and thought, and proceed from a critical faculty of no mean order."—The Times.

The Wreck of the Grosvenor.

By W. CLARK RUSSELL, author of "An Ocean Tragedy," "The Flying Dutchman," etc., etc. Profusely illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

All the attraction of the sea is to be found in "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," one of the ablest of this famous author's nautical stories. The volume is replete with excellent illustrations which admirably portray the spirit of the text.

NEW EDITIONS IN PAPER.

A Son of Esau.

By MINNIE GILMORE, author of "The Woman Who Stood Between," "Pipes from Prairie Land," etc. With frontispiece portrait of the author. Illuminated cover, paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"Miss Gilmore's book conclusively demonstrates both her power and her industry."—Boston Herald.

"A novel possessing purity of diction and beauty of sentiment, that evokes an admiration amounting to reverence."—Minneapolis Tribune.

"A Son of Esau," is a story of daintiness and of power. It is the orchestral composition of which the author's recent exquisite volume of poems, "Pipes from Prairie Land," was the overture."—New York Telegram.

Sea Mew Abbey.

By FLORENCE WARDEN, author of "The House on the Marsh," "A Woman's Face," etc. Paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"It is a story of smuggling, and its interest is steadily exciting. It is the most artistic of its writer's novels, and is especially clever in its character drawing."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

Mammon.

By Mrs. ALEXANDER, author of "At Bay," "The Admiral's Ward," etc. Paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"This admirable story of English life is one of the best that the accomplished and famous author has produced. Amid the dearth of honest, old-fashioned novels, a story like this—pure, lifelike, well-written—is a boon to the public, who will certainly show their appreciation of its excellence."—Public Opinion.

RECENT BOOKS.

The Woman Who Stood Between.

By MINNIE GILMORE, author of "A Son of Esau," "Pipes from Prairie Land," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

One should not always look for pleasing endings in a story if it is to be at all lifelike. In this new work from the pen of Miss Gilmore, the final catastrophe is not what the average reader might desire it to be. It is, nevertheless, the most fitting ending for a story in which the characters are drawn from so unusual a sphere of life.

Scarabæus:

The Story of an African Beetle. By the MARQUISE CLARA LANZA and JAMES CLARENCE HARVEY. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"The tale is aggressive, impetuous, and often thrilling, dealing as it does with a fascinating theme, and casting its figures against backgrounds of a strange picturesqueness."—Brooklyn Times.

"Scarabæus" tells how a mystic finger-ring had an influence on various lives, and how the evil influence of Scarabæus wrought unexpected good. The plot is of absorbing interest and vigorously dramatic and moves along an original line of its own."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

Mr. Billy Downs and His Likes.

By RICHARD MALCOLM JOHNSON, author of "Dukesborough Tales." Stamped cloth, etc., about 200 pages, with frontispiece by Dan Beard. 75 cents.

Colonel Johnson is easily the Dean among Southern men of letters, and the announcement of a new volume from his pen calls for little comment. It is sufficient to state that he has selected a number of his most characteristic Georgia tales, now first published in book form, including: "A Wedding in Dooley District," "The Townsies," "Something in a Name," "Parting from Sailor," "A Bachelor's Counsellings," and "Two Administrations."

A POET'S ITINERARY.

Under Summer Skies.

By CLINTON SCOLLARD. Cloth, octavo, 300 pages, $1.00.

In the present volume, "Under Summer Skies," Mr. Scollard narrates in delicate prose the story of his wanderings in Egypt, Palestine, Italy and the Alps. This pleasant reading is interspersed here and there with poetical interludes, descriptive of the scene in which it is set. The author is a careful artist in words, with a bright eye for every scrap of local color, and an unflagging interest in all that is rare or curious or historical. The volume is attractively printed with wide margins, and numerous half-tone illustrations by Margaret Landers Randolph.

By ANNA BOWMAN DODD. In one volume, 8vo, full gilt. Strictly limited to five hundred copies. Owing to the demand made for this limited edition, the price has been advanced to $7.50 per copy.

"A whole gallery of pastels in prose."—New York World.

"A thoroughly artistic treatment of picturesque scenery and a picturesque people."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"It is long since a more vivacious and thoroughly charming volume of travels has appeared. Old as the theme is, and familiar as the ground is, Mrs. Dodd has given to her narrative an individuality and a freshness that are delightful."—Book Buyer.

The text of the present Holiday Edition is printed in blue-black ink on extra heavy super-finished paper, while the twenty-four full-page illustrations, by C. S. Reinhart and other artists of note, are printed separately on Imperial Japanese paper, in tints of sepia, ultramarine, purple, dark green, terra-cotta, and olive. "Catmur's Cave," contains a fascinating and mysterious plot. . . . There are several well-conceived dramatic situations, and the conclusion is a particularly pleasing one."—Nashville American.

"The plot is striking and there is not a single situation that is hackneyed. Several of the incidents are particularly touching and pretty."—Albany Argus.

Ralph Ryder of Brent.

By FLORENCE WARDEN, author of "A Witch on the Hills," "The House on the Marsh," etc. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"The author has woven a very clever and consistent plot, and the mystery falls like a veil—in the last chapter."—Boston Times.

"The style is bright and original, and the characters naturally and strongly drawn."—Richmond Dispatch.

Wedded to Sport.

By MRS. EDWARD KENNARD, author of "The Girl in the Brown Habit," "Matron or Maid," etc. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"In this story there are real touches of pathos, for we find a high-souled woman attempting to live with a morally weak and vicious unrefined man. The effort must necessarily be disastrous, and yet the conclusion is as happy as any old-fashioned novel the reader could desire."—Chicago Times.

The Juvenile Book of the Year!

VIC:

The Autobiography of a Fox-Terrier.

By MARIE MORE MARSH. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This is the story of a dog as "Black Beauty" is the story of a horse, but by no means an imitation. The pathos of the story, its delicate humor, and the sparkling style in which it is told combine to make this one of the most attractive of books for children of all ages.

"A Delightful Volume."

The Fever of Life.

By FERGUS HUME, author of "The Piccadilly Puzzle," "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Hollywood Series.

Mr. Hume's new story treats of the daughter of a Maori chief, who, separated by her own misconduct from her child, watches over her in her womanhood with all the tiger's fierce fondness for its offspring. This "savage daughter of a barbaric race" is at war with the restraints of civilized society and her furious revolt against them reminds one of the shaking bars of the newly imprisoned terror of the Bengal jungles. The book is a study of the human carnivora, lightened throughout by some wonderful touches of redeeming pathos.

The Diary of a Nobody.

By GEORGE GROSSMITH and WEEDON GROSSMITH. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

The humor which enlivens the faithful record of the sayings and doings, and no less the emotions, of Mr. Charles Pooter is irresistible, and the book furnishes some very bright and lively reading for a winter's night. Mr. Grossmith's mirth, as all the theatre-going world knows, is very contagious, and Weedon Grossmith's nimble pencil is aptness itself in catching his brother's subtle humor. There is not a dull page in the book. Mr. George Grossmith's presence in this country lends an additional interest to the work.

My Friend Pasquale.

By J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "Who Is the Man?" "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This is a volume of short stories all eminently original in plot and treatment, and of well-sustained interest. "The Lost Wedding-Ring," "A Strange Story," "Two Ninety-Day Options," "Two Christmas Eves" and "Glancing Shafts" are the other titles of the book. The story which gives its name to the work is one of thrilling and sympathetic interest. The writer pitches a high key in his tales, but there is no anti-climax; on the contrary the reader's interest is held and intensified until the end in every instance.

The Old Maids' Club.

By I. ZANGWILL, author of "The Bachelors' Club," "The Big Bow Mystery," etc. With illustrations. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25.

The author, Israel Zangwill, is recognized as one of the most promising young writers of the day—a new Disraeli in the boldness and brilliancy of his fancy. The book is profusely and handsomely illustrated by F. H. Townsend and is one of the most delicious literary conceits of recent years. The story of The Old Maids' Club, which is indeed intended to be a club of young, beautiful and wealthy women—the cold-blooded austerity of its exclusiveness, its inflexible conditions of membership, its relentless by-laws, the thrilling adventures which overtake its would-be members, its extraordinary ending—the story of these must be studied at length in the book itself which is absolutely unique in its way.

A Conquering Heroine.

By THE DUCHESS, author of "Phyllis," "Molly Bawn," etc. 18mo, paper, 25 cents.

A bright, crisply written story, with the characteristic breeziness of "The Duchess" style is every page. The heroine, one of those lively Irish girls which "The Duchess" loves to depict, makes desperate havoc in the house of her English hostess, is the cause of three engagements being broken and of the extreme wretchedness of at least half a dozen people. In the midst of universal distress she marries her cousin, Terence, and the story closes to the music of marriage-bells. The narrative, which is a short one, is very delightful reading.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. SCHULTE & Co. publish to-day a clever volume by Art. Young, entitled "Hades up to Date," with forty full-page illustrations and marginal sketches by the author; also, a volume entitled "Quiet Music," by Charles Eugene Banks. They will issue early in January next a new book by Hamlin Garland entitled "Prairie Folks."

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just issued a volume of poems by Charles Leonard Moore, of whose work Dr. Weir Mitchell wrote with such enthusiasm in the June Forum. The volume will include "A Book of Day Dreams," "Poems Antique and Modern," and a romantic South American comedy in prose entitled "The Banquet of Palacios."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published Mary E. Wilkins' new dramatic and intensely interesting novel, "Jane Field," illustrated by W. T. Smedley; a collection of short stories for boys and girls, "Christmas Every Day," by William Dean Howells, handsomely illustrated; "The Midnight Warning, and other stories," by E. H. House; and "The Moon Prince, and other stories," by R. K. Munkittrick, with illustrations by F. Ver Beck. The three books last named are designed for young readers.

GINN & Co. will publish early in January "A Plot-Book of Some Elizabethan Plays," edited with an introduction and notes by George Pierce Baker, instructor in English in Harvard College. The editor aims to place in the hands of students of English literature material which, in the main, exists at present only in rare and costly editions, in books or pamphlets to be had only in a few of the great libraries or unique in the British Museum, and considerable new information as to the sources of well-known plays. It will be in two volumes.

MACMILLAN & Co. publish this week two important fine-art books: Mr. Hamerton's sumptuous volume, "Man in Art," illustrated by photogravures, etchings, hellogravures, line-engravings and wood engravings, and Mr. Harry Quilter's "Preferences in Art, Life and Literature." The latter includes an important history of Pre-Raphaelitism and "An Essay upon Contemporary English Painting." Special care has been taken with the 64 full-page plates, which have been printed in the best Parisian style. They will publish shortly, under the title of "Echoes of Old County Life," an illustrated volume of interesting recollections of the sport, society, politics and farming of the "good old times" in a typical English county. The author, J. K. Fowler, gives personal reminiscences and anecdotes of many well-known men, among whom are Lord Beaconsfield, the Count d'Orsay, the Rothschilds, Bishop Wilberforce and others.

With many graceful vignettes in text, fine paper, gilt edges and cover rich in gold stampings.

Allan, W. The army of northern Virginia in 1862; with a preface by J. C. Ropes. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Allen, G. A. Manners and customs of the Mohaves; from the Smithsonian report for 1890. Wash., D. C., Government Print. Office, 1891 [1892.] 1+615-616 p. O., pap., n. p.

Allen, Stanton P. Down in Dixie: life in a cavalry regiment in the war days; from the Wilderness to Appomattox; il. by H. G. Laskey. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1892.] 2-494+2 p. il. O. cl., $2.25.

Personal recollections incidental to the War of the Rebellion are given in chronological order, with description of soldier life in camp, bivouac and battlefield. The author, who enlisted at fourteen years of age, accounts for that fact, and gives a detailed and humorous account of his equipping for the United States Cavalry, and claims that his was not an individual experience. The reminiscences end 26 years after the war with description of a regimental reunion.

Allsop, F. C. Practical electric-light fitting: a treatise on the wiring and fitting up of buildings deriving currents from central station mains and the laying down of private installations; incl. the latest edition of the Phoenix Fire Office rules. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 15+275 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

American and English railroad cases: a coll. of all the railroad cases in the courts of last resort in America and England; ed. by W. M. McKinney. V. 50. Northport, N. Y., E. Thompson Co., [1892.] c. 7+724 p. O. shp., $4.50.

Anacreon: the Greek text, with T. Stanley's translation; to which is added an appendix of metrical renderings by various hands; ed. by A. H. Bullen; il. by J. R. Weguelin. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1892. 4°, limited ed., cl., net, $7.50.

Andrews, W. Bygone England: social studies in its historic byways and highways. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1892. il. 8°, cl., $2.25.

Atkinson, (Canon.) Scenes in Fairyland; or, Miss Mary's visits to the court of fairy realm; il. by C. E. Brock. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 7+246 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Mary Cary starts out for Folly Hill in quest of a four-leaf clover in company with her old friend, Mr. Greenbeard. They find the plant, which gains them entrance into Fairyland. In these realms Miss Mary is the heroine in a series of wonderful incidents, which later prove to be only the dreams of a sleeping child. Indignantly refuting this fact, she calls on her old friend to continue the story of their adventures, and the result is a fanciful tale, in which many representatives of natural history are strangely mixed with the fairies.

Baker, Ira O. Engineer's surveying instruments: their construction, adjustment and use. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1892. 10+891 p. 12°, cl., $3.

Bangs, J. Kendrick. In camp with a tin soldier; il. by E. M. Ashe. N. Y., [De Witt Publishing House,] R. H. Russell & Son, 1892. c. 5-194 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A sequel to the "Tiddlywink tales." Jimmie is the hero, as he was in the former story. In the present tale he is for a time subject to the orders of the colonel of his tin regiment in a proposed encounter with a "parallellopedion." The adventures of this pair are humorously told.

Baring-Gould, S. The tragedy of the Cæsars: a study of the characters of the Cæsars of the Julian and Claudian houses. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1892. 2 v., L. 8°, cl., $7.50.

Bigelow, Mary Fenton. A fellowship of hearts. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1892. c. 348 p. D. cl., $1.

It was the custom of Ruth Burton and an invalid friend to while away some of the tedious hours of the former's invalidism by committing certain verses to memory and repeating them to each other on fitting occasions. One of these tells of a fellowship of hearts, which is always ours to keep and cultivate. This verse is the motto of a story which concludes with a quaint romance. The scene is Warren, a country town.

Birkmaier, Elizabeth G. Poseidon's paradise: the romance of Atlantis. San Francisco, Cal., The Clemens Pub. Co., 1892. c. 805 p. map, D. (Pacific lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c.

Into the tragic legend of Atlantis the writer has woven the Grecian myth of Deucalion and Pyrrha. Hellen, their son, from whom the Hellenes sprang, is represented as a captive in Atlantis, where his experiences lead to the fulfillment of a prophecy foretelling the destruction of Atlantis as a judgment upon the cruelty and wickedness of her people.

Birks, Rev. T. R., ed. Horæ evangelicæ; or, the internal evidence of the gospel history: being an inquiry into the structure and origin of the four gospels and the characteristic design of each narrative. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 27+461 p. 8. cl., $4.

Brownell, W. C. French art; classic and contemporary painting and sculpture. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1892. c. 6+239 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Under the headings of "Classic painting," "Romanic painting," "Realistic painting," "Classic sculpture," "Academic sculpture," and "The new movement in sculpture" we are offered critical estimates of the work of Claude and Poussin; Lebrun and Lesueur; Greuze and Chardin; David, Ingres and Prudhon; Delacroix, Courbet, Bastien-Lepage; Tromentin, Jean Goujon; Chapu; Rodin and others.

Bruce, Alex. Balmain, D.D. Apologetics; or, Christianity defensively stated. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1892. c. 13+522 p. O. (International theological lib., no. 8.) cl., net, $2.50.

An apologetic presentation of the Christian faith with reference to whatever in our intellectual environment makes faith difficult at the present time. Addressed to men whose sympathies are with Christianity, but whose faith is "stified or weakened by anti-Christian prejudices of varied nature and origin." Topics of pressing concern and burning questions are discussed. Divided into three books. Book I, Theories of the universe, Christian and anti-Christian; II, Historical preparation for Christianity; III, The Christian origin. The author is Professor of Apologetics and New Testament Exegesis, Free Church College, Glasgow.

Burt, B. C. A history of modern philosophy (from the Renaissance to the present). Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 2-368; 2-321 p. O., cl., $4.

The general character of this work is best expressed by the author in his introduction, as follows: "My philosophy, as distinguished from mediæval philosophy, is occupied with the immanent and concrete, rather than the transcendent and abstract; with the natural and the human, rather than the supernatural and superhuman. As distinguished from ancient philosophy, it is occupied with the subject, rather than the object; with thought, rather than with being. The work is divided into three periods, which are divided into groups of authors. A brief biography of author is given, followed by a list of his principal works and a summary of his philosophy and of his relation to the history of modern thought. The content of philosophic system and his influence upon succeeding thinkers are then briefly stated, together with the author's own comments and criticisms.

"A woman's philosophy of love" is the outcome thirty-five years of thought, study and experience is not a book for babes or for persons of a darkened purient mind. The author believes that there large class of cultivated and thoughtful people see in the relations between men and women the mentary principle of all civil order, the keynote of all social progress; and who will welcome a thoughtful and dispassionate discussion of some of those vexed questions of right and priority which are forcing themselves into every field of thought and labor."—Publishers' note.

Croker, B. M. A family likeness: a sketch in the Himalayas. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893 [1892.] c. 8-322 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 140.) pap., 50 c.

"Dolly" Carwithen marries a sergeant's daughter while on duty in India. She leaves him a little daughter, Juliet, whom he puts to school and after paying for liberally quite forgets. Later, handsome, well-born, impecunious "Dolly" marries a rich money-changer's daughter and again quite forgets to mention his first matrimonial venture. Juliet grows up in India, has a fine singing voice, and at last finds her lawful position in society owing to "a family likeness."

Donaldson, A. L. A Millbrook romance, and other tales. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1893 [1892.] c. 5-155 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Millbrook, in the heart of Dutchess County, is the scene of an aged hero's recital of a quaint love-story, which he relates to his willing listener because it resembles, excepting in one episode, Longfellow's Evangeline. Included with A romance of Millbrook is A sound from the past; The story of a picture; A reverie; A pair of gloves; The opal ring; A simple story.

Douglass, F. Life and times of Frederick Douglass, written by himself; his early life as a slave, his escape from bondage, and his complete history to the present time; with an introd. by G. L. Rufin. New rev. ed. Bost., De Wolfe, Fiske & Co., 1893 [1892.] 753 p. por. il. O. cl., $2.50.

This new edition contains over one hundred pages of additional matter just written, bringing the work down to the present time, with a new portrait of Mr. Douglass. First published in 1881 by the Park Publishing Co., of Hartford.

Eggleston, E. The Hoosier schoolmaster: a novel; revised ed., with an introd. and notes on the dialect. New library ed. N. Y., Orange Judd Co., 1892. c. '71, '92. 2-281 p. por. D. cl., $1.50.

Issued in commemoration of the publication and sale of 100,000 copies of this pioneer dialect story of America. Mr. Eggleston has written an extended preface giving many curious facts regarding the origin and history of this novel from its first conception to the present time. He has also appended interesting notes upon the origin of many of the dialect terms.

Ellsworth, L. C. A little worldling: a novel. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. '90. 320 p. D. (American authors ser., no. 48.) pap., 50 c.

The "little worldling" is the orphan daughter of an artistic son who has been cast off by his straight-laced, puritanic mother. She has been around the world with artists and singers and the atmosphere she brings into her grandmother's house upsets the old lady. Nixie is a sweet, fresh girl of many gifts. A secret involving the honor of her grandmother's name almost rocks Nixie's life, but in the end there are marriage-bells.

Eschenbach, Marie v. Ebner. Beyond atonement; tr. by Marie A. Robinson. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1892. c. 2+287 p. D. (International lib.) cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

The story is laid in Vienna and around the country-seat of the Dornachs. Irma Wolfberg marries Hermann Dornach. After she has been unfaithful to him she learns to love him. Her husband and his child are drowned. Her lover's child lives and Irma's dearest friends after her confession are willing to receive her and make her son head of the house. But Irma feels her sin is "beyond atonement," and expiates it in solitude. A selfish, dissipated father is largely responsible for orphaned Irma's great sin.

The Cathedral Church of St. Asaph, one of the smallest in Britain, stands in a little rural borough of North Wales. The writer is Principal of Pusey House, and two years ago was much criticised in connection with an article on "The Holy Spirit and inspiration," which appeared in "Lux Mundi." The separate titles of these lectures are: The mission of the church; Unity within the Church of England; The relation of the church to independent and hostile opinion, and The mission of the church in society. Copious notes define points of doctrine.

Harbert, Elizabeth Boynton. Aureore. N. Y., Lovell, Gestefeld & Co., [1892.] c. 276 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Philip Ward rejoiced in an ideal father and mother. After he became a Christian minister, employed by the American Board of Missions, he met Theodora, a young girl whose whole life was given to good works. Her methods were startling to some of the straight-laced good people about her, but after a time results testify of the sovereign power of love towards all men. Philip and Theodora benefit each other and mankind. "Aureore" love, remains their watchword. An American story.

Harland, Marion, [pseud. for Mrs. Ma. V. H. Terhune.] The story of Mary Washington. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 171 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.

Written at the request of the National Mary Washington Memorial Association. A reverent tribute to the memory of a woman of marked characteristics, who should be better known and esteemed by her country-women, and also an interesting picture of life in Virginia in the early part of the eighteenth century. Mary Ball was born in 1706, married Augustine Washington in 1730, and died in 1789. In 1833 a monument was begun to her memory with much flourish, but has remained unfinished. The memorial association now see their way to finishing a suitable "sacred column."

Harlow, L. K., comp. The world's best hymns; comp. and il. by L. K. Harlow; with an introd. by J. W. Churchill. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1892. c. 16+168 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Eighty-four hymns, by sixty-four different authors selected from the best English lyrical religious poetry that has been immediately associated with sacred music, and hallowed by long and constant use in the service of song in the home and the church. The original illustrations by the critical compiler show his worth as a landscape artist in water-colors. Delicately bound in light-blue cloth with flower decoration.

Harris, Joel Chandler, ["Uncle Remus," pseud.] Uncle Remus and his friends: old plantation stories, songs and ballads, with sketches of negro character; il. by A. B. Frost. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 14+357 p. D. cl., $1.50.

In this volume Mr. Harris concludes the series of "Uncle Remus" stories, which have won such wide popularity. Uncle Remus has become a classic character in American fiction and is accurately and delightfully representative of his race in the Southern States. His philosophy, his humor and his views of life are again seen at their best in these twenty-four short stories, sixteen songs and ballads and twenty-one sketches of home and friends. Twelve illustrations.

Hatch, Mary R. P. The missing man. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893 [1892.] c. 6+308 p. D. (Good company ser., no. 22.) pap., 50 c.

The mysterious disappearance of a wealthy and respected banker, who has apparently committed forgery and deserted his family, is the groundwork of this story. Later the banker reappears with explanations that are accepted by his associates. His story is contested by a rugged mill-worker, who declares himself to be the missing man, and whose desperate claim is supported by the deserted wife. The question of identity and the mysterious attendant details are well worked out. Hypnotism is an important element in the story, and the writer states that "the strangest incidents are the true ones," as set forth in the records of the Societies for Psychical Research.

Hazard, M. C., and Kilbon, J. Luther. Pilgrim series: chronological-inductive: a study of the life of Jesus the Christ, in fifty-two lessons; three grades for Sunday-schools, Bible classes, normal classes, Sunday-school assemblies and institutions of learning where the Bible is taught. Senior grade. 4 pts. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., 1892. c. 266+11 p. il. D. pap., ea., 8c.; or 4 pts. in bds., 30 c.

There is some dissatisfaction with the International Lessons because they do not provide a continuous study of the life of Christ, but always follow some particular Gospel or Book of the Bible. To meet this demand this book is prepared. The scheme of chronology followed is that of Andrews' "Life of our Lord." Stalker's division of the ministry of Christ into the year of obscurity, the year of public favor and the year of opposition is also followed. Beyond that the analysis is original.

Hughes, Mrs. Reginald, ["Lyndon," pseud.] Sybil Trevvillian. N. Y., Ward & Drummond, [1892.] c. 2+411 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Sybil Trevvillian loses her father, whom she idolizes. Almost at the same time her brother meets with another heavy blow. The girl he loves marries a soldier and goes abroad. Sybil leads a most unselfish life, devoted to helping all who come near her. In the end she is made happy and is the means of making happiness for the little son of the soldier and his widowed wife. The book is not intended for very young readers. It is a novel.

Hume, Fergus. Aladdin in London: a romance. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 6+433 p. 8. cl., $1.25.

A ring obtained mysteriously in London by an impetuous young lover takes the part of the lamp of Aladdin, giving command of unlimited wealth. Tiring of London life the possessor of the ring, his young wife and several friends go to the little kingdom of Busk to help reinstate a deposed queen. This setting affords the author opportunity to satirize the present position of Europe in regard to some coveted spots on the Black Sea. The details are cleverly managed.

Kite with the Peary expedition, with a transcript of the log of the Kite. Phil., R. C. Hartranft, 1892. c. 7+524 p. il. maps, por. O. cl., $3.50.

The history of the two voyages of the Kite is told in parts. Part one, under the title of the "Voyage of the Kite," is a narrative of facts connected with the first expedition of Lieutenant Peary, in 1891, to the northwestern shore of Greenland. Part two, under the title of the "Peary relief expedition," is a record of the realistic incidents which occurred during the second voyage of the same vessel in the present year. Included with this, in addition to Pike's log-book, are facts relating to Mr. Verhooff, the missing member of the party, with letters and arguments advanced by his friends, and a minute description of the search made for him. The discoveries summarized in Peary's report are stated in an appendix; a brief history of Arctic voyages from the earliest times to the present day is also appended.

Lanciani, Rodolfo. Pagan and Christian Rome. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892 [1892.] c. 8+374 p. il. O. cl., $6.

A companion volume to "Ancient Rome in the light of modern discoveries." Its seven chapters describe: The transformation of Rome from a Pagan into a Christian city; Temples; Churches; Pagan cemeteries; Catacombs; Tombs of emperors, and tombs of popes. It covers the first five centuries of the Christian era, and depicts the gradual yet marvellous metamorphosis which passed upon the Rome of the Caesars, making it the capital city of the Christian world. Like Professor Lanciani's previous work, it is historical and based on the rich results of archaeological research and discovery. It is profusely illustrated with views of great variety not generally accessible. In all the details of manufacture the work is brought out in the most careful manner. In red slip covers.

Larroumet, Gustave. The salon of 1892: one hundred plates in photogravure and etch-

A companion volume to "The modern discoverer" is not the transformation of him to a Christian city: Temples, Churches, and the first five centuries; it covers the first five centuries and depicts the greatest of these which passed upon the shores of the capital city of the Roman Empire. The previous work is a rich result of the author's work. It is profusely illustrated with many of the most valuable results of the author's work. It is profusely illustrated with many of the most valuable results of the author's work. It is profusely illustrated with many of the most valuable results of the author's work.

One of the men while on business in India gives a sound Yankee drubbing to an Indian fakir. This man swears vengeance at first, but relents, and when the young merchant goes home to America presents him with a pipe of great beauty. This pipe he gives to the other man, the affianced husband of the girl, and this possession leads to weird consequences. The second story is the heart history of a blind wife married to an uncongenial husband, who has wedded her for her Ancient Persian and Biblical history is here presented in narrative form. The scene is supposed to be the city of Jerusalem before the Christian era. The feast of Purim, preceded by the fast of Esther and the four chroniclers, Mordecai, Ezra, Nehemiah and Ahasuerus, relate to a company of youths the interesting history of the Persian kingdom in past years.

destruction of Babylon, the wars and triumphs of Darius, Artaxerxes, etc., are described, and the story of Esther and Vashti is told at length.

"This book deals especially with a period of German history of twenty-three years' duration. Beginning with the French Revolution of 1848, it records the rousing in Germany of passions long pent-up, and, for the time, difficult to be controlled or directed; the manner in which these passions were eventually mastered; the great void and the fierce longing they left behind them; the use made by one of the chief powers of Germany of the feelings and aspirations thus dormant, and finally, the complete reversal, by the means employed by that power, of the positions held in Europe till that period by Austria and Prussia on the one side, by France and Germany on the other."—Preface.

Pellow, G. Poems; ed. with an introd. by W. D. Howells. Bost., W. B. Clarke & Co., [1892.] c. 11+54 p. O. bds., $1.25.

Mr. Pellow was the author of "Castle and cabin," a study of Ireland, and the "Life of John Jay," embraced in the American statesmen series. His charming personality and uneventful life are described in Mr. Howells' sympathetic introduction.

Perkins, W. Rufus. Eleusis, and lesser poems. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 219 p. S. cl., $1.

A year or two ago a little volume containing the poem of "Eleusis" was published anonymously in a private edition, and made a very marked impression in the limited circle where it was known, as disclosing evidence of a new and distinctive force in American poetry. The author being thus encouraged to avow his creation, has revised and somewhat extended the poem; and it now appears with the addition of a dozen "Lesser poems" that give a pleasant relief and variety to the volume.

Phillips, Philip, sr., and Rev. Philip, jr. Six song services; with connective reading: designed for special religious services and Christian entertainment (which will appear in "Our new hymnal," to be issued in 1893.) N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1892. c. 68 p. sq. S. pap., 20 c.

Something new and attractive for Christian Endeavor Societies, Epworth Leagues and others. The services with words, music, etc., are arranged topically, as follows: 1, Christ in song; 2, Salvation in song; 3, Thanksgiving in song; 4, Children's services in song; 5, Temperance in song; 6, Christmas in song.

The story opens on a Messageries steamer bound for Algiers. Marion Walker, a representative of western civilization, and Bronson Sewall, a well-known type of cultured Boston, enter into a discussion about the relative characteristics of these sections of the United States. Their controversy ends in the usual way, after a brief stay in Algiers and a return to America, where the final scene takes place.

Ruskin, J. Cameos from Ruskin; selecte and arr. by Mary E. Cardwill. N. Y., C. E. Merrill & Co., [1892.] c. 8-89 p. D. cl. $1.

"The preparation of this book was begun with the purpose of making each selection a representation of Mr. Ruskin's two-fold work, as the greatest of art critics and as a master of ethics. This purpose has not been strictly adhered to, but the drift of the book is a whole, and most of the selections, will be found to bear directly on the fundamental principle of all Mr. Ruskin's criticism, that art is inseparably connected with character and conduct or morality, and that a great art rests upon a basis of what is intrinsically good."—Preface.

Russell, Dora. The last signal. N. Y., J. Taylor & Co., [1892.] c. 4-311 p. D. (Broadway ser., no. 16.) pap., 50 c.

Miriam Clyde's great affection for her sister, the wife of General Conroy, leads her to put herself in false position to shield this sister from disgrace. The consequences of this act are far-reaching, and almost break up her own married happiness. A sea-coast town in England is the scene of many misunderstandings.

Shakespeare, W. Works. Ariel ed. First group—seven comedies: Much ado about nothing, As you like it, The Winter's tale. A midsummer night's dream, Twelfth night, The tempest, The merchant of Venice. N. Y.: G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892. 8+156; 3+166; 3+197; 2+142; 2+158; 2+150; 4+168 p. il. T. flex. leath., ea., 75 c.

The distinctive features of the Ariel Shakespeare are as follows: Each play is in a separate volume; the size of the volume is  $8\frac{1}{2} \times 5$  inches, and about a half inch in thickness; the page is clearly printed from a new font of brevier type; the text is in every case complete and unabridged; as illustrations the designs by Frank Howard (first published in 1893), five hundred in all, have been effectively reproduced, making a series of delicate outline plates. The edition will be issued in groups of seven plays, and each play will be sold separately.

Sharpe, Dinah. My horse: my love. N. Y., Orange Judd Co., 1892. c. 6+155 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

This valuable information on the horse is supposed to be given by a Polish count, the last of the noble family of Kosciusko. Chapters on veterinary education, facilities for breeding in America, pedigree of Arabian horses, Arabian horses in England, English and Russian horses, Secretary Seward's Arabs, General Grant's horses, the American horse, etc. By the author of "The apple of Arabia's eye, and other stories."

Sheldon, M. French. Sultan to Sultan: adventures among the Masai and other tribes of East Africa. Bost., Arena Publishing Co., 1892. 429 p. il. 8°, cl., $5.

Shelley, Percy Bysshe. The complete poetical works: the text newly collated and revised and edited; with a memoir and notes by G. E. Woodberry. Centenary ed. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. c. 4 v., 8+432; 3+481; 4+544; 9+456 p. por. D. cl., $7. Large-pap. ed. 8°, 8 v., bds., net, $24. [Limited to 250 copies.]

This new edition of Shelley is especially noteworthy in its literary form. It contains a number of poems which are not included in any English edition, for although Shelley's grandson allowed Mr. Dowden to print certain poems, he would not permit him to add them to his edition of Shelley's works; and no later editor has been more fortunate. Mr. Woodberry has made the text as accurate as care and skill can make it; he has taken scrupulous pains that every poem is correctly produced, and supplies such variorum and other notes as are necessary. His Memoir of Shelley is one of the most valuable contributions to the literature devoted to this poet. Mr. Woodberry has been extremely fortunate in obtaining the assistance and good-will of one of the Shelley family in the preparation of his work. The mechanical features of the Centenary ed. are very much the same as those of the Riverside editions of Lowell, Whittier and Longfellow.

Slosson, Annie Trumbull. Aunt Liefy; il. by G. F. Randolph. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1892.] c. 4-50 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

Liefy was a contraction for the name Relief. The story tells of an incident in Miss Relief Stapleton's life, which transformed her suddenly from a hard-featured, irreligious and selfish woman into the kindly personage called Aunt Liefy.

Smith, G. Barnett. History of the English Parliament; together with an account of the Parliaments of Scotland and Ireland. N. Y., Wad. Lock, Bowden & Co., 1892. 2 v., 1200 p. il. 8°, cl., $6.

Smith, H. Preserved. Response of Henry Preserved Smith to the charges presented to the Presbytery of Cincinnati by the Committee of Prosecution. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1892. c. 3+70 p. O. pap., 50 c.

A series of recent discussions of Bible science and its relation to inspiration led to charges being made October 17, 1892, against Prof. Smith, and this reply, which it is claimed is an exhaustive analysis of the charges, discussing at length the ecclesiastical and Biblical doctrine of inspiration. Although in form only an answer to the charges, it is in fact a thorough study of the Biblical affirmations on this important subject.

Smith, J. Manton. The Essex lads who became England's greatest preacher: the life of Charles Haddon Spurgeon, for young people. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1892.] c. 169 p. por. il. D. cl., 75 c.

A brief biography, which considers those characteristics of the great preacher which are calculated to interest young readers. The author's object is to induce young readers to follow the example shown in his life.

Smith, W. B. On wheels, and how I came there: a real story for real boys and girls; ed. by Rev. Joseph Gates Bonnell. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893 [1892.] c. 4-338 p. D. cl., $1.

A wound received during the Civil War forced the hero, who joined the Union ranks at fifteen years of age, to spend the remainder of his life in bed or in a wheeled chair. He recounts his realistic experiences on the battlefield, and describes the horrors of the Andersonville and Blackbear prisons, in many of which he was an actual participant.

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. Em: a novel; il. by F. A. Carter. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1892.] c. 76, '92. 5-363 p. D. (Choice ser., no. 74.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Emolyn Wyndworth, a young heiress seventeen years of age, marries secretly. On this rash act is founded a story of sensational incidents and a tragic conclusion. The scene is Greenpoint, in the family mansion of General Archibald Wyndworth.

Sprague, Rev. F. M. Socialism from Genesis to Revelation. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893 [1892.] c. 22+493 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The writer is convinced that some form of Christian Socialism affords the only basis of peace between the hostile forces of society. He traces the present social movement known as socialism, "from Genesis to Revelation," that is, from its origin and history to "its outlook and prophecy." He considers the objections urged against it, and shows its advantages. He believes it rests upon the soundest philosophy and upon the most approved principles of social utility and justice. He also devotes some pages to suggestions as to the mode of introducing socialism and the proper attitude to maintain towards social reform. The "Socialism" the writer advocates is "the socialization of industry"—not the division of private property.

This series of letters by the widow of Bayard Taylor have appeared in the Sunday issues of the New York Tribune. Their subject matter relates wholly to the preparation of food. They are dedicated to Mrs. Taylor's daughter. An excellent index makes the excellent advice and carefully worded recipes practically available. There are twenty four letters. Neatly bound in light pink cloth with dark red decoration.

*Watson, W: Lachrymæ musarum, and other poems. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 8-78 p. 16°, cl., $1.25.

Westall, W: The princes of Peele. N. Y., Lovell, Gastfeld & Co., [1892.] c. 2-347 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The Princes are one of the leading families of an English community disguised under the name of Peele. The oldest son turns thief and forger, and in his declining years the father is forced to attend actively to business once more and go to Trinidad. His second son takes charge of the home business assisted by his younger brother. Both these young men love the same attractive young American girl. Scene shifts to America, and includes incidents of the Civil War.

White, Horatio Stevens. ed. Deutsche Volkslieder: a selection from German folksongs. [German text]; ed. with introd. and notes by Horatio Stevens White. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, [1892.] 9+324+8 p. il. T. (Knickerbocker nuggets, no. 88.) hf. cl., $1.50.

Wilkins, Miss Mary E. Jane Field: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893 [1892.] c. 4+267 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

In this her first novel, Miss Wilkins has made an unlovely middle-aged woman the centre of a story of sustained power. Jane Field is a gaunt, stern New England woman, poor, hardworking but devoted to her delicate daughter Lois. She grieves with all the intensity of her silent nature as Lois fades under poor fare and hard work. Then temptation comes to her—temptation by yielding to which she will gain material comfort for her child, and but recover what should justly be her own. She yields, and the story marches on to the inevitable end, showing her stern struggle with fate and unflinching persistence in the path she has chosen. Lois' pretty love-story lightens the dark places, and the many minor characters are drawn with that fidelity, perception and graphic power which make Miss Wilkins' New Englanders living, breathing men and women.

Wilks, S., M.D., and Bettanv, G. T. A biographical history of Guy's Hospital. N. Y., Ward, Lock, Bowden & Co., 1892. 8°, cl., $5. Large-pap. ed., 4°, hf. mor., $10.

Willard, Mrs. Eugene S. Kin-da-shon's wife: an Alaskan story. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1892.] c. 3+281 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Mrs. Willard is home missionary to Alaska of the Presbyterian Board of America. When a committee of United States Senators visited Alaska to inquire into the condition of the natives, she was applied to for a paper on the subject, and wrote one on "Needed legislation for the protection of native children," which was considered the most discriminating, faithful and able one received. The facts she had studied so carefully she has here woven into a story of love and suffering in this wild, strange country, where women are as yet little above animals.

*Young, Arthur. Arthur Young's tour in Ireland (1776-1779); ed. with introd. and notes by Arthur Wollaston Hutton; with a bibliography by J. P. Anderson. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 2 v., 12°, cl. $2.

Young Men's Christian Associations: a handbook of the history, organization and methods of work; ed. by H. S. Ninde, J. I. Bowne and Erskine Uhl. N. Y., The International Committee of Young Men's Christian Association, 40 E. 23d st., 1892. c. 31. 2-448+63 p. D. cl., $3; hf. mor., $3.

In 1885 the opening of the Young Men's Christian Association Training School occasioned a demand for a text-book. Such a volume was published in 1888, covering the first seventeen chapters of the present book. The new matter is the result of unceasing practical work, and is up to date. The book contains information needed by students in the training-school; by young men engaged in professional or business life; by men already engaged in the work; by leaders of training-classes, and by the secretaries of branches. An elaborate system of blanks to reduce labor and suggest helpful thoughts, forms the appendix. Full index.

Zahn, Rev. J. A. Sound and music. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 4-451 p. il. O. cl., $3.50.

This volume grew out of a course of lectures given last year in the Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C. The lectures have been so altered and enlarged that the work is practically a new one, although the lecture form has been retained. The main purpose is to give musicians and general readers an exact knowledge, based on experiment, of the principles of acoustics, and to present at the same time a brief exposition of the physical basis of musical harmony. To enable the reader most readily to understand the various topics treated illustrations of many of the instruments used in the lectures have been inserted in the text.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Eyler & Company (incorporated) have succeeded to the business of Ed.
Ackermann & Co., and will continue the same at
No. 86 Fifth Avenue. All the claims due to the late firms of Ackermann & Eyler and Ed. Ackermann & Co., which were heretofore assigned to Frederick Scheiber, has been assigned by him to Eyler & Co., who are the only ones authorized to make collections of these accounts.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Russell Printing Company has been lately organized in Cincinnati.
Willis Russell is its president; he is the son of
A. O. Russell, of the Russell Morgan Printing Company, and formerly held a prominent position in that establishment. They will make a specialty of illustrated toy-books.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—E. H. Sheafe, bookseller, is advertising to sell out his business.

DENVER, COL.—L. K. Flannigan's bookstore has been attached for $3000.

DAWSON, GA.—Crahn & Sons, booksellers, of Albany, Ga., have opened a branch house at this place.

DAYTON, O.—Cunningham & Sullivan have succeeded to the book and stationery business of R. A. Cunningham.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—The sale of Van Gorden's book and stationery business to Lawrence & Carmichael, which has been reported, was not consummated and Van Gorden will retain the business.

HUGOTON, KAN.—E. A. Humphrey, bookseller, has gone out of business.

Davenport, which has been known to the book and stationery trade for twenty years past, has been formally dissolved. Mr. Stanton purchases the interest of the late John R. Davenport.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 10, 1892.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of The Publishers' Weekly is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

DISPOSING OF SLOW STOCK.

THERE is hardly a season of the year more favorable than the present for the retailer to rid himself of the inevitable collection of remainders, slow-sellers, damaged and broken lots and an occasional "error of judgment." We dare say more people stray into your store during the four or five weeks before New Year's than during all the remaining months of the year. They are not all bookbuyers—perhaps they have no intention of buying anything and simply look around your store out of curiosity, or to kill time or "shop," which with many means the same thing. But let a thing cheap enough happen to strike their fancy it is just as likely as not that you will have no reason to regret the invasion of the idly curious. The retailer overlooks the potency of the "bargain counter" to work off slow-sellers altogether too much. Let such observe the tactics of the department stores. These never harbor unsalable stock. If one price doesn't move an article in these establishments another will, because their managers have long ago found out that a dollar in the bank with which to buy fresh and ready-selling stock is worth two any time in old and slow-going stock.

Let the bookseller and stationer therefore lay out as attractively as possible a well-stocked bargain-table to be placed in a conspicuous place in the store. Other methods are useful and numerous. Let him, for instance, take a shallow wicker basket and fill it with books at a price, job lines, remnants, slow-sellers, etc.; and then fill another basket at another price, and still another. But at any rate, some night after all the clerks have gone away, and if the proprietor have time, let him lock the door, pull down the blinds, and search through the unfrequented corners and recesses of his store, rummage amongst the drawers and shelves, and he will probably be surprised at the amount of stuff he can collect which should be pushed. Then let him fix it up in some striking and prominent way, and invite the public through attractive advertisements in the local papers to his "bargains," and make every clerk available "hustle" that stock. It will go.

UNDERSELLING IN FRANCE.

UNDERSELLING has for some time past been a trouble to French booksellers. Of late the habit has sprung up, outside the railway bookstands, of selling the 3 fr. 50 c. novels at 2 fr. 75 c.—a thing possible to large buyers who get a discount of 40 per cent., but impossible to small dealers who only get 20. The booksellers formed a union, to which, however, only a third of the booksellers in France have adhered; the publishers have also established one, and the two bodies have agreed to a tariff which, while retaining the novels at 2 fr. 75 c., generally lessens the discounts on other books, both of less and of higher price. The managers of the great dry-goods bazaars of Paris, which have hitherto been merciless competitors of the bookseller, have agreed to adopt the tariff.

JAY GOULD AS AN AUTHOR.

THOUGH it is generally known that Jay Gould, who died on the 2d inst., was the author of a history of Delaware County, N. Y., it is not so widely known that one reason for its scarcity was the desire of Mr. Gould to suppress it by buying up every copy he could reach and that money could buy. He would pay any price demanded for the book, and perhaps to-day not a dozen copies of it are in existence. Gould had agents to go about Delaware County buying up his book wherever a copy could be found, and more than one farmer sold his copy for a good round sum. One copy found its way into the New York State Library, and it is, as a writer in the New York Sun puts it, "as much of a curiosity as are George Washington's surveying chains, his watch guard and sword, that are kept in a glass case in the rounds of the State Library." The title of the book is:

History of
DELAWARE COUNTY AND BORDER WARS OF NEW YORK, CONTAINING A SKETCH OF THE EARLY SETTLEMENTS IN THE COUNTY AND A HISTORY of the
LATE ANTI-RENT DIFFICULTIES IN DELAWARE, WITH OTHER HISTORICAL AND MISCELLANEOUS MATTER NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED.

Roxbury:

Keeny & Gould, Publishers, 1856.

The reason why Mr. Gould was so anxious to suppress his book was that in dwelling upon the anti-rent difficulties he gave expression to opinions that were considerably at variance with his practices after he became a railway king. Mr. Gould is also credited with the authorship of "A Biography of Zadock Pratt, of Prattsville, N. Y.—tanner, farmer, banker and legislator."

A NEW SYSTEM OF SHELIVING.

A NEW and practical system of shelving is patented under the name of the Koch Adjustable and Reversible Shelf-Brackets, by the Koch A. B. Co., Peoria, Ill. Though intended specially for general merchandise it has features which should make it practically useful in bookstores and libraries. The "system" consists of "wall-plates" of narrow flat iron, provided with screw-holes for every six inches of their length and studded at short intervals with pairs of small strong hooks, and ordinary shelf-brackets of japanned iron, supplied with curved "catches" on either side of both the long and short arm. The plates are firmly screwed to the wall at intervals of about four feet, and the required number of brackets are easily and quickly attached to the hooks on the plates. The shelving is then laid upon the brackets, where it rests snugly against the wall, secured between the wall-plate hooks.

The most obvious advantages of the system are economy, simplicity and durability. The shelving can be changed and shifted at will; the brackets may be placed on the wall-plates so as to raise the shelving 8 or 10 inches above the extreme top of the plate if desired, or the lower portion of a bracket may be dropped below the bottom of the plate. Either the long or short arm of the brackets may be attached to the plate, thus making one size of bracket answer for various widths of shelving. The absence of partitions insures plenty of light and facilitates the arranging or dusting of books; and in case of increase or decrease in the number of volumes to be shelved rows of plates and brackets may be added or removed at any time without altering or marring those remaining, which will be as complete first as last. The shelving may be either in continuous parallel lines or in long or short sections of varying height or width—a fact which permits of personal convenience in its arrangement.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

H. E. BIRD, the veteran London chess-player, is completing a history of his favorite game.

R. D. BLACKMORE has almost finished a new novel, which he proposes to call "The Pearly Cross." It will probably be published in serial form, commencing in April or May.

J. W. CROSS, who will probably be better remembered as the husband of George Eliot, is about to bring out a volume of essays to be entitled "Impressions of Dante and the New World."

THE indefatigable Dr. Smiles, who is just entering his eighty-first year, is preparing another contribution to industrial history and biography, the story of the life and work of Josiah Wedgwood, the father of modern English pottery.

AUSTIN DOBSON is engaged on an introduction to a reproduction of Holbein's "Dance of Death," printed from the fac-simile wood-cuts of Bonner and Byfield. It will be published in London by George Bell & Sons, and in New York by Macmillan & Co.

CAPT. PAUL BOYNTON the famous swimmer, has been spending the best part of the year upon "The Story of My Life," a volume soon to be brought out, giving a graphic narration of the swimmer's many thrilling experiences in different parts of the world. The book is published on the subscription plan by a Chicago firm, which city Captain Boynton now permanently resides.

"PIERRE LOTI" is at work on a new novel which he has named "Matelot." He is also thinking of another novel to be called "Une Exilée" and to be the story of a certain unhappy and sentimental queen. M. Loti will not read a newspaper, scarcely ever writes a letter, refuses to interviewers, and does his work in a room at the top of a tower which is to be reached only by a single ladder. He is said to read all the best fiction he can lay hands upon.

THE UNION THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY, on 13d inst., conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon Rev. Philip Schaff. Dr. Schaff, most prolific writer, whose works are sufficiently well known to need no enumeration here, was called to a professorship in the Union Theological Seminary in 1869, which he has held ever since then. He has filled consecutively the chairs of Theological Encyclopædia and Christian Symbolics, of Hebrew, and since 1875, that of Sacred Literature.

W. D. HOWELLS has entered into a contract with the Ladies' Home Journal whereby some of his most important work will first see print in pages of that magazine. His new novel, "The Coast of Bohemia," begins in the Christmas issue of the Journal, and immediately upon its completion Mr. Howells will begin in the magazine a series of autobiographical papers, in which he will trace the influences which led him to a literary life, his course of reading and his favorite authors and books. The articles will practically tell the story of the famous novelist's life.

ARY RENAN announces that the two volumes of his father's "History of Israel" which remained to be issued are now almost ready for the printers. One will appear in March and the other near the end of the coming year. He announces further that the family and executive will collect the stray and scattered writings which have appeared in official reports or special periodicals and publish them. Several historical documents will be united under the title of "Reign of Philippe le Bel." Some of "Notes and Jottings," made and put away in boxes and pigeon-holes, are said to contain remarkable discoveries destined, it is said, to create a "sensation."

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. JAMES ROSEBRUGH LEAMING, author of many well-known monographs on diseases of the chest, died in New York on the 5th inst., aged 72.

THE RT. REV. CHARLES WADSWORTH, Bishop of St. Andrew's, Dunkeld and Dunblane, died the 5th inst., aged 86. He took an active part in the affairs of the Scottish Church and was one of the New Testament Company for the revision of the authorized version of the Bible. His theological works embrace some thirty volumes, one of the most famous of which is his "Notes on the Eucharistic Controversy." He also wrote a number of critical essays, including one on "Shakespeare's Knowledge and Use of the Bible." He also edited an edition of Shakespeare and published a Greek primer. His latest contribution to literature was his "Memoirs," published in 1890.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

It is reported that the Idler will be published in America by S. S. McClure, the head of the well-known syndicate. It is intended ultimately to print the American edition in America, making a certain quantity of the matter especially American.

MRS. LAMB'S Magazine of American History, which has exerted a potent influence in stimulating public interest in the history of this country, has just completed its twenty-eighth volume. The December number well sustains the high character of the publication for the variety and interest of its contents.

THE editors of Poet-Lore have arranged with F. G. Fleay, the distinguished Shakespearean, for the production of an entirely new narrative of Shakespeare's theatrical career, to be entitled "Gentle Will, Our Fellowe," embodying the latest results of his investigations, and free from any controversial matter. In the January number of Poet-Lore will appear the first instalment.

CHARLES P. SOMERBY, formerly business manager of the Truth Seeker Co., will begin the publication of a new weekly journal, to be started with the New Year, at 28 Lafayette Place, New York. It will be named The Commonwealth, and will make a feature of economic and social reform literature. Mr. Somerby has been identified with the publishing business for more than twenty years.

THE article on "New York as a Literary Centre," in the November English Illustrated Magazine, will not add to the reputation of its author, Douglas Sladen. Aside from his many errors of commission, the errors of omission alone would condemn the article as well-nigh worthless as a consideration of a subject which might have been made of decided interest, especially as it has not thus far been adequately treated by any one.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE GROlier CLUB's edition of Moncure D. Conway's "Barons of the Potomac and the Rapahannock" will be brought out about January 1. The book, which describes colonial life and society in Virginia in the middle of the last century, is to contain a number of interesting portraits.

THE Boston "Club of Odd Volumes" has in press "The Women of the Court of Louis XV.," from the French of Imbert St.-Amand, a quarto volume, limited to 150 copies. Besides a portrait of the King, it will contain a photogravure in color of Mme. de Pompadour, from a pastel by Maurice Quentin de la Tour.

GREENOUGH, ADAMS & CUSHING, 168 Devonshire Street, Boston, have published a calendar entitled "Thoughts from Modern Authors for 1893," compiled by Alice F. Stevens and illustrated by Mary E. Parmalee; also a very neat "Children's Calendar," with selections and dates from Christmas, 1892, to Christmas, 1893.

RUFUS C. HARTMAN, Philadelphia, will publish at once "My Three-Legged Story-Teller: a roll of kodak stories," by Adelaide Skeel, illustrated by numerous snap shots; also, "The Devil's Hat: a sketch in oil," a story of the oil regions of Pennsylvania, by Melville Phillips. Mr. Hartman announces that a second edition of "In Arctic Seas with Lieut. Peary" will be ready shortly.

THE CUPPLES COMPANY, Boston, announce for early publication "Johann Wolfgang von Goethe: his wit, wisdom, poetry," preceded by the biographical sketch of Thomas de Quincey, edited by Newell Dunbar, with new illustrations, forming a companion book to "Heinrich Heine: his wit, wisdom, poetry;" also "Inspiration and Truth from the Rt. Rev. Phillips Brooks, D.D., Bishop of Massachusetts," a collection of brilliant paragraphs from Bishop Brooks' writings, with a portrait.

"TALES FROM TOWN TOPICS," No. 6, has just been issued by Town Topics, 21 W. 23d St., N.Y. This quarterly publication has been permanently increased in size, and will henceforth contain, in addition to an extra amount of selected matter, an original prize novelette of from 25,000 to 40,000 words in length. The first of these appears in the present number. It is a story of New York and London life, and is entitled "The Sale of a Soul." This, with the bright stories and poems selected from Town Topics, makes a decidedly interesting book.

GOVERNOR FULLER, of Vermont, has recently appointed Egbert C. Tuttle, treasurer of The Tuttle Company, Rutland, Vt., a director of the State Prison and House of Correction. Mr. Tuttle has never before held a State office, but is well known throughout the State as an active and successful business man. He is a man just past 40, and is therefore in the prime of life. He is director of the Merchants' National bank of Rutland and chairman of the finance committee; a director in the Rutland Street Railway Company and the P. E. Chase Manufacturing Company; also trustee of Rutland graded schools.

THOMAS B. MOSHER, of Portland, Me., announces a handsome reprint of "The City of Dreadful Night," by the late James Thomson—"the English Poe." The volume will include, besides the title-poem, "To our Ladies of Death" and "Insomnia" the three poems constituting "a pessimistic trilogy, in which 'The City of Dreadful Night' is the central and stupendous edifice." There will be ten large-paper copies on Japan vellum; forty on Van Gelder's paper; and 400 numbered copies on the same kind of paper, of smaller size, all uncut. Mrs. Elizabeth Cavazza has written an introduction to this edition.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce two volumes of interest to collectors in "English Book Plates," by Egerton Castle, with upwards of 120 examples of early and recent date, chosen from the choicest and best specimens of each period; and "French Book Plates," by Walter Hamilton, secretary of the Ex Libris Society, with about 100 illustrations of rare examples, selected as typical specimens of their respective styles, including five printed from the original plates. They have recently added the names of the Messrs. Adam and Charles Black, Edinburgh and London, to the list of the English firms for whom they act as exclusive agents in this country.

LEACH, SHEWELL & SANBORN will publish before the end of the year Horace's "Satires and Epistles," edited by James H. Kirkland, professor in Vanderbilt University; Tacitus' "Germania" and "Agricola," edited by A. G. Hopkins, professor in Hamilton College; "The Private Life of the Romans," a manual for the use of schools and colleges, by Harriet Waters Preston and Louise Dodge; "An Analytic Geometry," by Prof. E. W. Nichols, of the Virginia Military Institute; Carlyle's "Diamond Necklace," edited by Prof. Mozler, of Ottawa, Ill.; "Jason's Quest, a Mythological Reader," by Daniel O. S. Lowell, of the Roxbury (Mass.) Latin School; "An Academic Arithmetic," by Prof. Webster Wells, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and "An Academic Physiology," by Prof. O. M. Brands and Dr. Van Giesen.

AMONG the many attractive and valuable features of the third volume of the "Memorial History of the City of New York," soon to be published, is a chapter on the social life of the city during Washington's administration, and an exhaustive chapter on the "Tweed Ring," accompanied by several of Nast's famous cartoons. The volume contains many portraits of, and autographs of all the mayors of the nineteenth century, thus completing the interesting and unique series of signatures of every Burgomaster and Mayor of New York for more than two hundred and fifty years! As in the case of the first two volumes, the third contains facsimiles of rare maps and documents which the editor, General Wilson, has been so fortunate as to obtain from various sources at home and abroad, for that purpose. The third volume contains about two hundred portraits and other illustrations.

THE first book of the Authors' Club, written and published for its own benefit, is now in press. Its title will be "Liber Scriptorum," and it will appear in a large volume, sumptuously printed on hand-made paper made specially for it, and bound in a style completely new and characteristically American. The contents will appear nowhere else in print, and there will be but one edition of the book, limited to 250 copies. Every author will sign his name in pen and ink throughout these 250 copies to the article contributed by him. The illustrations will consist of headbands and tail-pieces designed and engraved specially for the places they occupy. Upwards of one hundred of the best-known American authors have contributed manuscripts for this book, which are being inlaid and will be bound up in two or more large volumes and sold in one lot to the highest bidder. The subscription price is $100, the club reserving the right to raise it after the first hundred copies have been taken. Mr. Rositer Johnson, secretary of the Authors' Club, will receive names and addresses of would-be subscribers at 1 Bond Street, New York City.

A CONCERN calling itself the Consolidated Book Co. is placing a five-inch double-column advertisement in country papers offering a set of thirty-five books of standard authors, and "absolutely free, the handsome premium hunting case which we illustrate" for one dollar, which as usual in such cases must be sent in advance, as "we cannot send C. O. D., the amount is too small." The alluring advertisement speaks vaguely of gold watches manufactured by one of the leading American watch companies, and shows a cut of a massive-appearing watch, and another of a half-opened hunting timepiece marked "free hunting case, latest style." The Consolidated Book Co. does business in a small 10 x 12 office at 7 West Broadway, New York, the fittings of which consist of a new desk, a green cloth covered table and a screen, behind which are a pile of paper novels. The gold watch spoken of is given away to the person sending twenty-five subscriptions for the books, although this is not mentioned in the advertisement. The "hunting case" which is sent with the dollar sets is a small toy sun dial.—The National Advertiser.

THE tenth and concluding volume of the new edition of "Chambers's Encyclopædia" will be issued by J. B. Lippincott Co. in a few weeks. Mr. Stanley Lane-Poole writes on Swift and Turkey; Mr. F. T. Palgrave contributes the memoir of Tennyson and that of Wordsworth, Mr. Richmond Ritchie that on Thackeray. Sir W. Lawson treats of Temperance, Mr. R. W. Lowe of the Theatre, Mrs. Besant of Theosophy, and Mr. G. Howell of Trades Unions. Mr. Hamerton is the author of the biography of Titian and of that of Turner, while Mr. J. Gray writes on Van Dyck. The article on Anthony Trollope is by his brother, the late Thomas A. Trollope. Mr. Vámbéry writes on Turkestan, Prof. Shaler on the geology of the United States, Prof. J. Geikie on Volcanoes, Mr. Austin Dobson on Horace Walpole, Mr. Loftie on Westminster and Windsor, Mr. Fraser Rae on John Wilkes, Dr. Buchan on Wind, and Mr. Price Hughes on Wesley. Canon Isaac Taylor contributes the articles on Writing and on York and Yorkshire, and Cavendish that on Whist. Dr. Mills expounds Zend, and Mr. G. Saintsbury criticises Zola. The first volume of the new edition was issued in March, 1888, so that the work has been completed in less than five years—a very short time indeed when its magnitude is considered. The "Encyclopædia" contains over thirty thousand articles, contributed by nearly one thousand different writers, and includes among its contributors many of the chief authorities in various departments of knowledge.

FOREIGN NOTES.

CONAN DOYLE's forthcoming novel deals with the experiences of some French refugees in America, and will be called "The Refugees."

KEGAN PAUL & Co. announce for immediate publication, as the first volume of a series of six Books about Books, "The Great Book Collectors," by Mr. Charles Elton.

H. MINDEN, Dresden, will publish before the end of the year Ossip Schubin's new romance "Finis Poloniae." The principal part is played by a Pole named Sulpicky, but the scene is laid in Bohemian Paris.

DENT & Co. have decided to include a copious index in the edition of Landor's works which they are publishing; this will necessitate the division of what has been announced as the concluding volume into two, containing in the first "Pericles and Aspasia" and the "Citation of Shakespeare," and in the last volume the "Pentameron," a few hitherto uncollected conversations, and the index. They will be uniform in price with the preceding volumes. Macmillan & Co. are the publishers of the book in this country.

DAVID DOUGLAS, Edinburgh, who a couple of years ago issued Sir W. Scott's journal, is about to publish Scott's "Familiar Letters" between 1797 and 1825. The letters in manuscript number upwards of two thousand, and the most interesting and characteristic will alone be included in Mr. Douglas' forthcoming work. One contains a rough sketch, in Scott's hand, of the Abbotsford property and a statement of his project for dealing with what he afterwards termed his Delilah. Mr. Douglas will not only annotate the work copiously, but he will also introduce explanatory letters from some of the notable men and women who were Scott's contemporaries and correspondents. The first of the two volumes composing the work will probably appear early next spring.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), at an amount not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith. Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The Medical Bulletin Visiting List or Physician's Call Record.

Arranged upon an Original and Convenient Monthly and Weekly Plan for the Daily Recording of Professional Visits. The Most Convenient Time- and Labor-Saving List Issued.

WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

"This new candidate for the favor of physicians possesses some unique and useful points. The necessity of rewriting names every week is obviated by a simple contrivance in the make-up of its pages, thus saving much valuable time, besides reducing the bulk of the book."—Buffalo Med. and Sur. Journal.
"Everything about it is easily and quickly understood."
—Canadian Practitioner.

"This is the most satisfactory List that I have found in twenty years' experience."—DAN STRAW, M.D., Webb Faribault Co., Minn., Dec. 1, 1890.

"F. A. DAVIS. Dear Sir:—Please send me, C. O. D., No. 2 'Medical Bulletin Visiting List.' I used it last year and think it excels them all. Yours truly, W. H. LAMM, M.D., Camden, New Jersey, Jan. 4, 1890."

It is handsomely bound in fine strong leather, with flap, including a pocket for loose memoranda, etc., and is furnished with a Dixon lead-pencil of excellent quality and finish. It is compact and convenient for carrying in the pocket. Size, 4 x 6½ inches.

IN THREE STYLES.

LOVELL, GESTEFELD & COMPANY

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

A Modern Catechism.

By URSULA N. GESTEFELD, author of "The Woman Who Dares," "A Chicago Bible-
Class," etc., etc. Paper, 25 cents.
Similar in style to the denominational catechism, but is similar in statement; and will be considered "advanced and remarkable," or "advanced and heretical," according to the reader's point of view.

How to Heal.

By GEORGE BURNELL. Leatherette, 50 cents.
A treatise on Christian Science Healing, embodying the results of some years of investigation and practice.

Ready December 12:

The Romance of a French Parsonage.

By M. BETHAM-EDWARDS, author of "France of To-Day," "For One and the World," etc.
12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. Canterbury Series.

Mrs. M. Betham-Edwards has been particularly for-unate in all her literary work, which has taken its local coloring from France, and one is sure of finding accuracy in all her descriptions of that country. "The Romance of a French Parsonage" has no long and tiresome descriptions; the paragraphs are crisp, brief and entertaining.

The Free Trade Struggle in England.

By M. M. TRUMBULL. Second edition, revised and enlarged. 296 pages, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

"It will be found the most complete and convenient, and probably the most accurate accessible account of the reform of the English customs system."—Review of Reviews.

"Mr. Trumbull treats his subject with a masterly hand, and it will be a great aid in securing such a knowledge of the tariff question as the masses are now eagerly seeking."—Detroit Free Press.

The Lost Manuscript.

A Novel. By GUSTAV FREYTAG. Authorized translation from the sixteenth German edition.
Two volumes, 953 pages, extra cloth, gilt top, $4.00; the same in one volume, cloth, $1.00;
paper, 75 cents.

"It is superfluous to do more than call attention to this great novel of the great German novelist, the greatest perhaps of all his works that have made him famous not only in the Fatherland, but in all lands. The marvel of this book is its cheapness, considering its size, and the neatness and substantialness of its binding. It opens also readily to the hand and lies open, making it easy to handle while reading."—Christian Weekly, New York.

Tait, Sons & Co.'s New Fiction.

The Secret of Narcisse.

A Romance. By EDMUND GOSSE, author of "Gossip in a Library," "C. Viol and Flute, etc." 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

This is the first work of fiction from the brilliant pen of Edmund Gosse, the eminent littérateur and critic, and has been looked forward to with much interest on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a story of love, jealousy, and an undomestic charge of witchcraft in the dark, untolerating days of the Middle Ages. Mr. Gosse's romance carries with it an appropriate atmosphere, and the character studies are as clear and soft as an old-time etching. The story is well balanced and told with much daintiness and felicity of expression.

A Battle and a Boy.

By BLANCHE WILLIS HOWARD, author of "Guenn," "The Open Door," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This is a volume where lofty tone and purpose intermingle with lively incidents, with the result of furnishing one of the best books it is possible to place in a boy's hands, although the wonderful life which the writer imparts to her work makes the book fully as interesting to adult readers.

The Last Confession.

By HALL CAINE, author of "The Scapegoat," "The Bondman," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

'In "The Last Confession," Mr. Hall Caine is in his element. In his dedication, addressed to his friend, Bram Stoker, Mr. Caine describes this tale as "an attempt to solve a moral problem which we have discussed from opposite poles of sympathy—the absolute value and sanctity of human life, the right to fight, the right to kill, the right to remain, and to set aside at utmost need the letter of the sixth commandment." . . . How the moral problem is solved we leave the reader to discover.'—London Times.

Who Is the Man?

By J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "My Friend Pasquale," "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

One of the surest indications of ability on the part of the novelist is the faculty for misleading the reader in his conclusions as to the ultimate issue of the story. In "Who Is the Man?" the reader finds himself continually drawn, and then redrawing his conclusions. A book which has this power is sure to be fascinating, and if to the cleanness of the plot is added purity of diction and rapidity of action, the prime elements of success are gained. The work is handsomely illustrated from original drawings by the artist Reinhart.

Those Girls.

By JOHN STRANGE WINTER, author of "Army Tales," "Bootles' Baby," "Strange Experiences of a Lady Help," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 75 cents. Holyrood Series.

A story of true love with more than the average number of mishaps. The writer is particularly happy in depicting the characters she is most in sympathy with, and her portraiture of unselfish womanhood willing to sacrifice her own overcharged heart on the altar of sisterly affection, is very fine.

When I Lived in Bohemia.

By FERGUS HUME, author of "Madam Midas," "The Mystery of a Hansa Cab," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

This book of rare and lively reading from Mr. Hume's versatile and gifted pen is well timed to this festive season of the year. The visions of Bohemia will serve to enliven many a dull hour—here and there they may even raise a smile as some reader murmurs "et ego in Bohemia fui." The curious illustrations of the volume by Cyril R. Hallward are wonderfully faithful and forceful.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. and J. B. Lippincott, Co. are supplying the trade with President Chulz's "Books of the Bible Analyzed," a book which has been received with favor by the religious press, and has already reached a fifth edition.

THE WAVERLY COMPANY, New York, announce for early publication the latest work of Paul Bourget, author of "Love's Cruel Enigma," titled "The Promised Land," a novel in which moral obligation is urged as a paramount incentive to love.

THE "Book of Common Prayer for the Protestant Episcopal Church," which will be known in ecclesiastical history as the "Standard of 1892," will be ready in time to be used as a Christmas gift. A. J. Holman & Co., Philadelphia, Thomas Nelson & Sons and James Pott & Co. all have editions of this prayer-book. Holman publishes 12mo and 24mo editions; the Nelsons have 12mo and 48mo editions in a great variety of type in their Oxford style, and in January will have other sizes. James Pott & Co. have ready a cloth-bound edition of the prayer-book, but will soon have much finer editions both of it and the revised Hymnal. For details of these editions we refer to advertisements in this issue.

TAIT, SONS & Co. have just ready "The Secret of Narcisse," the first work of fiction from the bright and busy pen of Edmund Gosse, a story of love, jealousy and an unfounded charge of witchcraft in the dark, untolerating days of the Middle Ages; "A Battle and a Boy," by Blanche Willis Howard; "The Last Confession," by Hall Caine, who himself describes his work as "an attempt to solve a moral problem—the absolute value and sanctity of human life, the right to fight, the right to kill, the right to resist evil and to set aside at utmost need the letter of the sixth commandment;" "Who Is the Man?" by J. Selwin Tait, handsomely illustrated from original drawings by the artist Reinhart; "Those Girls," by John Strange Winter, and "When I Lived in Bohemia," by Fergus Hume, illustrated by Cyril R. Hallward.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready the authorized edition of Ralph H. Caine's delightful collection of "Love-Songs of English Poets, 1500-1800," with notes by Mr. Caine and frontispiece after Angelica Kauffman, a pretty little volume, tastefully bound in pale green and gold, and perfect in mechanical detail; "General Taylor," a well-written biography by Major-General Howard, being the second volume in their Great Commander Series; and, in the popular Town and Country Library, a novel of Berlin life, by Paul Lindau, entitled "Hanging Moss." They have two volumes in a new series called The Dainty Books, intended "for children, grown-up and otherwise." These are: "For Grown-Up Children," four charming stories of child-life by Mrs. Walford, and "Mum Fidgets and the Two Richards," two bright stories by Constance Milman. These little volumes fully live up to their title, being very "dainty books" indeed, in their delicate bindings of pink and blue with darker cover-design and gilt stamp.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

*Fowler, J. K. Echoes of old county life being recollections of sport, politics and farming in the good old times. N. Y. Macmillan & Co., 1892. 12+264 p. 8°, c $2.50.

Furniss, H. Flying visits; il. by the author. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. 8+292 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The author travelled 7000 miles in sixteen weeks to give his entertainment, "The humours of Parliament," all over the United Kingdom. He dotted down his impressions of characteristic sights and happenings in Ireland, Wales and Scotland especially, and gives them to the reader interspersed with letters to a friend, all illuminated by vivid and generally humorous illustrations.

Gates, Caleb Frank. A Christian business man: biography of Deacon C. F. Gates, by his son. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1892.] c. 3-200 p. por. D. cl., $1.

Caleb Foote Gates was born in East Haddam, Conn., in 1824. In 1853 he went to Chicago to take charge of the books of the American Car Works, which closed out business in 1855. Later Mr. Gates went into various manufacturing enterprises and made a large fortune. He was always interested in the Presbyterian church and in poor people, especially the Bohemians of Chicago. He died in 1890.

Gestefeld, Ursula N. A modern catechism: for the use of those who are outgrowing their swaddling clothes. N. Y., Lovell, Gestefeld & Co., [1892.] 8-63 p. D. leatherette, 25 c.

Similar in style to the denominational catechism, but dissimilar in statement; will be considered "advanced and remarkable," or "advanced and heretical," according to the reader's point of view.

Goodell, T. Dwight. Greek lessons. In 2 pts. Pt. 1, The Greek in English. Pt. 2, The Greek of Xenophon. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1892. c. 86-92. 9+376 p. map, sq. S. cl., $1.25.

The two parts of this book, though divided in date of publication by an interval of nearly six years, were planned each for the other, and form together a consistent whole. In Pt. 1 the main stress is laid on the relations between Greek and English words, and the grammatical outline includes only the commonest and most regular declensions, and only the present indicative and infinitive of verbs. In Pt. 2 the leading idea is, in the words of Prof. Gildersleeve, "early contact with the language in mass." As regards vocabulary, both parts together contain, besides the proper names, about 855 Greek words.

Gould, Jay. Life and death of Jay Gould, and how he made his millions. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1892.] 4-208 p. por. D. (The peerless ser., no. 65.) pap., 25 c.

With a graphic account of Jay Gould's early life are given the inside history of the Erie Road as manipulated by him and "Jim Fisk" and an account of their responsibility in the Black Friday excitement of Wall st. To this is added an account of his funeral, with some newspaper estimates of his character.

Guthrie, F. Anstey. Mr. Punch's model music-hall songs and dramas: collected, improved and rearranged from Punch. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. 3-220 p. il. D. cl., $1

Thirteen burlesque music-hall ditties, patriotic, idyllic, amatory, chivalrous, plaintive, etc., also a dozen short "dramas" parodying the conventional third-rate melodrama or tragedy. Mr. Punch recommends his little volume to music-hall managers who are obliged to conform to the "stringent supervision exercised by those active and intelligent guardians of middle-class morality, the London County Council."

H., M., comp. Poetry of the gathered years. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 3-169 p. S. cl., $1.

Selections from many poets, chiefly American, bearing upon the coming on of age and voicing content and resignation. They are classified under the following headings: September, thirty-five; October, two score and ten; November, three score; December, seven times eleven. Delicately bound in white, with blue and gold decoration and lettering.

Hardy, G. E. Literature for children: a paper read before the National Educational Association at Saratoga, Thursday, July 14, 1892. N. Y., [G: E. Hardy, Grammar School no. 82.] 1892. 16 p. D. pap., 2 p.

The greater portion of the statistics presented in this paper have but recently been made known to the public, and the statistical facts herein recorded are in all cases confined to English-speaking peoples. The author is already known as conversant with his subject by many articles he has published and by his compilation of "Five hundred books for the young." He is principal of Grammar School No. 82, New York City.

Heine, H. [and others.] Lyrics and ballads of Heine and other German poets; tr. by Frances Hellman. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, [1892.] c. 15+250 p. S. cl., $1.50.

About one hundred and forty pages are filled with translations of some of Heine's most charming lyric specimen poems are also given from Goethe, Gellert, Uhland, Freiligrath, Rückert, Moerike, Chamisso.

Hertwig, Oscar. Text-book of the embryology of man and mammals; from the German ed., by E. L. Mark. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 16+670 p. 8", pl. cl., $5.25.

Hofman, H. O. The metallurgy of lead and the desilverization of base bullion. N. Y. The Scientific Pub. Co., 1892. c. 415 p. il. plans, O. cl., $2.

Dr. Percy's great work, "The metallurgy of lead, including desilverization and cupellation," was published in 1870 and has become a standard in several languages. During the past twenty years so much that new has been introduced in American practice that a book embodying latest improvements is a necessity. The author, who is professor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, intends his book specially for Americans, and has discussed new European methods chiefly in connection with their applicability to this country. This book is intended for the student, the metallurgist and the investigator.

Howard, Oliver Otis. General Taylor. N. Y. Appleton, 1892. c. 11+385 p. por. D. (Great commander ser., no. 2.) cl., $1.50.

The twelfth President of the United States—Zachary Taylor—was born in Orange Co., Va., Sept. 24, 1784, and died July 9, 1850. His life is full of incident. He was engaged in the Indian wars of 1812, served in the Black Hawk War of 1832, and gained distinction in the Mexican campaign of 1846, winning the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, and forcing Monterey to capitulate. He was the nominee of the Whig party for the Presidency in 1848, and was inaugurated as President March 4, 1849. He only lived out about fourteen months of his administration. All these interesting events are told by the author, who is Major General U. S. army, with much color and picturesque detail.

Howells, W. Dean. Christmas every day, and other stories told for children. N. Y. Harper, 1893 [1892.] 3+150 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A little girl in the first tale, who wishes for Christmas every day, is told a story of another child who echoed this same wish. In the consequences that follow the moral is seen. The other stories are: Turkey turning the tables; The pony engine and the Pacific express; The pumpkin glory; Butterfly-butterfly and flutterby-butterfly.

Howitt, Mary. John Oriol's start in life. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1892. 96 p. il. 12", cl., 35 c.

Hugo, Victor. La Chute; from Victor Hugo's "Les misérables;" ed. with an introduction and notes by H. C. O. Huss. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1892. c. 5+91 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 80 c.

This is book second of part first of Victor Hugo's great novel, which introduces the sombre figure of Jean Valjean, the galley-slave. It covers the great scene of the robbery of the silver and the manifestation of true brotherly love by the Bishop of Digne. The professor of modern languages and literature at the College of New Jersey, Princeton, has supplied valuable linguistic notes and an ethical introduction.

Hunt, Sarah. Journal of the life and religious labors of Sarah Hunt, (late of West Grove, Cehster county, Pennsylvania.) Phil.

sentative topics supplemented by numerous references to fuller sources of information. These have been carefully selected, and are thought to be sufficient for all practical purposes; they are topical on all kinds of subjects and to all kinds of books. Intended principally for debaters, for students in the preparation of their various literary exercises, and for teachers. Table of contents classified by subject; questions with references, questions without references, and alphabetical index of subjects.

Mazzini, Jos. An essay on the duties of man: addressed to workingmen, written in 1844 and 1858; reprinted by permission of Mrs. Emilie Ashurst Venturi, editor of the life and writings of Joseph Mazzini. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1892. 2-146 p. 8. (The standard lib., no. 168, supplement.) pap., 15 c.

Contents: God; The law; Duties towards humanity; Duties towards your country—1898; Duties towards the family; Duties towards yourselves; Liberty; Education; Association; Progress; The economical question. Mazzini was born at Genoa in 1805. He desired above all things the unity of Italy and the expulsion of the foreigner. When monarchy failed to satisfy the people he headed the revolution for republicanism, but republicanism separate from socialism and atheism. Although nearly half a century has passed his ideas meet the needs of the hour.

*Medical bulletin visiting list; or, physician's call record for 1893. Phil., The F. A. Davis Co., 1892. 16°, pocket-book style, $1.25 to $1.75.

*Mills, B. Fay. Victory through surrender. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1892. 82 p. 16°, cl., 50 c.

Milman, Constance. Mum Fidgets. [Also] The two Richards: il. by Edith Ellison. N. Y., Appleton, 1892. 3+150 p. sq. S. (The dainty books.) cl., $1.

"Mum Fidgets" was a "dear, delightful summer house" in which two little English girls played and planned during their summer holidays. "Mum Fidgets" was haunted, they discovered later, and trembled together over the mystery, the solution of which concludes the upretentious little tale of vacation experiences. "The two Richards" is a short story of two little boys who, while babies, were confided to the care of relatives. Later they become chums; by an accident it is discovered that the babies had been "mixed," and the two Richards have to change places.

*Minchin, G. M. Hydrostatics and elementary hydrokinetics. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 11+424 p. 12°, cl., $2.60.

Molesworth, Mrs. Mary Louise, ["Ennis Graham," pseud.] The man with the pan-pipes, and other stories; il. by W. J. Morgan. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., [1892.] 3-96 p. sq. O. cl., $1.

The man with the pan-pipes was so called because he played enchantingly upon a row of reed pipes. His story is really a modification of the "Pied piper of Hamelin," told by a German cousin to her little English relative. With this is included Pig Betty; The Dormouse's mistake; The Christmas guest; Olive's tea-party; A live dummy; A queer hiding-place; Blue frocks and pink frocks.

Morley, H. English writers: an attempt towards a history of English literature. V. 9. Spencer and his time. N. Y., Cassell Publishing Co., 1892. 12+456 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Covers the period between 1552 and 1599. Among Spencer's contemporaries were Queen Elizabeth, Walter Raleigh, John Hooker, Philip Sidney, Francis Drake, Edward Knight, Thomas Watson, Matthew Grove, Tasso, Montaigne, Arthur Hall, John Lyly, George Peele, Robert Greene, Marlowe, Francis Bacon, Richard Hooker, Shakespeare, etc. One of the most important and most fascinating volumes of Prof. Morley's great book.

*Muller-Casenov, Hans, comp. The humor of Germany; tr. with an introd. and notes by Hans Muller-Casenov; il. by C. E. Brock. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1892. 8°, (International humor ser.) cl., $1.25.

*New York. The revised statutes; 5th and 6th suppl. v. to the 8th ed. of the revised statutes and to Birdseye's revised statutes, comprising the general statutes of 1893-1892, both incl. as amended to the commencement of the session of 1893, [etc.] 9th ed. V. 5 and 6; ed. by C. A. Callie. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1892. c. 3 l. +3181-3868; 3869-4621+124 p. O. shp. $10.

Ogden, Antoinette. Christmas stories; from French and Spanish writers. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1892. c. 5-265 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The French stories are by Theuriet, Coppée, Daudet, Gustave Droz, Jules Simon, Marcel Prévost and Maxime du Camp. The Spanish ones are by Valdés, Galdá, Maré, Alarcon, and Adolfo Becquer. The features of the continental Christmas, so different from the English plum-pudding tradition and our American customs, are delightfully presented in very successful translations. In pretty white covers with floral decorations.

*Ohio. General and local acts passed and joint resolutions adopted by the 70th general assembly at its regular session begun and held in the city of Columbus, Jan. 4, 1892. V. 89. Columbus, The Westbote Co. st. prs., 1892. no c. 777 p. O. hf. shp. $2.50.

*Oregon. Supreme ct. Reports of cases during the Oct. term, 1891, Mar. term, 1892, and May term, 1892; G. H. Burnett, rep. V. 22. Salem, Frank C. Baker, st. pr. 1892. no c. 16+640 p. O. shp., $5.50.

*Palgrave, Francis T. Amenophis, and other poems, sacred and secular. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 8+253 p. 18°, cl., $1.25.

*Parquin, Captain. The recollections of Captain Parquin, an old soldier of the Grand Army, 1803-1814. [French text.] N. Y., Boussod, Valadon & Co., 1893. 300 p. f. il. cl., $6.25; hf. mor., $7.50.

Paton, Lucy Allen. The personal character of Dante as revealed in his writings; first published by the Dante Society; reprinted by permission. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1892. 4-44 p. O. (Publications of the soc. for the collegiate instruction of women, Fay House monographs, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

This essay has been somewhat revised since the award of the Sarah Greene Trimmings prize in 1892. The alterations the author acknowledges are in conformity with valuable suggestions received from Prof. Charles Eliot Norton. Contains list of members of the Dante Society.

*Pierson, Arthur T., D.D. The dove in the heart; or, the perfect peace in God: meditation on Isaiah, 26th chapter, 3d and 4th verses. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1892. 32 p. 12°, cl., 25 c.

*Plon, Eugene. Thorvaldsen: his life and works; tr. by I. M. Luyster. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1892. il. 8°, cl., $2.

Régamey, Félix. Japan in art and industry, with a glance at Japanese manners and customs; authorized tr. by M. French Sheldon and Eli Lemon Sheldon; with designs by the author. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893 [1892.] c. 7+349 p. il. D. cl. $1.75.

"Japan in art and industry" is the title given to a translation of Félix Régamey's Le Japon pratique. His volume was enthusiastically received in France. The Société Géographique Commerciale de Paris awarded him a medal, and issued a report upon his work. This report said: "It abounds in instruction, brief, precise and decisive, on the crafts, industries, conditions of labor, and processes of manufacture. Everywhere"

The Society Geographers gave him a medal and another report said: "It amounts to a... and decisive, on the east side... and goodness of it."

Four pretty short stories of English child-life, into each of which is woven a graceful little love episode. "The difficulty of a darling" was how to make her big sister a Christmas gift, with no money to buy it—a difficulty which the darling triumphantly surmounted. The others are: Such a little thing; Three feet of obstinacy; An involuntary offering.

At the age of four the writer's mind was awakened by a country preacher using a new illustration to convey the idea of eternity. At the age of nineteen, of conceit as to his knowledge of theology and religion, he meets the same country clergyman who, by reasoning, shows him that he really knows nothing, and that almost anything can be proved from the given premises. An earnest Lutheran, this country preacher points out the necessity of faith, as all knowledge is relative and unreliable.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MISS HARRIET WATERS PRESTON and Miss Louise Dodge have written, for school and college use, a book on "The Private Life of the Romans."

THE charge is made that the book of historical gossip entitled "An Englishman in Paris" is a forgery. The author is said to be one Philip Vandam, a Dutch Jew residing in Paris.

A WRITER in the Critic, who estimates that Zola's total earnings for his twenty years of literary toil amount to $400,000, thinks this comparatively modest fortune has not been easily earned.

CLIFFORD LANIER, a brother of the late Sidney Lanier, has written a story of Spanish adventure in Florida in the seventeenth century. It will appear as a serial in Good Form, beginning in the February number.

"FRANK POPE HUMPHREYS," the author of "A New England Cactus," in the Pseudonym Series, has been tracing the history of Annie Laurie, the heroine of the famous song, and her husband, the laird of Craigdarroch.

MRS. ELIA WHEELER WILCOX, in a symposium on the subject of a poet laureate for America, says: "The grandest poem in literary construction and richness of language, written by an American poet, is, to my thinking, 'Herod Mariamne,' by Amélie Rives."

MRS. STEVENSON, who has a good deal of ity as an author, has been writing a story the title "Under Sentence of the Law." hero is a dog condemned to death by a cou law in Switzerland, but preserved by petiti the villagers to suffer perpetual muzzlement.

MISS KATHARINE TYNAN says of William ris, the poet, that he never clothes his t limbs in anything but blue serge, in whic looks for all the world like a bluff sea-cap If he be asked to dinner the first thing he s lates is for his serge garments and no swal tail.

COUNT TOLSTOI has at last been persuade settle his estates on his wife and children. U this time he had absolutely refused to do contending that as all land belonged to the p at large his property ought to be divided an his poorer neighbors.

WE are told by a voyager from the South that Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson conform frank simplicity to many of the habits and ions of the region. There is a pleasant gill of the pair wandering on lovely Tahiti with feet and dressed in the graceful, flowing ments worn by the natives.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 17, 1892.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

AN EXPERIMENT IN COMPETITION.

We note with considerable interest the movement on the part of W. B. Clarke & Co., the enterprising booksellers of Boston, to take the wind out of the sails of their rival, the bazaar under-seller. Firmly convinced that they can sell books as cheap as any one, and better than those who simply use a certain class of printed matter as bait for other and more remunerative merchandise, they have hit upon the following plan: Reserving their own store for their regular custom they have hired the store adjoining and fitted it up in a manner that will catch the eye and delight the heart of the bargain-hunter. In the windows are piled no end of books, and the exhibit is made quite conspicuous by the many "price-cards" which show books at "marked-down" figures. Over the door hangs a flaming sign that announces "large lots of popular books at bargain prices." To read this sign and to look in the windows is enough to convince the most inveterate bargain-hunter in books that their former friends and protectors, the dry-goods bazaars, are not "in it" this season. The experiment so far promises to be an entire and immense success, and seems to have been as easy of execution as Columbus' famous trick with the eggs.

Turning their own store into a bazaar for this season would have crowded out the better and more desirable class of bookbuyers and given a decided "cheap John" cast to a first-class bookstore. Their plan was therefore a happy and, in fact, the only practical way of solving the problem of meeting the competition of the bazaar, and providing for a large class of buyers at Christmas who do not know what they want, but who buy what they see before them if they think the articles will answer for "gifts" and feel that the goods are selling at bargain prices.

The idea is one worthy of consideration if not of emulation. If a desirable store in a convenient neighborhood can be rented for a month or so it might be used to advantage in working off, at certain seasons of the year, not only the cheap stock every bookseller must keep, but also in unloading stock not quite "up to date," and the many odds and ends of which we spoke last week in making up a bargain counter. If it will do no more it will pay as an object lesson to the public that books may be bought as cheap, if not cheaper, in a book-store as in the dry-goods bazaar.

If the bookseller were only as alive to his opportunities and possibilities as his rival in the department store! Or, if a certain class of publishers had only been as intent in their day to stock up their friends the booksellers, and coach them how to get rid of their "bargains" as they did the dry-goods men—probably we might be nearer the millennium. As it is, where are we? The retailer is not satisfied. Is the publisher? Ten years ago not a dry-goods store in this country sold books. Ten years more, if the bookseller does not rouse himself, the dry-goods stores may sell all the books published. There need be little danger, however, of such a cannilyism if, as intimated above, the bookseller will recognize his opportunities, and the publisher become alive to his best interests.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

THE Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers held their annual meeting for election of officers at the Sinclair House, Monday, December 12. The officers elected were: President, John H. Black; vice-president, Homer P. Beach; secretary, J. Hovendon; treasurer, Samuel Eckstein; trustees, Dwight Terry, C. W. Cook. The president appointed committees as follows:

Committee on Arrangements: John A. McQuillin, chairman; Dwight Terry, C. W. Cook, J. T. Watkins, A. D. McMullen.

Reception Committee: F. A. Coombs, chairman; William Jarchow, H. L. Dorer, J. F. Hageman, Col. J. H. Ammon.

Souvenir Committee: J. F. Hitchcock, chairman; W. J. Kelly, T. S. James.

The annual dinner will be held at the Marlborough Hotel, Wednesday, December 28.

The following new members were elected: R. M. Liddell, Jas. R. Magee, D. Fitzgerald, Edw. C. Besser, G. H. Richmond, Chas. Walton, Joseph Scammel.

COPYRIGHT ON THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER.

AT the recent Protestant Episcopal General Convention, the possibility of legally copyrighting the Book of Common Prayer was considered at length. The expediency of such a proceeding was questioned by many to whom it seemed unwise and unseemly that the free circulation of the prayer-book should be thus restricted, even though the royalty to be received from the proposed copyright was to be devoted to a worthy cause. Putting aside the question of propriety, however, it is worth while to consider the legal possibility of such action. Every valid copyright requires two elements: something capable of being copyrighted and a person legally capable of taking out, holding and enforcing the right. Now, it is well known that only original matter can be copyrighted; nothing which has once been freely given to the world can be afterwards restricted. Obviously, therefore, if the material of the prayer-book ever could have been copyrighted it has long lost that capacity. The changes recently made have been published broadcast in newspapers and periodicals all over the land, and the new issue will contain nothing that is not generally known.

A still more insuperable difficulty is the non-existence of any person legally capable of holding and enforcing in a court of law a supposed copyright. The mere fact of a printed declaration of copyright does not necessarily defend it; every person asserting a copyright must be prepared to legally defend his claim and establish his valid right, and no person but the "author or proprietor" can secure a copyright on any book. Is the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America the "author" of the prayer-book? Is the General Convention any more so? Is either one the proprietor? When, where, and of whom did they obtain the property in it? The proprietor of a book has been legally defined to be one who purchases it of the author, in which case he can obtain a copyright, if the author has not done so, or forfeited his right. No other person, except the author or proprietor, so defined, can assert a copyright in any book, except, indeed, his widow may get it renewed for fourteen years' additional term, the first period being limited to twenty-eight years.

Now, suppose a copyright was claimed in the Book of Common Prayer and a publisher chose to reprint it for his own profit, who is to hinder? Who can prosecute him for the alleged infringement? Can the General Convention sue him? Can the Episcopal Church? Neither is an incorporated body; both are voluntary associations with a continually shifting membership. If neither body can sue in its own name can it give the right and power to do so to any society, religious or charitable? For these and other reasons it has always been the opinion of copyright lawyers that the prayer-book could not be copyrighted, and these reasons are quite sufficient why the attempt should not be made. It was suggested in the House of Deputies that the imprint of copyright could be placed on the title-leaf and the royalty thus secured, as the claim would probably be regarded; but this would simply be obtaining money on false pretences, and would render the party so issuing the book liable to a heavy fine.

AMENITIES OF THE ENGLISH COPYRIGHT LAW.

THE London correspondent of the New York Times writes: "Not all the stupidities and comicalities of the existing copyright muddle are on one side of the Atlantic. In our boldest piratical days we never had anything quite so grotesque as the laws which still govern dramatic copyright in England. For example, at the Haymarket on Wednesday afternoon some score of people secretly went through the forms of acting Ibsen's new play in its original Norwegian for the purpose of protecting the stage rights of the English translation when made. The affair was rather funnier than such things usually are because of the impossibility of getting more than two or three actors, even amateurs, able to read Norwegian. One journalist was pressed into the service on the strength of having made a tourist's jaunt through Norway last year, and having learned some score of elementary hotel words. One of the male parts was given him to read in this odd performance, and he did so without getting the gleam of an idea what it was all about. After the task was performed he inquired and learned to his chagrin that he had been acting the rôle of lover to the prettiest girl on the stage with a lot of highly acceptable demonstrative business! He never knew a word about it."

ANOTHER INJUNCTION IN THE WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY REPRINT CASES.

A PRELIMINARY Injunction was granted on December 2 in the United States Circuit Court, New York, by Justice Lacombe, on motion of Charles N. Judson, in a suit by the G. & C. Merriam Company against Adams & Co., dry-goods dealers on Sixth Avenue, New York. Adams & Co. sold the reprint of the 1847 edition of Webster's unabridged, the copyright on which expired some two years since; but the Merriams complained that they advertised and sold it in such a way as to make people think they sold the book, which is now known by the public as Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, at the small price of 98 cents. The Merriams insist that when people sell the old book they should let the buyers know just what they are buying, and that to sell the book as Webster's Unabridged Dictionary without some explanation, as Adams & Co. had done, was sure to deceive a great many people who didn't know the fact that the only Webster's Unabridged Dictionary now current on the market and so often spoken of and quoted is the 1864 book, and not the 1847 book at all. The injunction now obtained requires among other things that there shall be placed in each book sold, upon a printed slip attached to the title-page, a notice that it is a reprint of the edition of 1847. If this injunction shall be made permanent the Merriam Company will be sufficiently protected.

FRESH LIGHT ON THE FORGERIES OF SCOTCH MSS.

THE discussion on the forgeries of Scottish MSS., noted some time ago in the columns of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, has, thanks to the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch, entered upon a new phase. A. H. Smith, formerly clerk to the late Mr. Ferrier, W.S., has virtually confessed his share. He some years ago, so he says, got hold of some papers which Mr. Ferrier desired him to destroy as rubbish. Some of these turned out to be valuable, and the prices obtained for them by Smith tempted him to produce others not so authentic. A large collector and dealer in MSS., whose name has been accepted as a guarantee for the genuineness of those which have passed through his hands, now reveals that he accidentally discovered a quantity of these treasures in the secret drawer of an old cabinet which he purchased. Unfortunately some of the most valued of these treasures have been proved to be counterfeits. Where the cabinet came from is not yet disclosed.

Meanwhile the spurious documents, including letters of Queen Mary, Claverhouse, the Jacobite chiefs, Walter Scott and Thackeray, imitated poems of Burns, etc., have been for the past five years scattered broadcast over Scotland and England and the United States. The Dispatch will probably reprint in some separate form the whole story, together with numerous fac-similes of the documents and of Smith's handwriting. It will form a useful vade-mecum for the amateur collector of literary curiosities.

THE EVILS OF THE DISCOUNT.

IN an interview with a representative of the Scottish Leader, Mr. Fisher Unwin, the well-known London publisher and bookseller, gives his opinion on the vexed question of 25 per cent. off. Discount he declares to be a most regrettable thing for every one concerned. It bears hardest on the retailer, but it reacts on the author and publisher; it specially reacts upon authors, artists and publishers of valuable and learned and artistic work and the classes of literature which of necessity have a comparatively limited sale. These need booksellers who are thriving and who can afford to purchase such stock and hold out. As it is, booksellers largely prefer cheap literature, which sells in great quantity. Replying to the suggestion that agencies for the sale of books have greatly increased in recent years, Mr. Unwin remarks that, while there are more booksellers than there were twenty years ago, there are fewer booksellers who have a real appreciation of literature. "The more educated the bookseller is, the better."

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The formation of a new subscription-book house is announced. The company will be called the Werner Company. It will embrace R. S. Peale & Co., who absorbed the business of Belford, Clarke & Co., the Werner-Clark Printing and Lithographing Company, of Akron, Ohio, and the Webster Dictionary Publishing Company. It was said that Rand, McNally & Co. were to join the combination, but this is positively denied by Mr. McNally. The incorporators of the company, which, it is claimed, will have a capital of $3,500,000, are Paul Werner, R. S. Peale, Alexander Belford, D. H. Cocher-sperger and J. T. Edson. The company expects to begin business January 1.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Eaton, Lyon & Co. have recently sold their small branch store at 5 North Division Street to George H. Felt.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Charles T. Dillingham will remove in February from 718 and 720 Broadway to 766 Broadway.

BIBLIODESCRIPTIO; OR, HOW TO DESCRIBE BOOKS.

BY J. F. RUGGLES.

"WILL you please instruct me how to describe the condition of some books that I have for exchange? . . ."

It is difficult for any one not in the trade to properly describe either new or second-hand books with any great degree of minuteness. The parlance generally used in giving the condition is "brand new, equal to new, good as new, fine condition, good condition, fair condition, poor condition, fresh unopened copy, a good working copy, a trifle shopworn, slightly soiled, very much soiled, somewhat foxed, faded backs, rubbed backs, broken backs, cracked at joints, covers cracked, covers stained, covers blistered, covers gone, needs rebinding, imperfect, one leaf lacking, some dogeared, others mended and many stained, grease spots in profusion, bastard title-page wanting, portraits missing, margins cropped, name on title-page, autograph on preface page, manuscript marginal notes in ink, pencil marked, finger marked, library stamped on cover, shown ravages of a bookworm, has suffered from the attacks of a bibliossassin, in the last stages of dilapidation."

As to edition, we say: "editio princeps, édition de luxe, large-paper edition, erotic edition, unexpurgated edition, uncastrated edition, eliminated edition, best edition, new edition, old edition, fac-simile edition, 989th edition." Of sizes, we have "elephant folio, quarto, small quarto, octavo, post octavo, crown 8vo, 12mo, large duodecimo, 16mo, 24mo, 32mo, 48mo, 64mo, 128mo," etc. The size of print we give as "solid type, leaded type, microscopic diamond type, pearl, agate, nonpareil, minion, brevier, bourgeois, long primer, small pica, pica, English, and great primer grandmother type." Printed "on drawing paper, toned paper, variegated paper, wall paper, vellum or satin, and from wood, lead or silver types."

Illustrations from "steel-plates, copper-plates, stereotype-plates, electrotypes, heliotypes, photographs, lithographs, chromographs, stereographs, wood-cuts, etc. The binding must be full, half or three-quarters, and of either French crushed levant morocco, turkey morocco, russia morocco, mutton morocco, polished calf, tree calf, plain sheep, colored roan, vellum, sealskin, bamboo, pigskin, alligator hide, leatherette, Egyptian sack-cloth, silk cloth, plain cloth, extra cloth, limp cloth, muslin, velvet plush, wooden boards, pasteboard, marbled sides, panelled sides, antique, worked headband, thick paper, thin paper, manilla, genuine parchment or paper parchment, with ornamented back and side stamps from new dies, leather thongs, gilt clasps, gilt top, gilt edges, marbled edges, sprinkled edges, tooled edges, burnished red or yellow edges, plain edges, uncut edges." The degrees of comparison in rarity are: "common enough, uncommon, long O. P., scarce, very scarce, excessively scarce, superlatively scarce, rare, super rare, quitescently rare." Of antecedents and miscellaneous characteristics, we simply remark, "presentation copy from the author in payment for a valuable puff, subscription edition with list of subscribers' names headed by that of the notorious Mr. Missinglink, a well-preserved manuscript volume in a fine old hand, stolen from a public library with stamp partially erased, nice old chapbook privately printed, fac-simile of the scarce original by Shapira, Gutenberg's positively unique copy bound in skinneo genus homo from the celebrated Tewksberry tannery, by Karl the Great, a good sample of early printing, a fifteneer B. C. with illuminated initial letters and head and tail pieces hand-painted, a fine specimen of a 'cock' (Angloese for catch-penny), suppressed by the author, forbidden by the authorities and included in the Index Expurgatorius, a beautiful example of literary bijouterie with copious notes and excursions, and embellished with spirited illustrations, including the quaint old wood-cut startling frontispiece usually wanting, entitled 'Moses in the Meshes of the Book Agent,' from the private library of Adam, with his fine armorial bookplate on cover, portrait and autograph, after Reynolds, and his + mark on title-page, also clippings from contemporary critics inserted, extra illustrated, extra mattered," etc., etc.

We do not expect that you will be able to note all the minutiae in giving a bill of particulars the first time trying, but do the best you can, my friend, and leave the rest to us.

REAL VALUES.

"THE question of discount should never govern the dealer in buying," very truly says The Newsmen. "A case, for example, happened this month of a retail bookseller being offered fifty and thirty off on a job lot of books. The books were listed to retail for fifty cents each, fifty and thirty off meant seventeen and one-half cents net. The bait seemed inviting, but it was resisted, and when our friend was offered the same lot in a week after for twelve cents, said he pledged himself never to hearken again to discounts. The real worth of an article is rarely in its quoted price. If you have a demand you must buy, but always try and govern your purchase on a plan that will not admit of fictitious discounts."

OBITUARY NOTES.

ANTON THORMACHTEN, of Milwaukee, the well-known German poet, dropped dead on Saturday, December 10. He entered a beer hall which is headquarters for the skat players, and while in the act of drinking a glass of beer he fell dead. Mr. Thormachten was one of the best-known Germans in Milwaukee and was popular. He was born in Oldenburg in 1829. He came to Milwaukee in 1860.

CAPTAIN FRANK E. MORAN, soldier and writer, died at Baltimore, Friday, December 9. Mr. Moran contributed many war articles to The Century and other magazines, one of which was an account of the famous escape by tunnel from Libby Prison. While in New York he was master of the Actors' Lodge of Masons.

REV. DR. JOHN P. LUNDY died in Philadelphia Dec. 12, aged 70. He was a retired minister of the Protestant Episcopal Church and author of several religious works, his best-known publication being "Monumental Christianity, or, the art of symbolism of the primitive Christian church."

RICHARD HALKETT LORD, who died in London on November 19, was a well-known journalist and for years editor of The Bookman. In early life he was on the staff of Punch.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE COMPANY has become the American agents of the Thinker, December number of which is just ready.

St. Nicholas will print a series of papers leading American cities, beginning with Boston which T. W. Higginson will describe. Dr. J. M. Abbott will write on Brooklyn, and E. Steadman on New York.

MISS M. BETHAM-EDWARDS has written sketch of the early career of her cousin, the Amelia B. Edwards, which will be published with illustrations, in the January number of New England Magazine.

The Ladies' Home Journal for January will contain Henry Ward Beecher's hitherto unprinted opinion on "Wine Drinking on New Year Day." Later on this enterprising journal will print "Are Society Women Insincere?" by Morgan Dix; and "Are Women More Religious Than Men?" by Dr. John R. Paxton; and also new waltz by Strauss, said to be one of his brightest and best.

SAINT-SAËNS, who has promised to come to America to be one of the conductors of music at the World's Fair, has just sent an article The Century on Liszt, which will appear in early number. "The remembrance of his playing," writes Saint-Saëns, "consoles me for being no longer young." The article contains critical estimate of the musical personality, influence of Liszt, and includes some unpublished letters of Liszt regarding Wagner.

The United States Investor will begin on Saturday, January 7, the publication of the prize says upon American cities and towns. The investor offers $1000 for essays consisting approximately of 1000 words. Essays have already been received from 120 cities and towns. Essays may be sent in until December 31. Judges to award the prizes are Henry Cal Lodge, of Massachusetts, Charles F. Crisp Georgia, and Julius C. Burrows, of Michigan.

The Graphic, of Chicago, in its issue of December 10 publishes a complete description of the sculpture of the Columbian Exposition. The descriptive matter, which is from the pen of James Spencer Dickerson, one of the editors The Standard, of Chicago, and a writer upon subjects of reputation, is illustrated by eighty reproductions of the various sculptures now being placed upon the buildings and within the grounds of the World's Fair. Accompanying the descriptive matter there are some score of portraits of the noted sculptors who have worked upon the various groups and figures.

We have received the first number of American Athenaeum, a monthly journal devoted to literature, the arts and sciences, published Mitchell's, 835 Broadway, New York City. It is promised that the high standard of this periodical will be maintained at any cost. The paper will seek for contributions and pay for them. Although the publishers are dealers in old books they will only use its advertising columns to further their business interests. The reviews new books will be written by competent pen and will be a feature of the paper. George Sala writes the English gossip. There are articles on Rénan, Tennyson, the Doré collection the laureateship, etc., in this issue.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A SET of the first editions of the Waverley Novels was sold in London the other day for $10.

E. J. LOWELL's recent work, "The Eve of the French Revolution," is now in use as a text-book at Harvard.

EVERY copy of the Macmillans' large-paper edition of Tennyson's "Enone" was sold, it is reported, long ago.

THE "Novel Notes" which Jerome K. Jerome is contributing to the Idler will be published in book form early next year.

CHATTO & WINDUS will publish shortly a novel by Bret Harte, entitled "Susy," with a frontispiece and vignette by J. A. Christie.

A VOLUME to be added to the Golden Treasury Series is "The Art of Worldly Wisdom," by Balhasar Gracian, translated by Joseph Jacobs.

BURTON's "Anatomy of Melancholy" has been revised for issue by George Bell & Sons in three-volume form, with an index and an introductory memoir.

DR. JESSOPP's "Doris," a little idyl of English peasant life, is one of the literary successes of the season in England. Five thousand copies of it were sold in one week.

THE large-paper copies of Andrew Lang's edition of Scott's novels have already been disposed of. There are forty-eight volumes, and the price is $150 per set.

A DEAF AND-DUMB book canvasser is reported to have recently sold seventy-six books within four days in three small New Hampshire towns, his commission on them amounting to $150.

ANDREW LANG's edition of Scott's novels, to be known as the Border Edition, is being printed at the Ballantyne Press, where, early in the century, the Waverley Novels were originally printed.

THE new edition of the romances of Dumas, which Little, Brown & Co. will issue by subscription, will contain nearly 250 full-page plates, including etchings, photogravures and portraits. It will be limited to 1000 numbered sets.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish early in January, simultaneously with Hodder & Stoughton, of London, a new book by Henry Drummond, entitled "A City Without a Church." It will be uniform with Drummond's other books.

LAWRENCE & BULLEN, London, have in preparation an edition of "Rabelais" with illustrations by M. Chalon. The translator is Sir Thomas Urquhart. M. Anatole de Montaiglon has written an introduction in the shape of an essay on "Rabelais."

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH, TRÜBNER & Co. announce for immediate publication a fac-simile of the original English edition of "The Kalender of Shepherdes" (1506), with prolegomena, index, and glossary by Dr. H. Oskar Sommer, the editor of Malory's "Morte Darthur."

THE first instalment of Mr. Stevenson's "David Balfour" appeared in the N. Y. Sun for December 11. In "Kidnapped" Balfour was left on his way to a bank in search of his fortune; the new story takes him up again at the bank, and introduces the lady who is to be the heroine.

ROMEIKE & CURTICE, 359 Strand, London, Eng., propose to issue a weekly index of London morning and evening newspapers, if enough subscribers can be obtained to support the undertaking. They have just issued a "Handbook to the British Museum," by William J. Lee.

THE MILLER PUBLICATION CO., Philadelphia will issue on December 20 "Ai," a social vision, by Charles Daniel, who believes that the present methods used in relieving the ills of society are like poultices put on sore places—they afford temporary relief but do not touch the seat of the disease with permanent cure. The language of the book is said to be strong and unconventional.

DAVID STOTT, London, has just published for the Library Association of the United Kingdom a "Handbook of Library Appliances," by J. D. Brown, of the Clerkenwell Public Library. Every one who has a number of books will read this pamphlet, which is illustrated, with interest and profit, for it contains valuable information both for the private collector of books and for the librarian.

MACMILLAN & Co. will shortly publish "The Paintings of Florence," a complete account of all the pictures and frescoes in Florence, with quotations from the best authorities, by Karl Karoly (Frank T. Charles, Paris correspondent of the Boston Journal), a work intended to supply a want that other guides to Florence do not fill and facilitate the better understanding of many of the works of the Old Masters.

ONE or two entirely new stories will be included in the volume which Mr. Rudyard Kipling will soon publish. It will probably contain, also, his forthcoming magazine story, called "The Legs of Sister Ursula." Mr. Kipling has lately acquired the copyright in his early contributions to the Allahabad Pioneer. Some of them are travel sketches, and these he intends to bring out in a volume with accounts of his late wanderings.

ALEXANDRE DUMAS  fils  has just issued a seventh volume of his "Théâtre Complet" (N. Y. Dyrssen & Pfeiffer), containing his three latest plays—"La Princesse de Bagdad," "Denise" and "Francillon." All these have been published separately before, but they appear now with long appendices in which the author discusses their subjects, their success and their actors—for all were produced at the Théâtre Français.

WM. MORRIS is printing at his own Kelmscott Press a library edition of his "News from Nowhere." The edition will consist of 300 copies in small quarto, only 250 to be for sale, and the price of each copy will be $10. Mr. Morris is also printing a "Biblia Innocentium, or, story of the people of God, from the beginning of the world until the coming of Christ upon earth," written for children by J. W. Mackail. The edition will be of 200 copies, of which 150 are for sale.

DEAN SPENCE, of Gloucester Cathedral, has written an account of "Cloister Life in the Days of Cœur de Lion," in which is given an account of the discovery in the cathedral of the actual burial-place of King Osric of Northumbria, an Anglo-Saxon monarch who died in the eighth century. The Dean opened the altar tomb of the monarch (which had been generally supposed to be only a cenotaph), and found the leaden shell ROMERIE & CO. propose to issue a morning and evening paper for subscribers can be ordering. They have in the British Museum, in L.

THE MILLER P. will issue on December: Charles Davis, with methods used in like politics as a temporary relief to disease with permanent book is said to be

DAVID STOTT, Librarian of the Library Association, a "Handbook of Literature," of the Cleveland, of the Cleveland, every one who has a pamphlet, which is a profit, for it contains for the private librarian.

MACMILLAN & CO. Paintings of Famous Pictures and Reproductions from the best artists (Frank T. Charles, Boston Journal), want that other pictures and facilitate the work of the works of the artist.

ONE or two excellent included in the volume will soon publish. His forthcoming map, "Legs of Sister," acquired the copyright of the Allahabad Press, sketches, and there is a volume with accounts of ALEXANDRE DUMAS, the volume of his "Dyrssen & Pfeiffer" plays—"La Princesse" and "Franklin," published separately here with long appendices, because their subjects, are actors—for all were present.

WM. MORRIS is printing a library edition of "The Prince of the Desert" in small quarto, at a price of each copy, also printing a "Bible of the people of God," written for children's edition will be of an excellent sale.

DRAN SPENCE, of the written an account of "Cesar de Lion," in the of the discovery in the burial-place of King Dr. Anglo-Saxon monarch (which has been a cenotaph, as in which the body was placed. His book will be published soon.

JAMES G. BATTERSON, of Hartford, owns the Greek grammar used by Tennyson when a student at Louth School. It was willed to him by a friend in this city, and the Courant, of Hartford, which produces some sketches made on the fly-leaf, says "there is no possible question of its authenticity." One of the sketches shows what appears to be the schoolmaster with his rod; another, a boy declaiming. Besides Alfred Tennyson's name appears the name of Septimus Tennyson, a brother of the poet.

JOHN JOS. McVEY, 39 N. 13th Street, Philadelphia, will publish early in January a new book by the Rev. Dr. Percival, entitled "A Digest of Theology, being a brief statement of Christian doctrine, according to the consensus of the great theologians of the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church," together with an appendix, containing the doctrinal decrees of the VII. Ecumenical Councils in English, and essays upon the XXXIX. Articles, eschatology, the number of the General Synods, and upon the use and value of the Fathers.

MISS C. F. GORDON CUMMING, in her book on "Work for the Blind in China" (Gilbert & Remington), describes a new method of representing the Chinese language in raised letters. The inventor is a self-taught genius, the Rev. W. H. Murray, son of a Scotch mechanic, who was prevented from following his father's trade by an accident in which he lost an arm. The Chinese language has no alphabet proper, but 4000 symbols representing syllables. The system employed is an ingenious reduction of the sounds—as distinct from the syllables—to 408.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, will issue early in December L'Oro e L'Orpello, an Italian comedy in two acts by T. Gheradi del Testa, edited with notes by C. H. Thurber, instructor in Cornell University. The little comedy possesses characteristics that will make it very useful for early reading in Italian. It is light and interesting, and so easy that comparatively few notes are needed. This house will also issue Dumas' "L'Evasion du Duc de Beaufort," a highly interesting episode from "Vingt Ans Apres," edited with notes and adapted to follow a French reader.

THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE CO. announce ten volumes, of which one will be devoted to each of the seven chief religious bodies in America and two to the smaller denominations collectively, while one will contain a compendious history of American Christianity as a whole. The series is in charge of a committee appointed by the American Church History Society, and consisting of Dr. Schaff, Bishop Potter, Dr. George P. Fisher, Bishop Hurst, Dr. E. J. Wolf, Mr. Henry C. Vedder and the Rev. Samuel L. Jackson. The books will be written by the most competent hands, and published quarterly.

THE popular Universal Bibliothek issued by Philipp Reclam, Jr., Leipzig, has just passed No. 3000. With characteristic modesty the publisher allowed this event to pass unheralded. A number of his colleagues, however, sent him congratulatory addresses, and one a poetical greeting. Of all publishing enterprises Reclam's deserves the greatest praise, as it furnishes uniform price of 20 pfennig (five cents) per volume the best editions of German and classic standard and modern literature, in readable type on paper of good quality ordinary issues are in paper, but some of the times may be had in neat cloth covers.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF BERLIN (H. Kuhl) have just published "Die Entdeckung Amerikas in ihrer Bedeutung für die Geschichte des Weltbildes" (The discovery of America its importance as related to the history world), by Konrad Kretschmer, planned years ago as a jubilee publication for the centenary of the discovery of America volume includes an atlas, containing the thirty-one manuscript maps which are not published for the first time, although some have been known to exist for a long time society has also recently published "Maps by Gerhard Mercator—Europe, Isles, Chart of the World," the most celebrated works of the master cartographer of the 16th century.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS are about to issue through their subscription department, the centennial Edition of Irving's "Columbus" edition is limited to 401 copies, numbered 1492 to 1892 inclusive. It is comprised in royal quarto volumes, very fully and effectively illustrated, the illustrations including a set of designs drawn particularly for this work together with fac-similes of certain curio plates. The binding is antique vellum, first number in the series, No. 1492, has been reserved for President Harrison, and the second 1892 has been reserved for President Cleveland. The price of the remaining 3 is fifty dollars each. The larger proportion of these sets has already been taken up by advance subscriptions.

THE volume on "Great Book Collections" which is to be the first of a series of Book Books, published by Kegan Paul, Trenchner & Co., will bear on its title-page not only the name of Charles Elton, but also that of his who was his collaborator in the privately catalogue of the Whitestaunton Library. The volumes in the series, which will appear at monthly intervals, are: "Books in Manuscript," by F. Madan, of the Bodleian; "Early Books," by E. Gordon Duff; "The Decades of Books," by A. W. Pollard, of the British Museum—the general editor of the series; "Printings," by H. P. Horne; and "Book Plates," by W. J. Hardy. Each volume will be illustrated with from eight to thirty plates, and a number of copies will be printed on large

We are pleased to hear that a fitting memorial has been started in behalf of the late Mr. Chain, of Chain & Hardy, of Denver, in the form of the library of one of the charitable institutions "The Chain Library." Mr. Chain's efforts and constant labor in mission work in Denver in particular and Colorado in general finally led to the incorporation of "The Hand Institute," which keeps open house to all strangers and unfortunates or unemployed. Everything is free connected with the institution no charge being made for getting employment for meals or beds to deserving cases. For years Mr. Chain was a trustee of the "F Mission" of Denver, and at a recent meeting of the remaining trustees they voted to turn over their library to swell the "Chain" at the "Helping Hand." Publishers desiring to add their voluntary mite to this library will receive grateful acknowledgment from I. N. Tooke, secretary Helping Hand Institute, Denver, Colo.

THE third part of Bernard Quaritch's "Contributions Towards a Dictionary of English Book-Collectors" has followed quickly after the second. All the notices are contributed by Michael Kerney. They include Thomas Allen, a last-century collector of early English books, of whose personality practically nothing is known; Horne Tooke, whose annotated copy of the first edition of Johnson's Dictionary sold for the enormous price of £200; and Benjamin Heath Malkin, whose translation of "Gil Blas" passes under the name of Smollett. But by far the largest space is devoted to the Althorp Library, which was sold the other day to Mrs. Henry Rylands for a quarter of a million of money. Here will be found some interesting details about that historic transaction; and also a list of some of the books (chiefly Bibles) which Mrs. Rylands had previously purchased. Of the Althorp Library itself, and of the Earl Spencer who formed it, we have a concise account; and also a catalogue of the chief rarities, arranged under five headings: ante-typographic, Bibles, books printed before 1469, Caxtons (fifty-six in number, of which at least four are unique), and other notable books and editions. The illustrations given with this number are: the engraving of the portrait of Lord Spencer, from Dibdin, and two of Mr. Grigg's fac-similes in chromolithography, representing the first page and the colophon of the Mentz Psalter, taken from the copy on vellum of the 1459 edition in the possession of Mr. Quaritch.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

AN index to the Brinley catalogue will be published by Dodd, Mead & Co. An experienced bibliographer will prepare it, and it is to be made by authors, titles and subjects. Some 275 pages will be required for it. They have just issued an interesting catalogue of Americana. It includes a copy of Sower's edition of the Bible, which has distinction as the first Bible printed in this country in a European language. For the Brinley copy $350 was paid. For this $400 is wanted.

SIGNOR GIULIO CANESTRELLI, under-librarian of the Victor Emanuel Library in Rome, has published an accurate bibliography of Mazzini's writings, which comprises 558 numbers, Italian and foreign. Only 120 copies of this work have been printed. It is adorned with a fac-simile of an inedited letter from Mazzini to Mauro Macchi.

DODD, MEAD & Co.'s new holiday catalogue contains a complete set of the Grolier Club publications, valued at $550. There are thirteen titles.

titles, and sing unto thy name. And again he saith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people. And again, Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles; and laud him, all ye people. And again, Esaias saith, There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles; in him shall the Gentiles trust. Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost.

The Gospel. St. Luke xxi. 25.

AND there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh. And he spake to them a parable; Behold the fig tree, and all the trees; when they now shoot forth, ye see and know of your own selves that summer is now nigh at hand. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand. Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled. Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away.

and more in knowledge and in all judgment; that ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ; being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God.

The Gospel. St. Matt. xviii. 21.

PETER said unto Jesus, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times: but, Until seventy times seven. Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, which would take account of his servants. And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand talents. But forasmuch as he had not to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. The servant therefore fell down, and worshipped him, saying, Lord, have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. Then the lord of that servant was moved with compassion, and loosed him, and forgave him the debt. But the same servant went out, and found one of his fellowservants, which owed him an hundred pence: and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest. And his fellowservant fell down at his feet, and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. And he would not: but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay the debt. So when his fellowservants saw what was done, they were very sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done. Then his lord, after that he had called him, said unto him, O thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou desiredst me: shouldst not thou

The Medical Bulletin Visiting List or Physician's Call Record.

Arranged upon an Original and Convenient Monthly and Weekly Plan for the Daily Recording of Professional Visits. The Most Convenient Time- and Labor-Saving List Issued.

WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

"This new candidate for the favor of physicians possesses some unique and useful points. The necessity of rewriting names every week is obviated by a simple contrivance in the make-up of its pages, thus saving much valuable time, besides reducing the bulk of the book."—Buffalo Med. and Sur. Journal.

"Everything about it is easily and quickly understood."—Canadian Practitioner.

"This is the most satisfactory List that I have found in twenty years' experience."—DAN STRAW, M.D., Wm Faribault Co., Minn., Dec. 1, 1890.

"F. A. DAVIS. Dear Sir:—Please send me, C. O. P., No. 3 'Medical Bulletin Visiting List.' I used it last year and think it excels them all. Yours truly, W. H. LAM, M.D., Camden, New Jersey, Jan. 4, 1890."

It is handsomely bound in fine, strong leather, with flap, including a pocket for loose memoranda, etc., and is furnished with a Dixon lead-pencil of excellent quality and finish. It is compact and convenient for carrying in the pocket. Size, 4 x 6½ inches.

TAIT, SONS & CO.'S NEW FICTION.

THE OLD MAIDS' CLUB.

I. ZANGWILL, author of "The Bachelors' Club," "The Big Bow Mystery," etc. With illustrations. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25.

A delicious conceit. Mr. Israel Zangwill ("The new Disraeli"—New York Times) treats the whimsical in literature with the touch of genius.

WHO IS THE MAN?

J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "My Friend Pasquale," "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"In 'Who Is the Man?' the reader's interest is held spellbound, and the mystery of the volume deepens with every page. . . . The bull-fight on the plains and the subsequent duel are as thrilling as the chariot-race in 'Ben Hur.'"—New York Recorder.

THE SECRET OF NARCISSE.

Romance. By EDMUND GOSSE, author of "Gossip in a Library," "On Viol and Flute," etc. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.00.

"The book resembles some delicately finished, clear-colored picture of the Flemish painters. . . . Mr. Gosse, with consummate art, elicits our sympathy, and has convinced us of the tremendous tragedy by the method of accusation itself."—Saturday Review.

THE FEVER OF LIFE.

FERGUS HUME, author of "The Piccadilly Puzzle," "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Hollywood Series.

"Even the reader who is well trained in detective romance will find no clue 'till the secret is sprung upon him in last pages. . . . We heartily congratulate Mr. Hume on his success."—Manchester Guardian.

THE DIARY OF A NOBODY.

GEORGE GROSSMITH and WERDON GROSSMITH. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"This study of lower middle-class life is admirable, and in some of its touches it goes near to genius. . . . The book has amused us from cover to cover."

AUCTION SALES.

Readers shall be pleased to insert under this heading, with charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held here in the United States. Word must reach us before noonday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

ARY 17, 1893 and following days.—Oriental, Greek, Latin and European literature, philosophy, theology, numismatics, coins and medals from the libraries of Dr. J. A. Burckhardt, Dr. D. Burger and Dr. K. T. Koch. (3673 lots.) F. J. Brill, Leyden.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BRENTANO'S have issued a small volume, in white and gold, entitled "Witty, Wise and Wicked Maxims," selected with remarkably good taste by Henri Pène du Bois.

THE BANCROFT WHITNEY CO., of San Francisco, will issue in January the following volumes in the Practitioners' Series: "Boone on Banks and Banking," including the general law as to banks and banking and the statutes and decisions relating to national banks. "Desty's Federal Procedure," which has been revised, recompiled, rewritten and enlarged to two handsome pony volumes; and "Desty's Removal of Causes," revised, enlarged and brought down to 1893.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just issued a helpful manual on "Indexing," by J. Ben Nichols, which may be safely recommended to all who may be desirous of obtaining concise and correct information as to how to prepare an adequate index. The Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has in preparation the first part of the series of articles on "The Profession of Bookselling" that has been published in the WEEKLY during the past two years. The volume may be expected early in the new year.

THE "American Text-Book of Surgery," edited by Professors Keen and White, and published by W. B. Saunders, of Philadelphia, has been adopted as a text-book by forty-nine of our leading medical colleges and universities. Dr. Nicholas Sonn, of Chicago, is now preparing a "Syllabus of Lectures on the Practice of Surgery," arranged in conformity with the "American Text-Book of Surgery," which will be a valuable aid to all who have the former book. It will also be issued by Mr. Saunders.

J. B. MILLET CO., Boston, have just issued the first four numbers of "Famous Composers and Their Works," edited by Prof. J. K. Paine, Mr. Theodore Thomas and Karl Klauser. This work when completed will contain articles by twenty-five European and American critics on all the famous composers of the past and present, with articles on music in America, Russia, etc., together with representative pieces of songs by each composer, selected by Mr. Thomas, and hundreds of portraits, fac-similes, etc., selected by Mr. Klauser.

H. V. & H. W. POOR, publishers of "Poor's Manual of the Railroads of the United States," announce that the edition of their "Poor's Handbook of Investment Securities," for 1892-93, which was to have been issued in September last, has been delayed beyond their expectations and will in consequence not be ready until shortly before the close of the year. The delay has been caused by the great increase in the scope of the work, and by the corresponding increase in the size of the book. A new, and it is believed very important, feature of the work, now first introduced, is a statement of the financial condition of all the National and State Banks, Trust Institutions, etc., in the twenty leading cities of the country. These statements show, in addition to the financial condition of each several bank, its full record as a "dividend payer," the names and addresses of its directors and officers, etc.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. is place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., etc., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Selected chiefly from the essays and apophthegms of Lord Bacon.

Ballou, W: Hosea. Spectacular romances (including "the Jewess.") N. Y., W. D. Rowland, 1892. c. 3-190 p. D. (Leisure time ser., no. 15.) pap., 25 c. Eighteen short stories.

Balsac, Honoré de. The Chouans: Brittany in 1799; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1898 [1892.] c. 4+883 p. D. hf. mor., $1.50.

"The Chouans" was the name applied to the royalist insurgents in the west of France at the time of the Revolution. This story opens in Brittany in 1799, where the civil war that had been brought to a close three years previously had again been opened. The plot has for its central figure the Marquis de Montauran, sent by the First Consul to consult with the Chouan leaders. He was betrayed to death by a woman who loved him.

*Barnard, Emily. Book of good wishes: poetry and pictures. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons, 1892. 31 p. 16 p. col. il., 8°, cl., $3.50.

Barr, Amelia E. The preacher's daughter: a domestic romance. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, [1892.] c. 3+297 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Life in a small Yorkshire spinning village forty years ago is well described. John Denby, a wealthy mill-owner, marries "the preacher's daughter," pretty, selfish, unreasonable Salome, who is soon as discontented in her new and luxurious home as in the bare quarters of a Wesleyan minister. Her love for a scapegrace brother leads her into temptations which she cannot resist, but her husband's patient love finally wins the way to her heart. The "cotton famine" of 1860-64, with its attendant sufferings, is painted in detail.

Bittinger, Rev. J. Q. A plea for the Sabbath and for man: with discussion of social problems. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1892.] c. 14+236 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The point of view is, "The Sabbath was made for man." It is a rest day, given to man at his creation, recognized in the Fourth Commandment, and lifted by the teachings and example of Christ to a higher position than ever before—essential to the physical as well as the spiritual well-being of man. The most original and valuable chapter, probably, is the one on "The wide prevalence of the seven-day Week."

Caine, Hall. The last confession. [Also] The blind mother. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] c. 3-177 p. D. cl., $1.

"The last confession" is made by a London physician who, in the confessional, seeks assurance of forgiveness for a murder which he considers justifiable. The purpose of the writer is to show that it may be right to set aside at utmost need the letter of the sixth commandment. "The blind mother" is a pathetic little tale of a young mother's shame and suffering.

Cheney, Ednah D. Life of Christian Daniel Rauch, of Berlin, Germany, sculptor; drawn from German authorities. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893 [1892.] c. 9+331 p. il. por. O. cl., $3.

Christian Daniel Rauch was a world-renowned sculptor born in Germany, not far from Cassel, Jan. 2, 1777; he died in 1857. He is best known by his statue of Frederick the Great at Berlin, and the monuments of King William and Queen Louise, at Charlottenberg; he was also the sculptor of the "Victories" of the Walhalla, the monument to Albrecht Dürer, and many other beautiful works. Mrs. Cheney acknowledges herself deeply indebted for the greater part of her material to Dr. Egger's voluminous work on Rauch published in Germany. Besides an account of Rauch's life and works, there is a chapter giving the details of Queen Louise's life, chapters on German art, Rauch's school and influence on modern art, etc.

- Dahlgren, Madeline Vinton. Chim; his Washington winter. N. Y., C. L. Webster & Co., 1892. 6-334 p. il. D. cl., $1: pap., 50 c.
- A little sly-terror named "Chim" is the hero; he is the property of a poor and beautiful girl, who lived and taught music not far from Washington. The story shows very ingeniously that "Chim" is his mistress' "mascot." He is several times stolen and passes into the hands of various persons; all his adventures tend finally to the benefit of his real mistress, and he is in the end the unconscious instrument of restoring to her a large fortune.

- "The lost lode" was a rich vein of ore known to exist in an abandoned Mexican mine. The desire to find this hidden wealth leads a young Mexican, the son of the former owner, to commit an act of treachery and violence, from the consequences of which he is saved by the prompt action of his betrothed. "Stella's discipline" is a short story of modern life showing the moral good effected by trials and troubles.

George, H. A perplexed philosopher; being an examination of Mr. Herbert Spencer's various utterances on the land question, with some incidental reference to his synthetic philosophy. N. Y., C. L. Webster & Co., 1892. c. 3+319 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Mr. George contrasts the views of Mr. Spencer with regard to land set forth in his first book, "Social statistics," with the views presented in his recent volume, "Justice." Mr. George argues that the change of front brought out in the contrast betokens moral decadence in the philosopher. Incidentally he attacks Mr. Spencer's agnostic philosophy from the standpoint of rational faith, and declares that the superstitions of science may be even more dangerous than those of religion. In no other of his writings has Mr. George so fully stated his case against compensating land-owners, should the "single-tax" become law. Compensation, he avers, would but perpetuate in new form the wrong involved in a kind of property as indefensible as chattel slavery.

Gosse, Edmund. The secret of Narcisse: a romance. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] c. 240 p. D. cl., $1.

Narcisse, an Italian goseherd, is discovered by a great French sculptor and taught to sketch and model and carve. Although an expert mechanic Narcisse lacks inventive originality, and his master falls out with him on this account. Narcisse retires to a lonely hut and finally produces an original work. The story is laid in 1549, and love, jealousy, ignorance and superstition lie in wait for poor Narcisse and his secret. The descriptions of nature and family life in a little French Swiss village are skillfully finished. The end is artistic.

In six chapters, entitled, "Daughters," "Sisters," "The unmarried," "Young wives," "Young mothers" and "Young woman's friends;" the author describes what the pure-minded and noble-spirited women of the world have accomplished.

Holt, Emily Sarah. All's well; or, Alice's victory. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, [1892.] 285 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of the Weald of Kent in 1556-58—the days of the persecution of Protestants under Queen Mary. The heroine is Alice Benden, one of the "Canterbury martyrs" who was burned at the stake, June 19, 1557. Mistress Benden was delivered to justice by her own husband and her story was most pathetic. The fortunes of several other Kentish families who suffered persecution for their faith furnish a succession of interesting incidents. The home life of the period is pleasantly described.

*Holyoake, G. Jacob. Sixty years of an agitator's life: the autobiography of George Jacob Holyoake. N. Y., imported by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892. 2 v., il. por. 8", cl., $6.50.

Howard, Blanche Willis, [now Mrs. Von Teuffel.] A battle and a boy: a story for young people. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1892.] c. 285 p. D. cl., $1.

The boy is a little Tyrolean wail who is bought at the child-market in a Wurtemberg city and taken to a rich farmer's dairy near Stuttgart to help carry milk. Among the customers he serves he hears many words that fire his imagination. He has rough work, but his battle is bravely fought and his proud, generous little soul longs to help those who are good to him. Incidentally a "Knabenhort" is described, an association to teach boys self-respect and give them a chance to learn. We leave our hero meditating whether he will be a Galileo, an Edison, a Raphael, a Christopher Columbus, or a Schiller.

Hullah, Mary E. In hot haste. N. Y., G. Munro, [United States Book Co., 1892.] 296 p. D. (Seaside lib., no. 2042.) pap., 25 c. Originally published in Holt's Leisure hour series. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., July 28, '88, [861.]

The fair of the "Cheerybel Sisters" is the most notable incident in the story. Maggie Bradford, of course, the heroine, although some of the other characters who had parts in the preceding story are also present in this. Bessie Bradford, Lilly Norris and Lena Kent are among them. Besides a detailed account of the fair, an episode in Gladys Seabrook's life and a wedding are diverting events.

First issued in Holt's Leisure hour series, 1887. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., May 14, 1887, [1887.]

Mitchell, S. Weir, M.D. Francis Drake: a tragedy of the sea. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. 7+60 p. O. cl., $1.25.

The time is 1578. The author has adhered to the poetical telling to the statements given in "The voyage encompassed" (1628), Hakluyt Society, No. 16; the extracts of evidence as to the trial of Doughty from the Harleian manuscripts in the same volume; Barrow's life of Drake; and a biography by Julius Corbett.

tchell, S. Weir, M.D. The mother, and other poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1892. 4+69 p. O. cl., $1.25.

Twenty-five poems full of the tender feeling, the gentle knowledge, the love of nature and appreciation of goodness and greatness in others for which Philadelphia's great physician is held in such high esteem.

itchell, W. The story of the crucifixion: a poem. N. Y., F. A. Stokes Co., 1892. 2°, (Dainty ser.) bds., $1.

organ, Nina Lillian. A slumber song: a story for young people. Chic., Searle & Horton, 1892. 12°, cl., $1; $1.25.

usick, J. R. Pocahontas: a story of Virginia. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893 [1892.] c. 7+355 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels.) cl., $1.50.

A "Pocahontas." Mr. Musick continues to weave a tale with history. The Indian princess and Captain John Smith play the leading parts in the story, which deals with the history and shifting fortunes of the first Virginia colonies. As in the preceding volume, an Estevan—who on English soil is known as Philip Stevens—is the hero of many adventures and a pretty love-story.

athusius, Maria. Katie von Walden; or, Jørgenstein and Bobbling; tr. by Mary A. Robinson. Phil., American Sunday School Union, 1892. 381 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Hampshire. Early state papers of New Hampshire; incl. the constitution of 1784. Journals of the senate and house of representatives and records of the president and council from June, 1784, to June, 1787. V. 9; ed. and comp. by Albert Stillman Batchelor. Manchester, N. H.: J. B. Clarke, public printer, 1891 [1892.] 930 p. O. cl., 7 p.

ris, W. E. His grace. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. 278 p. D. cl., 1.25.

The story is told by Philo Martyn, a "practical entity" in the events which he relates. He plays part of guide, philosopher and friend to the hero of the story, whom he supplies with much good advice, which is usually calmly disregarded. "His Grace" is our Gascoigne, a young fellow who, from comparative poverty, becomes Duke of Huratbourne. From petty spite and malice of his cousin some very pretty complications arise, but His Grace's unflinching manliness brings him out a victor both in love and war. His "society" life is sketched with Mr. Norris' accustomed perception and delicate satire.

The principal characters are a hunchback who has been employed as cabin-boy on board the ship Atlanta, which sails from Savannah to Bremen with cotton and turpentine. Aunt Nancy, a tiny spinster living alone on the coast of Maine. An explosion aboard the Atlanta as the crew think the vessel is on fire, and the cabin boy and Jack, the cabin boy, are put into the boat. The boat drifts to the Maine coast, the two actors being brought into contact with "Aunt Nancy," who, in spite of her many eccentricities, has a heart.

Little men: a series of six original pictures of little boys, by an American artist. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1892. In portfolio, $5.

Poole, W. F. Columbus and the finding of the New World. Chic., privately printed, [by W. F. Poole,] 1892. 19 p. sq. T. pap., 7 p.

This essay by the librarian of the Newberry Library, Chicago, first appeared in the Northwestern Christian Advocate, October 19, 1892.

Proctor, Edna Dean. The song of the ancient people; with preface and notes by J. Fiske, and commentary by F. H. Cushing; il. with 11 aquatints by Julian Scott. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893 [1892.] c. 18+69 p. O. shp., $5.

This poem, beginning "We are the ancient people," is virtually an utterance of the Pueblo people themselves out of their own life and experience. It is a passionate, pathetic, proud outpouring of racial and tribal feeling with reference to the past, when the Pueblos were supreme, and to the present, when they are encompassed by the conquering white men. Every allusion is based upon some fact in the history or habits or beliefs of the people, as the notes attest. The illustrations portray correctly the life and customs of the Ancient people.

*Quevedo, Francisco de. Pablo de Segovia: the adventures of a Spanish sharper; il. by Dan. Vierge; with an introd. on Vierge and his art, by Jos. Pennell, and a critical essay on Quevedo and his writings, by H. E. Watts. N. Y., imported by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892. Q. por. cl., $2.

Robbins, Mrs. S. S. Miss Ashton's new pupil. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, [1892.] c. 263 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A story of college life for young girls. The author understands the life of her characters perfectly. Their gay larks, secret clubs and spreads are most amusing, yet through all is carried a high moral purpose.

*Rowlands, Rev. Dan. The fishguard invasion by the French in 1797: some passages taken from the diary of the Rev. Daniel Rowlands. N. Y., imported by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892. il. 8°, cl., $1.50.

*Russell, I. Franklin. Lectures on law for women, delivered at the University of the City of New York, 1892-93. N. Y., N. Y. Economical Pr. Co., 1892. c. 79 p. O. pap., 50 c.

*Schweinitz, G. E. de, M.D. Diseases of the eye: a handbook of ophthalmic practice. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1892. 600 p. il. 8°, cl., net, $4; shp., net, $5.

*Scott, Sir Walter. Lady of the lake. Family ed. N. Y., F. A. Stokes Co., 1892. 266 p. 8°, cl., $2; "orchid," $2.50.

*Scott, Sir Walter. Waverley novels, [New Dryburgh ed.] In 25 v. V. 2 and 3, Guy Manning. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 2 v., il. O. cl., ea., $1.25.

Sergeant, L. John Wyclif: last of the schoolmen and first of the English reformers. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893 [1892.] c. 11+377 p. por. il. D. (Heroes of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

The story of Wyclif was rewritten for this series, with the aid of a few fresh facts and side-lights to develop and illustrate his character, and with the aim "of doing something to popularize the picture of John Wyclif as an Oxford schoolman, and the picture of the schoolmen in general as pioneers of the reformation of religion and the revival of learning."

Shakespeare, W. The comedy of Twelfth Night; or, what you will. N. Y., American Book Co., 1892. c. 99 p. D. (English classics for schools.) bds., 20 c.

*Shakespeare, W. Romeo and Juliet; col. il. by Ludovic Marchetti, Lucius Rossi and Oreste Cortazzo. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons, 1892. 22 p. 4°, cl., $5; limp mor., $7.50.

*Shakespeare, W. Romeo and Juliet; with an introd. by R. H. Stoddard and 25 il. by Jacques Wagrez and L. Titz. N. Y., Duprat & Co., 1892. 18+158 p. 8°, pap., net, $15. [Edition limited to 350 copies.]

Stables, Gordon, M.D. Born to command: a tale of the sea and of sailors; il. by W. H. Overend. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., [1892.] 533 p. il. D. cl., $2.

According to Captain Brebner, an old sailor, Roland Adair was born to command because of his stability of character. This assertion is verified in a story of adventure on both sea and land. Among the notable incidents in the hero's career is his winning of a sword, a battle for life, the capture of a Barracoon, the discovery of a mysterious island and a romantic love-affair.

*Starrett, Helen Ekin. Gypsy, the story of a dog; with introd. by Frances Power Cobbe. Chic., Searle & Gorton, 1892. il. 16°, pap., 50 c.

Tait, Ja. Selwin. Who is the man?: a tale of the Scottish border. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., 1892. c. '89. 2-294 p. D. cl., $1.50.

In the prologue is pictured a duel between cattlemen on the Wyoming prairies. Later the victor in the duel reappears at his early home, Greenholm, a small Scotch border town. His arrival is followed by a series of unaccountable murders, in unravelling which many surprising details are introduced. The story is worked up to a sensational dénouement.

*Taylor, Ida Scott, and Oliver, Martha C. Story of Columbus; told in easy verse for young people. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons, 1892. 48 p. il. in col. 16°, bds., 75 c.

- Betty McKenzie, who transgresses against the laws of propriety and the rigid rules of Madame Le Brun's seminary by carrying on a clandestine correspondence, is consigned for that offence to a sequestered convent school. The incidents that follow an episode in Betty's life are cleverly interwoven in a novel which deals with English home life.

Wood, J. Seymour. A daughter of Venice: il by Francis Thaver. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1892.] c. 13-189 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An American in Venice commits his reflections and experiences to the pages of his diary. Life is uneventful for him until he meets Isabella Folsoqui, an attractive little countess whose highest ambition is to be "American," which she has become to the best of her ability by going out unattended, playing "blindman's buff," poker, etc., and being "fiancée to two gentlemen." Their intimacy soon develops into a pretty little love-story, which is abruptly closed when the "Daughter of Venice" contracts a marriage de convenance after all.

*Wright, T. Life of William Cowper. N. Y., imported by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1892. il. 8", cl., $5.

*Yonge, Charlotte M., comp. A book of golden deeds of all lands and all times, gathered and narrated by the author of the "Heir of Redclyffe." N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 11+464 p. 16", (Macmillan's school lib.) cl., 50 c.

Young, Egerton Ryerson. Stories from Indian wigwams and northern camp-fires. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893 [1892.] c. 293 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A description of the characteristics of the North American Indians, by a native missionary, who left Hamilton, Canada, for the Rossville mission in 1898. After describing the means of transportation of himself and family the author pictures the conditions and customs of the Cree Indians, introduces some of their traditions, gives an outline of Fort Garry, some incidental matter about the Hudson Bay Company and a brief biography of the Rev. George Young.

Zirndorf, H. Some Jewish women; from the German. Phil., Jewish Publication Soc. of Amer., 1892. c. 7+280 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Presents brief biographies of nineteen famous women of Judaism. Thirteen are taken from the Talmud; the others are from the Apocrypha or from the historic records of the Græco-Roman period. To these it is the author's intention to add, at some future time, the portraits of the women of the time of Gaonim and of the middle ages.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 24, 1892.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SUITABLE BINDINGS.

THE very first requisite of tasteful dress is to have it fitting for the occasion and surrounding circumstances—suited to its purpose. The same rule should hold good in the dress or binding of books; and yet we regret to see this desideratum often overlooked, and books put upon the market in gay, pretty, delicate and rich outer garments that are wholly out of place as covering for the special contents of the volumes they clothe, because they will not stand the kind of use for which such volumes are written and published.

We have been especially struck by this fact during the past few weeks while handling the Christmas books—or rather the books published at the Christmas season. Carried away probably by the wish to have their books look as attractive as others in the windows dressed to catch the eye of promenading shoppers for a few short weeks, not a few publishers have put dainty white bindings on books of short stories made to be taken up and laid down and read at all times and seasons during odd moments; sets of standard authors appear in flowered silk or equally dainty material with white backs; dictionaries in light cloths that are spotted almost before they can be submitted to the inspection of intending customers; cook-books with dainty devices of material and lettering, fit for the boudoir rather than the kitchen; and children's books so dressed up that they should be kept in glass cases.

The fashionable colors which year by year grow more delicate are used for the coverings on works of fiction whose contents certainly do not warrant such pure and artistic setting. In fact, books have grown to look almost like other articles of bric-à-brac that are scattered round our fin de siècle reception-rooms. Fortunately it is the younger rather than the veteran publishers who err in this direction. The latter do not make mistakes of this kind any more. They put books of lasting literary value and intended for library use in the correct dress for that purpose, and show their capacity to turn out dainty books when getting up single poems, or a few collected verses, or some trifle that is really almost more an article of room furniture than literature pure and simple. Fringe and ribbons have almost disappeared from printed matter, where they were an eyesore to every true lover of books, and in time the color, quality and style of bindings will follow, we hope, more correctly the subject-matter that they cover. If publishers will only not try to get up a prettier book than the last one they have seen, in the same way that they would get up a new dress or carpet design, but rather strive to make the neatest volume that can be made, that to the end will serve its purpose and remain as unsoiled and unbroken as at first, the book-lover and bookseller alike will be devoutly thankful. The latter especially would find such a course more to his profit, as it would tend to keep his stock of soiled and damaged books within reasonable limits.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING BILL.

THE Public Printing Bill, which was so badly cut up in its passage through the House, will, it is expected, be taken up in Conference Committee and restored to a more reasonable shape. If this is done it will gratify many who have felt that the most important provisions of the bill were those stricken out by the House. Originally the Printing Bill had two objects. One was the codification of all the laws on the subject of public printing and the custody and disposal of documents now on the statute-books and still retaining any practical vitality; the other was the establishment of a central bureau in which all documents, from whatever source, should be gathered under the custody of a single officer who was to be accountable for their distribution under the terms of the law applicable to each. Such a bureau would promptly and efficiently remedy the present wasteful and happy-go-lucky process of printing any number of copies of a document anybody wants, and leaving them to be scattered about in random distribution.

The objection brought by members of the House against these features of the bill was that such provisions tended to build up a new bureau which would increase in size and expense year by year, constituting too heavy a drain upon the Treasury. On the other hand it was argued that the divided bureau—if it may be so termed—articles of literature in our line of business it is the younger men who are in this line who make mistakes of the books of having been library use in the case and show their capacity when getting up single verses, or some such an article of room and simple. From appeared from practice an eye to every time the color, and follow, we hope, matter that they do not try to get up a new they have seen, in the get up a new dress and strive to make the most made, that to the end remain as unaltered as the book-lover and book-vorously thankful. The find such a course tend to keep his books within reasonable

THE PUBLISHERS

The Public Printer cut up in its pamphlets is expected, he takes it and restored to its place. This is done in part that the most important were those strikes of the Printing Office. The codification of all the public printing and the documents now on the containing any practical establishment of a new documents, from which gathered under the case who was to be accountable under the terms of the act. Such a bureau would remedy the present process of printing any document anybody was scattered about in various places.

The objection to the House against these provisions would increase in the year, constituting no new Treasury. On the other the divided bureau of now existing is larger and costlier, if all the persons and salaries are added up, than the compact bureau proposed by the bill. For these reasons it is believed that a successful effort will be made to restore the parts relating to the custody and distribution of documents. Meantime, wherever there is any interest which wants to receive with regularity its share of the books and pamphlets printed yearly by the Government, it would do well to appeal to the Representative in Congress from its district, by letter or otherwise, to vote for such restoration. Its effect will be to relieve the librarian of a deal of care which he must now take to see that his shelves contain unbroken sets of Government publications, and to stir up the new member every time the fortunes of politics take a shift in his neighborhood.

A RESOLUTION has been offered in the House of Representatives by Congressman Amos Cummings, calling for an investigation into certain abuses existing in the Post-Office Department relative to the admittance to and exclusion from second-class rates of various publications. Under the present law, publishers desirous of sending their publications through the mails as "second-class matter," at pound rates, must prove to the satisfaction of the post-office authorities that their papers possess bona-fide subscription-lists and are not distributed free; and even then they are liable to have their rights refused to them, or, having obtained their rights, to have them arbitrarily abrogated without notice at any time. Mr. Cummings' resolution, according to the New York Sun, "aims at ascertaining the facts governing the admittance of periodicals to the second-class postal rates, or their exclusion therefrom, and at finding out why some have been admitted and others excluded. There is a wide field before the committee who will make the investigation called for by the resolution, and if even a small proportion of the complaints against the present system are substantiated, the results of the committee's work will be fruitful."

HOSPITAL SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ASSOCIATION again claims the attention of the trade. This annual collection has undoubtedly been the means of giving great impetus to the free hospital service of New York, yet it is still far below what it ought to be to meet the city's needs. Last year the book and publishing trades stood well among the contributing trades, and this year the amount contributed should not only be maintained but increased if possible. Contributions will be received either by Charles Lanier, General Treasurer, 17 Nassau Street, or Mrs. John A. Lowry, Treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary, 32 West 35th Street.

COPYRIGHT IN FOREIGN PICTURE EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE VS. THE NEW YORK RECORDER CO. ET AL.

WHAT are believed to be the first decrees entered under the new Copyright Act by which foreign publishers are enabled to obtain copyrights in the United States, were recently entered in the U. S. Circuit Court for the District of New Jersey. The suits in which these decrees were made were instituted by Eyre & Spottiswoode, the well-known London publishers against the New York Recorder Company and the American Lithographic Company, and in relation to a copyright upon an engraving entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The author of the engraving was Charles J. Tompkins, an English engraver, who had been employed by the complainants to make an engraving of the painting of James Sant, R.A. Shortly after the artist's proofs appeared in this market, the engraving was copied by the defendants and suits were thereupon instituted. The bills of complaint were based upon the allegation that engraving had been used in the manufacture of the chromos made and sold by the defendant which fact was supported by numerous color-duplicates which were pointed out. A preliminary injunction was granted by his Honor, Judge Combe, based upon an inspection of the engraving and the chromos and expert testimony. The final decrees now entered recognize the rights of the complainants and provide for perpetual injunctions restraining the sale of the infringing chromos.

The painting after which this engraving was made was one of the attractions of the Royal Academy Exhibition of 1891. The infringement complained of consisted of a lithographic reproduction issued as an "Art Supplement" to the New York Recorder of Feb. 28, 1892, under the title of "A Noble Friend."

Mr. W. Hugh Spottiswoode, one of the members of the firm of Eyre & Spottiswoode (Queen's printers), recently visited this country. Meeting with a slight accident, he returned England by the same steamer, and the litigation was brought to a close under the direction of American representatives of the plaintiffs, E. J. B. Young & Co., Cooper Union, New York. Mr. Rowland Cox was attorney for the plaintiffs.

HOW TO RUN A STATIONERY AND BOOK STORE.

OUR wide-awake contemporary, the Chicago Stationer and Printer, has been asked if it "should run a stationery and book store to make money out of it," and as the answer may prove helpful to others we give it here full:

"In the first place we should get in the neighborhood of business houses, where we should expect to draw business from, especially if we commercial work, which we certainly should to do if we expected to make the most money of our business. There is no doubt that there is much more money in commercial printing stationery than in simply keeping a stationery store and selling in a small way, or a la way either, just stationery goods, pens, pencils and writing-paper. The live stationer ought to carry all these things in his store besides get time to go outside and look for business in the way of printing, getting up cial blank-books, etc. He comes in direct contact with a paying class of trade and works up a paying line of business, which helps the store as well. The day when a man can achieve the best results in business by remaining in his store, no matter how complete a stock he may carry, has gone by. If he wants the cream of trade he has just got to "hustle," as the expression is, or he won't get it. As to books we don't know as our advice is good for much. A book and stationery store that didn't carry any stock of books wouldn't do, of course. Books ought to be sold and not bought and left on the shelf to get eaten by worms and mildewed. We should buy a few, not many, books of the best and most popular type, and keep them to the front where they could be seen and looked over, and not stuck out of the way. There is no need for a book-store to aspire to be a library, and the same caution should be used in buying books as in buying any stock of goods. And we might add that people would become more interested in books and buy more if the average bookseller himself took a little more interest in display in them and presenting them in the most attractive way."

FRENCH BOOK-LOVERS' SOCIETIES.

By W. Roberts.

"O God of gods of Zion! what a rushing river of joy gladdens my heart as often as I have a chance of going to Paris! There the days seem always short, there are the goodly collections on the delicate fragrant book-shelves!" Such wrote the great English book-lover, Richard de Bury, between five and six centuries ago. And the Paris of to-day is the happy hunting-ground of the lover of books—especially of beautiful books. France is famous for its "Sociétés des Bibliophiles," which have been, at various times, started in Nantes, Bordeaux, Montpellier, Tours, Rouen and Lyons, to say nothing of Paris herself. Whilst John Bull gathers all his learning, some of his wisdom, and by no means a small percentage of his gullibility, in the many antiquarian societies throughout the land, and attempts to infuse animation with cold collation and bottled beer into dull and dry theories about nothing in particular, the French not only indulge in delightful little dinners, but have the satisfaction of adding to their shelves books which are eternal joys, not only because they are beautifully got up, but because they may at any time be sold at a premium. The transactions of many of our societies are usually sold at a discount, and may often be had for the asking.

The two leading societies of the type just indicated are the Société des Amis des Livres, of Paris, and another of the same name which exists at Lyons. The Parisian society is naturally the most influential. It was founded March 15, 1874, when the first meeting was held, but its statuts were not approved by government until six years afterwards. This society is limited to fifty, who must reside in Paris, and twenty-five foreign or provincial corresponding members. The members of this society dine together on the first Tuesday in every month, when not only are the doings of the society discussed, but, as Mr. H. S. Ashbee has expressed it, "to converse about their own treasures, and to communicate to each other their bouquinistic trouvailles of the month;" for, according to M. Charles, "after the pleasure of possessing books there is no sweeter pleasure than to speak of them and to communicate to the public the innocent riches of thought that one acquires in the cultivation of letters."

The chief aim of this society is not, as it would seem, the republication of rare, curious or otherwise desirable books of an ancient date. The object, therefore, is to issue to its members comparatively recent books of established reputation, but with illustrations by the most famous artists, and printed and bound in a manner calculated to transport the bibliophile as near Elysium as it is possible in this world. The first book published by the society is "Chronique du Règne de Charles IX.," by Prosper Mérimée, and this work, in two volumes, is "illustrée de trente-et-un compositions dessinées et gravées à l'eau forte par Edouard Morin," M. Paillet undertaking to see it through the press. In all, eight books have been issued by this society, including works of Henry Murger, Victor Hugo and Edmond About. As the publication of works does not more than about average one in two years it will be seen that the Société des Amis des Livres takes what we may call its "superlative" pleasures only occasionally upon the plea perhaps that it is possible to have too much even of a good thing. In addition, however, to these special publications the Annuaire appears with a commendable and proper regularity, and it generally contains articles by various members, besides a detailed statement of the financial position of the society, of which it may be mentioned the honorary president is Duc d'Aumale and M. Eugene Paillet the working president. In reference to subscriptions we may quote from the "Règlement Intérieur," which appears in each Annuaire: III. "Every member must pay an entrance fee and a yearly contribution. The entrance fee is 50 francs for the original members and one hundred francs for new members. The members, old and new, pay an annual fee of 60 francs or make one payment of 1000 francs. A reduction of this annual fee may be made by the committee by a unanimous vote." Corresponding members pay thirty francs per year, but they are only admitted to the "réunion de la Société" by special consent of the committee.

The kindred society at Lyons—"La Société des Amis des Livres de Lyon"—has only been established a comparatively short time, and much of its best work remains to be done. It was founded September 10, 1887, under the auspices of M. Gustave Rubattel, who is president. The aim of the two societies is, as will be gathered from the following, as nearly identical as possible: "that by their typographical execution, and by the choice of the illustrations that enrich them contribute to the development of the love of books, and are an encouragement for painters and engravers as well as an incentive to emulation for French printers." The society is cosmopolitan and consists of fifty members. The president is elected for two years only. And at the general meeting in February, all volumes which have not found owners are burned, and the plates, sketches, proofs, rejected designs, etc., are destroyed; the original designs which have been engraved are sold by auction to the members. In literary history Lyons is in the foremost place among the provincial towns of France, and the society of bibliophiles is bound to prosper there.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR RICHARD OWEN, the renowned anatomist, died on the 12th inst., aged 88 years. His latest works were a "Description of the Fossil Reptilia of South Africa," 1876; "Researches on the Fossil Mammalia of Australia, and Fossil Marsupials of England," 1877, and a great illustrated work on the extinct wingless birds of New Zealand.

WE regret to note the death on the 13th of November of T. Hermann Meyer, the efficient librarian of the Börsenverein der Deutschen Buchhändler, of Leipzig. Mr. Meyer assumed his position as librarian over twenty-five years ago, and the editorship of the "Archiv für Geschichte des Deutschen Buchhandels" in 1878. Two years ago, in addition to his other duties, he volunteered to complete the "Geschichte des Deutschen Buchhandels," the continuation of which was interrupted by the death of Friedrich Kapp.

GEORGE HACHETTE, publisher, died in Paris on the 16th inst., aged 54. He was the son of the founder and the maker of the fortune of the Maison Hachette. He published in eleven years from 1867 to 1878, 1660 volumes, and then established a branch house in London to increase his work. He was the only publisher of About, Achard, Albert, Baudrillart, Baudry, Bernard, Boissier, Caro, Cherbuliez, Deschanel, Desjardins, Du Camp, Duruy, Fabre, Figuier, Guizot, Jacquemart, Lamartine, Laveleye, Marmier, Maspero, Pezzot, Rousset, Taine and many other famous authors. He published in serial books "Les Grands Ecrivains de la France," "La Bibliothèque des Merveilles," "La Bibliothèque Rose," the "Guides-Joannes," the geographical works of Vivien de Saint Martin, Elysée Reclus, and others; the travels of all the famous explorers and discoverers; the dictionaries of Littré, Bouilhet, Lalaune, Baillon, Wurtz, Vapereau and Daremberg and Saglio. He had the monopoly of railway-station libraries and exercised over them a supervision which was equivalent to a vigorous censorship, but it was fortunately an enlightened censorship, and those who protested against it had little sympathy from men of education.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PROF. P. W. JOYCE, brother of the author of "Deirdre," is at work on a short history of Ireland.

JAMES MURPHY, a Dublin journalist, has in preparation an exhaustive history of Ireland which is to be completed in eleven volumes.

MRS. MCLEOD STEWART is writing a book which will appear in the spring in England, Canada and the United States under the title of "Twenty Years of Social Life at the Capital," the capital being Ottawa.

HERBERT SPENCER, according to M. Crofton in Lippincott's, "speaks with great gusto of a letter he received not long since from a publisher in the far West, asking how much he would take for the exclusive right to publish his poem 'The Faerie Queen' in the United States."

IT is rumored that Jules Rivière intends to publish his "musical recollections" in the spring. M. Rivière settled in England in 1857, and was musical conductor at Cremorne and afterwards at the popular promenade concerts at Covent Garden. He was for some years a musical publisher as well as conductor.

THE December number of the Revue Britannique, the veteran Paris monthly, says of "Ruses de Guerre," the new story of Albert Rhodes, formerly United States Consul at Rouen: "It places its author among the rare French writers who still have respect for a scientific acquaintance with their own language. And yet Mr. Rhodes is not French. It is an exquisite little work, whose success, let us hope, will stimulate the amour propre of French novelists. But is there one among the latter capable of writing in English the equivalent of 'Ruses de Guerre'?"

ACCORDING to the Bookman, the late Lord Tennyson knew how to make bargains with his publishers. Messrs. Strahan & Co. paid him five thousand pounds per annum for the right to publish such books as had appeared at the date of their contract, and received 10 per cent. commission on the new works they issued. It speaks volumes for Tennyson's popularity that they made a profit notwithstanding the heavy payments to the author. Of "The Holy Grail," issued at 7s. 6d., forty thousand copies were sold within a short time of publication. Subsequently Henry S. King paid Lord Tennyson four thousand a year for the old books. Of a complete edition of the poems, Mr. King sold a hundred thousand copies at 7s. 6d. per volume.

THE late Xavier Marmier, of whom we recently printed a characteristic anecdote, left a curious clause in his will which testifies to the pleasure he found among the bookstalls: "In memory of the happy moments which I have passed in the midst of second-hand booksellers on the quays of the Seine, moments which I reckon among the most agreeable of my existence, I bequeath to these honest people a sum of 1000 francs. I desire that this money shall be spent by them in a jovial banquet, during which they will be able to amuse themselves while thinking of me. It will be my thanks for the many hours which I have intellectually enjoyed in the course of my almost daily visits to the bookstalls which extend from the Pont-Royal to the Pont-Saint-Michel."

DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY, the novelist, writes: "Eight or ten years ago I was sitting in the Savage Club in the company of four distinguished men of letters. One was the editor of a London daily, and he was talking rather too humbly, as I thought, about his own career. 'I do not suppose,' he said, 'that any man in my present position has experienced in London the privations I knew when I first came here. I went hungry for three days, twenty years back, and for three nights I slept in the park.' One of the party turned to me. 'You cap that, Christie?' I answered, 'four nights on the embankment. Four days hungry.' My left-hand neighbor was a poet, and he chimed in laconically 'five.' In effect, it proved that there was not one of us who had not slept in that Hotel of the Beautiful Star which is always open to everybody. We had all been frequent guests there, and now we were all prosperous, and had found other and more comfortable lodgings. There is a gentler brotherhood to be found among men who have put up in that great caravansary than can be looked for elsewhere. He jests at scars that never felt a wound, and a fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Vogue is the title of a new society journal of fashion published every week at 61 Union Place (S.W. corner 18th Street and Fourth Avenue), N. Y., by the Fashion Company, with Mrs. Josephine Redding as editor, Harry W. McVickar art director, and Arthur B. Turnure publisher. The first number is just ready.

Worthington's Illustrated Magazine and Literary Treasure is the title of a new monthly magazine issued by A. D. Worthington & Co., Hartford, Conn. The first number is dated January, 1893 and presents a good table of contents, to which such authors as Helen Campbell, Edwin Arnold, Junius Henri Browne, and others have contributed.

Home and Country, with January, 1893, will develop into an illustrated monthly magazine printed on fine paper. The first number just ready contains articles contributed by Dr. Deems, Hezekiah Butterworth, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, Ella Wheeler Wilcox and others. The magazine will be under the editorial direction of Samuel Jaros, the well-known poet-journalist.

St. Nicholas Magazine for 1892, bound in two volumes, is up to its standard of excellence of matter and artistic finish of execution. Among the complete stories that have appeared in its pages during the year are "The Admiral's Caravan," by Charles E. Carryl, with illustrations by R. B. Birch; "Jericho Bob," by Anna Eichberg King, illustrated by E. W. Kemble; "Tom Paulding," by Brander Matthews, illustrated by W. A. Rogers; "A Year with a Dolly," by Eudora S. Bumstead, illustrated by Birch, etc. Nothing makes children happier than bound volumes of magazines.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CARROLLTON, ILL.—J. W. Lynn has sold his book and stationery business.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The business of J. C. Eyrich has paid a final dividend to the creditors of 7½ per cent.

LA CROSSE, WIS.—L. W. Lohmiller, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—James Pott & Co. have leased a store on Fifth Avenue above Sixteenth Street. Macmillan & Co. will occupy a new fire-proof building on Fifth Avenue near Twelfth Street, as soon as it is completed.

OMAHA, NEB.—The firm of Chase & Eddy opened up seven years ago in a small room on the second floor of the Bushman Block. They were then engravers and printers, and publishers of the Excelsior, just resurrected from its former state as an amateur journal and started on its career as the society journal of Omaha. Their business growing, they removed to the first floor of the same block, and put in a small stock of stationery and books, which increased until they filled this building and the engraving and printing departments were crowded into other quarters. Still growing, and finding these double quarters unsatisfactory, they have made arrangements to move to 1518 Farnam Street, Paxton Block, where they may be found after the 15th of January next. This is one of the best business blocks in the city, the store rooms being 159 feet deep, very high and handsomely lighted. Chase & Eddy will here have ample room for the accommodation and increase of their business, and it will be so central that no one can fail to discover them.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—A. H. Moss & Co., booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, TEX.—Fosyne & Searles succeed J. W. Fosyne, bookseller and stationer.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. JOHN STEWART, representing William B. Perkins, publishers' and booksellers' commission house, sailed last Wednesday for London. He has some very desirable books for the English market.

THROUGH an oversight, our valued contemporary, the Toronto Books and Notions, failed to receive proper credit for its share of the greater part of the article on "Disposing of Slow Stock" in our issue for December 10.

It appears from the will of the late Thomas Nelson, the Edinburgh publisher, that he contemplated turning the businesses in Edinburgh, London and New York into a limited company, for, as is asserted on good authority, he has empowered his trustees to adopt this course if they think it desirable.

G. HEDLER, of Leipzig, has just issued in book form the "List of Public Libraries of all Countries," which has been running for some time in his Export Journal. In the December issue of that excellent trade journal Mr. Hedler begins "A List of the Larger Private Libraries of North America," compiled on the same plan and with the same care and thoroughness.

THE trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade held a meeting on the 13th inst. The F. M. Lupton Publishing Company was proposed for membership. The following named gentlemen were appointed a committee to nominate trustees for the ensuing year: Charles T. Dillingham, H. C. Bainbridge, Alexander Agar, Bloombfield Brower and Amos M. Lyon. The annual meeting of the board will be held January 3, 1893.

IN April next Mr. William Dobson Reeves, the surviving partner of Reeves & Turner, who has been in business for forty-four years, according to the London Athenaeum, "will retire from the old-book trade, and confine his attention to publishing. Mr. Reeves, who belongs to the old-fashioned school of booksellers, has in his time disposed of a large quantity of books, and the frequent visitor to his shop stood a chance of picking up bargains. His son, Mr. David Reeves, and his assistants, Messrs. F. Lawrence and W. R. Hill, will in other premises enter upon the second-hand book trade."

THE management of the Palmer House says that it intends to take care of the commercial men who have been regular patrons of the house during the World's Fair season on the following basis: The patrons shall have the same rooms they have been accustomed to occupy at the same price, either on the European or American plan; but they will be expected to "double up," i.e., two occupy one room and each pay the price formerly charged when occupying the room alone. A gentleman who brings his wife will be charged just the same as formerly, but where one person desires to occupy the entire room he will be expected to pay the same price that would be charged, provided two were assigned to it.

By J. SELWIN TAIT, author of "Who Is the Man?" "The Neapolitan Banker," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"These stories are well told, and hold the attention intensely."—Boston Journal.

"A most delightful volume. . . . The author shows himself to be a very clever writer, and this because of the variety of its subjects, should have many friends."—Minneapolis Commercial Bulletin.

Under Fire;

Or, Fred Worthington's Campaign. By FRANK A. MUNSEY. With 40 full-page illustrations. 4to, cloth gilt, 240 pages, $1.50.

"A lively, instructive and well-written story for boys."—Syracuse Herald.

"'Under Fire' is full of interesting reading-matter such as boys like to read, and is also a very instructive book. It will make a nice holiday book."—New York Sun.

The Boy Broker;

Or, Among the Kings of Wall Street. By FRANK A. MUNSEY. With 39 full-page illustrations. 4to, cloth gilt, 243 pages, $1.50.

"'The Boy Broker' is a well-told story of boy life in New York. The hero is a country youth, a fine fellow whose honesty and hard work land him in success."—New York Tribune.

"Boys will be better for reading 'The Boy Broker' and girls will find it an interesting story. It makes a magnificent gift-book."—Albany Evening Journal.

THE LAST CONFESSION.

By HALL CAINE, author of "The Scapegoat," "The Bondman," etc. 12mo; cloth, $1.00.

"This work will enhance the already definite impression that Mr. Caine is an author whose writings are read by those who keep themselves well informed of the ruling tendencies in current English fiction."—Boston Beacon.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

A PERPLEXED PHILOSOPHER.

Being an Examination of Mr. Herbert Spencer's Various Utterances on the Land Question, with Some Incidental Reference to his Synthetic Philosophy. By HENRY GEORGE. 12mo, 320 pages, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

OTHER WORKS BY HENRY GEORGE.

PROGRESS AND POVERTY.

An Inquiry into the Cause of Industrial Depressions, and of Increase of Want with Increase of Wealth: The Remedy.

Thirteen years of criticism and controversy have failed to shake the position of this famous work, and the steady growth of its influence is more and more justifying those who hailed it as the most important book of the century. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS.

"... My endeavor has been to present the momentous social problems of our time, unencumbered by technicalities, and without that abstract reasoning which some of the principles of Political Economy require for thorough explanation."—Extract from Author's Preface. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 c.

PROTECTION OR FREE TRADE.

An Examination of the Tariff Question with Especial Regard to the Interests of Labor.

The most thorough and readable examination of the tariff question ever made. The great influence it is exerting is shown by the fact that besides its issues in other languages no less than one million five hundred thousand copies have been issued in various forms in English alone, between its first publication in 1886 and November, 1892. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 c.

THE LAND QUESTION.

What It Involves, and How Alone It Can Be Settled.

First published in 1881, under the title of "The Irish Land Question," but dealing, as it does with matters of universal and permanent importance, it still retains its value and popularity. Paper, 20 c.

PROPERTY IN LAND.

A Passage-at-Arms Between the Duke of Argyll and Henry George.

A reprint of two articles from the London Nineteenth Century. One by the Duke of Argyll, entitled "The Prophet of San Francisco," attacking Mr. George and his doctrines; and the other a reply by Mr. George, entitled "The Reduction to Iniquity." Paper, 20 c.

THE CONDITION OF LABOR.

An Open Letter to Pope Leo XIII. With Encyclical Letter of Pope Leo XIII. on the Condition of Labor.

As The Churchman says: "The two papers of this volume are models of dispassionate, thoughtful argument." In pleading for charity and benevolence to workmen the Pope presents the remedy for social ills most advocated by the exponents of all branches of Christianity. In his respectful and courteous reply Mr. George points out that charity and benevolence unaccompanied by justice can accomplish nothing; that even Christian socialism is not only futile, but dangerous, and makes the clearest and most striking presentation of the single-tax theory from the moral and religious side. Cloth, 75 c.; paper, 30 c.

*.* Please note that in assuming the publication of Mr. George's works we have reduced the price of "Progress and Poverty" and "Protection or Free Trade," in cloth, to $1.00 each, making them uniform with "Social Problems" and "A Perplexed Philosopher." Our large-type paper edition of these works will be sold at the uniform price of fifty cents.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE HOVENDON COMPANY have just ready "The Countess Pharamond," by "Rita," and two new volumes in their New and Uniform Editions of "Thomas Hardy's Works," "The Hand of Ethelberta," and "A Laodicean."

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT announce "Bible Studies," being readings in the early books of the Old Testament, with familiar comment, given by Henry Ward Beecher in his Sunday evening services in 1878-79. The volume has been edited from the stenographic notes of T. J. Ellinwood, by John R. Howard.

D. LOTHROP CO. have issued a dainty little device in the form of a game with diagrams a text, which they call "The Shakespeare Oracle or Wheel of Fortune." Those who consult it "oracle," besides deriving much amusement, become familiar with many of the pithiest quotations from Shakespeare.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready in their handsome volumes the "Dent edition" of "Fables, Dialogues in Verse, and Epigrams," Walter Savage Landor, edited by Charles Crump, who has prefaced the work with an introduction, and furnished a large amount of bibliographical information and other notes.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. will shortly publish two interesting stories by Alan St. Aubyn, titled "Modest Little Sara" and "The Mas of St. Benedict's." Alan St. Aubyn, who bright and attractive novels have been much sought after in America as well as in England, not, as was generally supposed, of the stern sex. Her real name is Frances Marshall, and she home is at Brookside, Cambridge, England.

TAIT, SONS & Co. continue to publish rapid and show excellent taste in selection. This week they appeal to the younger readers by "Unfire, or, Fred Worthington's campaign." Frank A. Munsey, with forty full-page illustrations; and "The Boy Broker, or, among the kings of Wall Street," also by Frank A. Munsey, which the N. Y. Tribune has pronounced well-told story of boy life in New York.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish shortly "Morocco As It Is," by Stephen Bonsal, Jr., which will be given an account of Sir Charles Euan Smith's recent mission to Fez, whom Bonsal accompanied on the journey; Basil Hurst's "Short History of the Christian Church" and a new novel, "Katharine North," by Ma Louise Pool, author of "Roweny in Boston." They have also just ready in Harper's Frank Square Library "In Summer Shade," a novel by Mary E. Malm.

THE NATIONAL BOOK COMPANY have just published "The Honorable Jane," by Ann Thomas, full of bright humor and keen character sketching, forming an addition to their Prem Series; and two new volumes in the Rail Series, "A Coquette's Love," by Guy de Maupassant, and "Widowed Wife and Wedding Maid," by Schonberg Malot. Among their best selling recent publications are "The Black Nation," by Fergus Hume; "Appledore Farm," by Katherine S. Macquoid; "Marguerite," Georges de Peyrebrune; and "The Secrets of the Marionettes," by Ernest de Lancey Piers.

THE OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in preparation the "Annual Index to Periodicals" for 1892, edited by W. I. Fletcher. The volume will contain a complete index in alphabetical order of the magazine articles for 1892, ranged on the plan of the original Poole's "Index to Periodical Literature," with a direct reference to the date of issue. It indexes nine of the leading magazines (printed in English language) of the United States and England. The new volume is planned to contain also an extension of the material of the "A. A. Index," so that it will be a first supplement to that important work.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. fr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (16mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., etc., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Ambauen, Rev. Andrew. The floral apostles; or, what the flowers say to thinking man; derived largely from the utterances of some of the wisest men of all ages. Milwaukee, Wis., C. N. Caspar, 1892. 264 p. 8°, cl., $1.50.

American state reports, cont. the cases of general value and authority subsequent to those contained in the "Am. decisions" and the "Am. reports," decided in the courts of last resort of the several states; sel., rep. and annot. by A. Balestier, Josephine. Life and Sylvia: a Christmas journey; il. by Margaret Wendell Huntington. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1892.] c. 6-58 p. D. bds., 50 c.

Actuated by discontent at her Uncle Will's evasive answer to her query, "What is 'Sperance'?" precocious little Sylvia Delamere determines to find out for herself. Overhearing a caller reading to her mother of the experience that could be gained in Mulberry Street, New York, she starts out to find in that quarter "Life," who, her uncle had told her, gave experience. The strange consequences of this trip are told in the story.

Banks, L: Albert, D.D. The revival quiver. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1892. c. 9+254 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Chapters, telling how successful revivals have been planned and what methods have been used; also giving practical hints how to reach, win, and save the people. The main part of the work consists of topics, texts and outlines of one hundred and ten sermons. The suggestive outlines of four watch-night sermons are also given.

*Baruch, Simon, M.D. The uses of water in modern medicine. Detroit, Mich., G: S. Davis, 1892. 2v., 8°. (The physician's leisure lib., 6th ser., no. 2.) cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

Berkeley (pseud.), and Rowland, T. B. Card tricks and puzzles. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., 1892. 5+120 p. S. cl., 50 c.

Tricks depending solely upon sleight-of-hand are excluded from this collection. Many of the card puzzles, simple tricks, tricks by calculation, and tricks with arranged cards require some sleight-of-hand to perform successfully, but this element is secondary. Mr. Rowland's contribution consists of arithmetical puzzles. Neatly bound in red and white.

Botume, Elizabeth Hyde. First days among the contrabands. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1892 [1892.] c. 3+286 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A contribution to the history and solution of the problem of the elevation of the American colored people. The author was one of the first teachers who heard the call for volunteers for service, and was stationed at Old Fort Plantation, Beaufort, S. C. The people were of the lower order of plantation negroes. The author gives in this book the results of nearly thirty years' work among the people, and her experience throws great light on the conditions of labor and social life that have caused anxiety to the friends of the race.

Brooks, Elbridge S. The true story of Christopher Columbus, called the great admiral: told for youngest readers. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1892.] c. 3-187 p. il. O. bds., $1.25.

Intended as the opening volume in a series specially designed for children's reading, to be called Children's lives of great men; will be followed by the "true story" of others who have "helped to make and to develop American freedom, strength and progress." Mr. Brooks tells the story of Columbus' life in a most interesting manner, emphasizing those picturesque details which appeal forcibly to a childish imagination. The book is profusely illustrated.

Cerna, D: M.D. Notes on the newer remedies: their therapeutic applications and modes of administration. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1893 [1892.] c. 2-177 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Gives the salient properties of comparatively unknown medicinal remedies. The matter is arranged alphabetically.

Colter, Mrs. J. J. A gentle benefactress. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1892.] c. 6-329 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Angela Marlowe is the "gentle benefactress." Left an orphan and the possessor of great wealth, even as a child she finds her delight in "making folks happy." As she blossoms into womanhood she extends the scope of her work, visiting the slums, taking ragged little waifs to the peaceful country, and in many cases developing genius which otherwise would have lain dormant. Her happy marriage concludes the story.

Dale, Horace C. The deacon: an original comedy drama in five acts. Author's ed. N. Y., Harold Roorbach, [1892.] c. 50 p. D. (Roorbach's American ed. of acting plays, no. 55.) pap., 25 c.

*Dickens, C: Sketches by Boz: a reprint of the 1st ed.; with the illustrations, and an introd., biographical and bibliographical, by C: Dickens the younger. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 26+464 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Engle, Walter K. "Medica:" a farce in one act. N. Y., Harold Roorbach, [1892.] c. 15 p. D. (Roorbach's American ed. of acting plays, no. 57.) pap., 15 c.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Musset, Alfred de. The confession of of the century; tr. by Kendall
Chic., C: H. Sergel & Co., [1892.]
354 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Nichols, J. Ben. Indexing: a manual for librarians, authors and publishers. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1892. 14 p. O. pap., net, 25 c.

Formulates and presents concisely the guiding principles of indexing and their practical application in the preparation of the several kinds of indexes.

Orne, Martha Russell. Timothy Delano's courtship: a comedy in two acts. N. Y., Harold Roorbach, [1892.] 27 p. D. (Roorbach's American ed. of acting plays, no. 56.) pap., 15 c.

Owens, Mrs. J. E. Memories of the professional and social life of John E. Owens, by his wife. Balt., Md., J. Murphy & Co., 1892. c. 7+292 p. pors. O. cl., $2.50.

John Edmond Owens, the genial actor, whom many of us still remember with so much pleasure, was born at Liverpool, England, April 2, 1833. In 1838 he came to America. He died December 7, 1886. The story of his career as man and artist is lovingly written by his wife and dedicated to his memory. A handsome book, full of theatrical reminiscences.

Protestant Episcopal Church. Book of common prayer and administration of the sacraments and other rites and ceremonies of the church; according to the use of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States of America. [Also] The Psalter or Psalms of David. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1892. 566 p. T. cl., 25 c.

Certified "that this edition has been compared with a certified copy of the Standard Book as the Canon directs."

Rand, E. A. The Down East master's first school. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1892. c. 473 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The author's own experiences as a "Down East master" have provided him with much of the material for this story, which will, he hopes, furnish helpful hints to teachers just beginning work. It relates the experiences of a young collegian who "teaches school" in a Maine backwoods village some thirty years ago, and who succeeds in securing the respect and affection of his unruly scholars. Of course there is a girl pupil to whom he loses his heart, and when the war breaks out and the young teacher enlists, and is wounded at Gettysburg, Annie Alton goes to the hospital to nurse him back to life and happiness.

Russell, W. Clark. A marriage at sea. Chic., Donohue, Henneberry & Co., [1892.] 172 p. il. D. (Dearborn ser., no. 80.) pap., 25 c.

The story opens with the midnight elopement of a young English girl from her Boulogne boarding-school. Her lover takes her to his yacht, in which they propose to make a brief cruise, hoping by this escapade to force a consent to their marriage. A heavy storm wrecks the yacht; the eloping couple are rescued by an outward bound steamer, and, taking advantage of a little-known provision of the Shipping Act, are married by the shipmaster, thus cutting the Gordian knot of opposition to their union.

Sanford, Fernando. Some observations upon the conductivity of a copper wire in various dielectrics. Palo Alto, Cal., Leland Stanford Junior University, 1892. 2-41 p.+3 diagrams, O. (Leland Stanford Junior University Publications, studies in electricity, no. 1.) pap., 50 c.

No known electrical phenomenon offers greater difficulty of explanation at the present time than the phenomenon of metallic conductivity. The investigations of this subject made by the professor of physics in the Leland Stanford Junior University of Palo Alto, California, and those of others famous for electrical knowledge are given, with tables and formulas, and also a promise that the investigations of the coming year will furnish data from which it may be legitimate to make further comparisons.

Schreiner, Olive, ["Ralph Iron," pseud.] Dreams. Chic., C. H. Sergel & Co., 1892. 16, (Medallion ser.) cl., $1.

*Selborne, Earl of, [Sir Roundell Palmer.] Hymns: their history and development in the Greek and Latin churches, Germany and Great Britain. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 216 p. 18, cl., $1.25.

*Selby, A. L. Elementary mechanics of solids and fluids. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 11+299 p. 12, cl., $1.90.

*Smith, W. B. Introductory modern geometry; or, point, ray and circle. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 9+297 p. 12, $1.10.

*Souvestre, Emil. An attic philosopher in Paris. Chic., C. H. Sergel & Co., 1892. 16, (Medallion ser.) cl., $1.

*Thayer, Ja. Bradley. Select cases on evidence at the common law, with notes. Cambridge, Mass., C. W. Sever, 1892. c. 17-1229 p. O. cl., $7.50.

Universalist register (The), giving statistics of the Universalist church and other denominational information, etc., for 1893; ed. by R. Eddy, D.D. No. 58. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1893. 112 p. D. pap., 25 c.

Venable, W. H. Let him first be a man, and other essays chiefly relating to education and culture. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1892. c. 8+274 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Some of the twelve papers were originally addressed to teachers' institutes, while others first appeared in well-known educational journals. The purpose of the collection is to oppose the deadening influence of mere mechanical routine in the training of children. The papers are entitled: Let him first be a man; The paragon of animals; Functions of the preparatory school; Schoolmastery; Nature the sovereign schoolmistress; Topics of the time; Books and reading; Unclassified trifles; Studies in the history of education; The utility of the ideal; Sylvan mythology, poetry and sentiment; William Downs Henkle—memorial address.

Wakefield, E. B., McGarvey, J. W., and Taylor, H. K. Standard eclectic commentary on the International Sunday-school Lessons for 1893: comp. original and selected notes, explanatory, illustrative, practical. Cin., O., The Standard Pub. Co., [1892.] c. '93 ['92.] 11+300 p. maps, diagrams, O. cl., $1.

A. N. Gilbert, who had for many years prepared this Lesson Commentary, died during the work of preparation for 1893. E. B. Wakefield, who undertook the uncompleted work, is professor of Biblical theology at Hiram College; J. W. McGarvey, compiler of the geographical notes, is professor of sacred history; and H. K. Taylor, who has prepared the normal studies on the lessons, is principal of the Louisville Training School.

Warner, Lucy Hamilton. The five little finger stories: a book for children; il. from water colors by Carida. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1893 [1892.] c. 1C-126 p. O. cl., $1.25. Ten short stories, supposed to be told by "The five little fingers." They are: Some dogs' opinions of the dog-show; Woggle's wonders; Mother's Cousin Nathan; Jenny Ring; Mary's musical bars; The broom faerie; Mr. and Mrs. Flyaway "at home;" Old Tyler; "Who lives in mamma's work-bag?" The clothes-line imp. Prettily bound in pale gray-green, with darker cover design.

*Xenophon. Works; tr. by H. G. Dakyns. In 4 v. V. 2, Hellenica, Books III-VII: Agesilaus, the politics, and revenues. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1892. 91-393 p. 12, cl., $2.50.

*Young, Art. Hades up to date. [Humorous.] Chic., F. J. Schulte & Co., 1892. 100 p. obl. F. cl., $3.50.

 Co., and secured the beautiful store No. 207 Montgomery Street, Russ House Block (directly opposite his old stand and the main entrance of the Mills Building), and will hereafter carry in connection with a great assortment of books and stationery a large and varied stock of fine
 French toys and fancy goods.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 31, 1892.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SHARP PRACTICE.

WE made an indirect reference a couple of weeks ago to the practices of certain publishers in stocking up department stores to the immediate disadvantage of the bookseller and to their own ultimate undoing. This seems to have aroused curiosity in certain quarters, and inquiries have been put to us as to the meaning of our reference. For the benefit of these querists we find an illustration ready in a recent experience ventilated in the columns of our contemporary, The Newsman. The case in point is briefly as follows:

"Three thousand copies of a bound copyright book were placed on the market at eighty-four cents, wholesale. It was sold entirely to the legitimate trade at this figure. As only about one thousand copies were sold during the first three months, the publisher hit on a trick to make them move and offered them to a dry-goods syndicate for thirty cents apiece, spot cash. The books were found, within a few days after, retailing in the dry-goods stores as low as thirty-five cents, or less than one-half what the regular trade paid for them at wholesale.

"Let us presume that John Jones, the bookseller, bought five of these books at eighty-four cents and sold three of them, say at $1.15 apiece. In the meanwhile, Jenkins, the bazaar owner, gets his lot for thirty and advertises them for thirty-five. Jones is stuck on two copies, and the customer who bought the other three must hear of the cut in price, charging Jones as a swindler, never to be patronized again. Not much subterfuge about a case like this, yet it is on the records as true, and will happen again."

This case is a sample of hundreds. It is no secret who established the book departments in most of the bazaars, nor is it a secret that some of the promoters of the scheme have had reason in more than one case to regret their enterprise most bitterly, simply because the creature became greater and of more importance than its master, and exchanged places with him.

Occasionally the sort of dealer described by The Newsman runs against a bookseller who is able to take care of himself and prompt to rise to the occasion. Not many years ago in a prosperous town supporting three or four bookstores, a "drummer," before the opening of the holiday season, stocked up those booksellers as usual with a stock of books. Among them was a certain "See-Saw" ordinarily sold at one dollar retail, forty off to the trade. There was a big demand for the book in that town, but the demand did not seem to vary. After getting through with the book-stores at this particular season the drummer, immediately before his departure, had the brilliant inspiration of interviewing the head of the largest dry-goods and notions store in that town, which, strange to say, at that time had no ambition to extend its domain beyond the dry-goods line. The result of the interview was that the dry-goods man was persuaded to stock up with "See-Saws" in large quantities at fifty and ten off, spot cash. He was instructed how to sell the book—65 cents was a good point to start from, as the booksellers in the town were dense enough to hold the book up to the advertised price, $1. The drummer then went on his way well satisfied with his wily enterprise.

Curiously, the one live bookseller in that town got wind of this move. He promptly called upon his confères, held a council of war, and determined upon a line of action. His first move was to countermand his order for that particular book, giving his reason. The other booksellers did likewise, holding back but a few copies to fill advance orders. The season approached. One Sunday The Coalsteen Bazaar started to staid fellow townsmen through the Sunday Cent the announcement that on Monday they would open up a book counter, over which would be sold the "'only See-Saw' at 65 cents, price 2 in the book-stores." The enterprising bookseller promptly sent agents to Coalsteen's on the following morning to buy up a dozen copies at 65 cents. On Tuesday morning his card appeared below Coalsteen's flaring announcement setting forth that the same "See-Saw" might be had at his book-store for 50 cents, and other books cheap in proportion. The dry-goods man grew pale, but promptly dropped to 50 cents himself. Anticipating this, however, the bookseller took the precaution of lowering his price to 40 cents, and kept up the reduction until it reached 35 cents. How did he supply the demand? He didn't; he simply resorted to the trick inaugurated by the "cheap John" store of running down his neighbor's price and selling just enough copies of the book advertised to save himself from the imputation of making false representations. He sold for a week two copies a day at the price advertised—his rival sold the rest. Mr. Coalsteen's experience sickened him, and he didn't "go into books" again. Nor has the publisher found it very profitable either, if he will consult his ledger.

We do not approve of the methods resorted to by this bookseller, though we recognize the necessity of fighting unfair competition—even with the enemy's weapons. The most effective and legitimate way of overcoming this and other evils, however, would be through organization, towards which we hope more decided steps will be taken in the coming year than were in the year just drawing to a close. The South is bestirring itself, and the West is working hard to perfect its organization. Let the Eastern and Middle States but recognize the importance, or rather the necessity for such a course, and then let the four sections combine in one effort and the tenure of existence of such impostors as those described above will be as brief as can be desired by even their most impatient victims.

BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

EIGHTH ANNUAL BANQUET.

THE eighth annual dinner of the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers was given at the Hotel Marlborough, 36th Street and Broadway, New York, on the evening of the 28th. Every detail of the evening's entertainment had been looked after in the most conscientious manner by the committee of arrangements and the reception committee, the former composed of Messrs. J. A. McQuillan, C. W. Cook, Dwight Terry, A. D. MacMullen and James T. Watkins, and the latter of F. A. Coombs, Col. J. H. Ammon, J. F. Hegeman, Wm. Jarchow and H. L. Dover. The expert management and the very able administration of the chairman, John H. Black, president of the brotherhood, provided an entertainment that fairly outshone any yet given by this society, and one which was heartily and fully enjoyed to the very end by every one present.

About nine o'clock nearly one hundred members and their guests seated themselves in the neat dining-hall of the Hotel Marlborough. Among the guests were Will Carlton, the poet, and the Hon. W. Waller, ex-governor of Connecticut. The guest card was a very clever device which by moving an adjustable section became a fac-simile of a Pullman vestibule buffet car. This card was the gift of Messrs. Raphael Tuck & Sons Co. The menu was a neatly bound volume, red russiasides, white vellum backs, the text of which was prepared by Mr. J. C. Harvey. The dinner was excellent and well served.

After the cloth was removed the chairman read letters of regret from F. Hopkinson Smith and George Ayres, and a letter from Messrs. Gaddo, in which they asked the brotherhood to accept a gift of half a dozen boxes of very prime cigars. Pseudo letters were also read from President Harrison, President-elect Cleveland and "our only Chauncey" M. Depew, the humorous allusions in which of course "brought down the house." According to the plan adopted there were no set speeches but simply "table talks," recitations, songs and stories, in which the members and guests took equal part. Among those who entertained the gathering were J. C. Hervey; John G. Hart, vice-president of the Commercial Travellers' Club; James De Mandeville, vice-president of the Tenderloin Club; Will Carleton, who recited "The Christmas Baby;" ex-Governor Waller; Prof. M. Truman, who volunteered a song; L. Manning, John L. Shepard, Homer P. Beach, W. J. Kelley and I. M. Longhead.

In the course of the evening President Black announced to the members of the brotherhood that the Commercial Travellers' Club was anxious to have them affiliate with the latter club, and called upon Mr. George W. Knott, the president of the club, to further enlighten the assembly upon the subject. Mr. Knott briefly told the history of the Commercial Travellers' Club, which about a year ago began with a membership of six and no capital, and now numbers three hundred, has a well-appointed club-house with twenty-two rooms, hired for five years at a rental of $4000 per year and a reserve fund towards building a house of its own. The ambition of the club was to draft into its membership the 250,000 travellers throughout the United States (of which 116,000 belonged to New York City), and in time to establish a chain of commercial travellers' clubs to reach from Portland, Me., to San Francisco, Cal. He then reminded the commercial men present of the desirability of combining together for the protection of their interests as well as those of their employers quite as much as for the comfort and pleasure they might enjoy through such clubs; that (as was more fully elaborated by the preceding speaker, Mr. J. L. Shepard) as their employers now figured their expenses a part of their salaries, every movement on their part that enabled them to reduce expenses would accrue to their benefit in the shape of increased salaries quite as much as it would to the profit of their firms. A portion of this saving might be accomplished through pressure which a united effort of a majority of the travellers could bring to bear on railroad companies and the proprietors of hotels; another portion might be saved by a greater exercise of economy and a recognition of the fact that the money they were spending was not in fact money belonging to others, but might become a part of their own salary if they were inclined to work to that end. Finally he explained that it was the desire of the club of which he is president to have as its members the whole of the Brotherhood, and that it would to that end waive the question of initiation fee. He also showed that this would not necessitate the extinction of the Brotherhood as a separate organization, but on the contrary that it would help to make the parent organization, for so he regarded the "B. C. T.," stronger in that it gave them a permanent home which, with its necessarily restricted membership, it in all probability would never be able to obtain. The proposal seemed to meet with general approval. And after the banquet a number of members registered their names for admission into the Commercial Travellers' Club. It was long past midnight when the gathering broke up.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

PROTECTION FOR GERMAN AUTHORS.

ON January 1, 1893, the contract between the German-American Feuilleton Agency with the Deutsche Schriftsteller-Verband, made through the firm of I. Benschneider, of Mannheim, goes into effect. Commenting upon this organization the Börsenblatt says: "Owing to the vast amount of detail needed to make binding the provisions of the American copyright law, it has hitherto not been possible to make sure of the protection of magazine and newspaper articles, and the periodical and newspaper press of America have therefore been enabled to take unhindered their rich feuilleton material from the daily papers of Germany without even offering remuneration to the owners for this use of their work. The new agency will remedy this difficulty. The German-American Feuilleton Agency has guaranteed to accept every article accepted by the feuilleton of any German or German-Austrian newspaper, provided a copy of the article is sent to the office of the Deutsche Schriftsteller-Verband (Berlin, W. Potsdamerstrasse 122c) at least eight days before its publication in Germany." What provisions the agency will make for publication in this country has not yet been made public.

OBITUARY.

ORANGE JUDD.

A CAREER of much usefulness and unceasing activity was ended in the death of Orange Judd, so widely known as a leading pioneer in the broad field of agricultural journalism. Mr. Judd died at his home in Evanston, near Chicago, on Tuesday, December 27.

Mr. Judd was born in 1822 near Niagara Falls, N. Y. His early boyhood was spent on a farm, and from his youngest days he learned practically the value of the material he prepared and collected for his several publications and contributions to other journals. Although dearly loving farm life he eagerly availed himself of all the opportunities afforded by neighboring schools for obtaining a good education. His parents sent him to the Wesleyan University, in Middletown, Conn., and he was graduated from that institution in the class of '47. He taught school in various places for three years and earned sufficient money to enable him to take a three years' course of analytical and agricultural chemistry at Yale.

In 1853 Mr. Judd came to New York and became editor of the American Agriculturist, and in 1856 became its proprietor and publisher. For upwards of twenty-five years his name, associated with the name of that journal, was a household word in rural communities throughout this country. The American Agriculturist was a phenomenally successful paper, but in due time stimulated a species of competition with which Mr. Judd's conservative methods could not cope. Consequently, when financial reverses came, invited partly by Mr. Judd's ventures in agricultural patents, he found himself unable to stem the tide. The publishing house of Orange Judd & Co., which he organized when in the prime of his prosperity for the issue of scientific and agricultural works, was reorganized in 1883, and its control passed out of his hands into the hands of creditors, who selected Orange Judd's brother, David W.—then a quarantine commissioner at the port of New York—to wind up its affairs. Mr. Orange Judd went to Chicago soon afterward and established an agricultural journal, which in course of time became the Orange Judd Farmer.

From 1855 to 1863 Mr. Judd was agricultural editor of the N. Y. Times. In 1857 he imported a quantity of sorghum seed which he distributed free, and this was the origin of the lucrative sorghum industry of this country. He was also the originator of the crop-reporting percentage system now used by the government and State bureaus; and throwing his mental activity into a totally different field, he was the first one to shape a scheme of Sunday-school lessons prepared a last year, from which have come the "Berean" and the "International Sunday-school Lessons."

Orange Judd was a very prominent alumnus of Wesleyan University. His gifts to the university, the chief of which was the Orange Judd Hall of Natural Science, built in memory of a beloved son, aggregated in value more than the gifts of any other alumnus. He really devised and put together the first complete alumni record, consisting of an octavo volume of 300 or 400 pages, giving brief biographies of every alumnus of the college. The institution took it up, and keeps it up to this day. Many of the other colleges adopted the plan devised by Mr. Judd.

Mr. Judd was also largely engaged in real estate and railroad operations, and was much embarrassed in later years by the heavy depreciations of this real estate. To meet obligations he engaged in various business operations, but in many of them lost heavily. In 1884 Mr. Judd established the Orange Judd Farmer Co. in Chicago and for the last few years has resided in the city, where he was senior editor of the Orange Judd Farmer.

Orange Judd was a man of indomitable energy. He made, gave away and lost fortunes, and in spite of obstacles and reverses, retained his ambition and energy to the last. He was in perfect health apparently until Friday, December 23;

OBITUARY NOTES.

MONTAGU WILLIAMS, the English barrister whose recently published book of reminiscences had a wide sale, died on the 23d inst.

LEON CONTANSKAU, the well-known French linguist and lexicographer, died at Neuilly, France, on the 23d inst., aged 80 years.

WILHELM SCHAUS, the well-known art connoisseur and dealer in pictures, died at his residence in New York on the 29th inst., aged 76 years.

DR. RICHARD B. KIMBALL, the well-known author, died in St. Luke's Hospital, N. Y., December 28, aged 76 years. His first literary work which attracted attention was the production of a metaphysical novel under the title of "St. Leger, or, the threads of life." This and several others of his books were translated into German and French and had a considerable sale. Afterward he wrote "Cuba and the Cubans," "Romance of Student Life Abroad," "Undercurrents of Wall Street," "Was He Successful?" "Henry Powers, Ranker," and other novel stories, essays and tales of travel. He was one of the few who contributed to "The Knickerbocker Gallery," published for the benefit of the widow of Willis Gaylord Clark. Ten days before his death Dr. Kimball completed his crowning work, "Half a Century of Recollections."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER has been unanimously elected to the (only) honorary Vice-Presidency of the Egypt Exploration Fund, in accession to Mr. Lowell and Mr. Curtis.

HERBERT SPENCER has been writing for more than forty years, and a partial estimate of the profits from the sale of his most important books, it is claimed, shows that they have brought him less than a thousand pounds a year.

WILLIAM HALE WHITE has now acknowledged his authorship of "Mark Rutherford" and other works. Mr. Fisher Unwin is issuing these notable books in a new edition, which will include Mr. White's translation of the "Ethics of Spinoza," published some years ago in Messrs. Trübner's Philosophical Library.

WILLIAM WATSON, the English poet who received £200 for the best ode on Tennyson, and as even been urged for the laureateship, has become violently insane and has been placed in an asylum by order of the court at Windsor. The news comes by cablegram, which also states that this gifted writer showed signs of aberration of mind nearly twelve years ago.

ALFRED AUSTIN says that Tennyson once told him that he found the idea of the famous couplet in "Locksley Hall"— lowly comes a hungry people, as a lion creeping nigher

flares at one that nods and winks behind a slowly dying fire—in a Methodist magazine containing an account of how African travellers kept off lions from their encampments at night by lighting great bonfires.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

W. POLLARD, 13 Barclay St., New York, will issue early in January "The Price of Love," by Abel Jackman.

SAMUEL ECKSTEIN, now with the Berlin & Sons Envelope Co., will connect himself with Marcus Ward & Co. on January 1, and will visit the trade in the large western cities.

G. E. WILSON, the Chicago publisher, has received a sentence of two years in jail, on the charge of selling obscene literature. It is said that more arrests are on the docket, and that already six Chicago publishers are under indictment.

CHAS. L. WEBSTER & Co. announce in addition to Henry George's "A Perplexed Philosopher," re-issues of the following of his works: "Progress and Poverty," "Social Problems," "Protection or Free Trade," "The Land Question," "Property in Land," "The Condition of Labor."

It is proposed to publish a limited edition of biographical sketch of Donn Platt, by Charles Grant Miller, his "Sunday Meditations and Miscellaneous Sketches," and his "Plays and Poems," sufficient encouragement is received from his old friends and admirers to warrant their publication. Orders may be placed with Ella Kirby Platt, Lacoochee, West Liberty, Ohio.

MR. THORVALD SOLBERG who is obliged on account of ill-health to take a long-needed rest, after a short stay in the South, departs for Sweden on January 28, by the S.S. Kaiser

Wilhelm II., to spend four months in Italy and Switzerland. He requests his many friends to note that during his stay abroad his address will be in care of the U. S. Exchange, 9 Strand, London, England.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish early next year "Children of the King," a tale of southern Italy by Marion F. Crawford, which is one of a few of his books that has not been published serially. The Macmillans have made arrangements to complete their uniform edition of Crawford's novels by the reissue of "To Leeward," "A Roman Singer," "An American Politician" and "Paul Patoff," hitherto published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have just ready Pierre Loti's "Pêcheur d'Islande," adapted and annotated for use as an advanced text in French. Loti, by talent alone, has won a place in the French Academy and is one of the marked novelists of the day. Though the "Pêcheur d'Islande" has a sad ending, it cannot fail to be read with keen interest by all who enjoy a work of fiction wonderfully graphic in its picturing of scenes and situations.

THE original manuscript of "Poems by Two Brothers" was sold at auction on the 23d instant at Sotheby's auction rooms. The price paid by the University of Cambridge for the manuscript was £480, with the copyright reserved. These poems were written by Alfred Tennyson and his brother Charles, and, with the exception of two that have never been printed, were published many years ago. The larger portion of the manuscript is in the handwriting of Alfred Tennyson.

PROF. J. K. HOSMER, librarian of the Public Library at Minneapolis, is engaged upon a life of Thomas Hutchinson, Governor of Massachusetts Bay and historian of the colony, whose diary and letters have been published by a descendant and are essential to any proper study of the Revolution. Prof. Hosmer, already known as the biographer of Sir Harry Vane, has examined all the Hutchinson MSS. available in this country, together with much other unpublished matter pertinent to the Governor and his time.

THE first number for 1893 (to be ready January 1) of the Johns Hopkins University Studies in History and Politics, edited by Professor Herbert B. Adams, will be a paper on "The Social Condition of Labor," by Dr. E. R. L. Gould, who was Fellow in History at Johns Hopkins in 1882-83, and who for six years has been a statistical expert in the U. S. Department of Labor. During the past four years he has been studying the condition of labor and manufactures in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Germany and England.

THE BANCROFT HISTORY CO., San Francisco, Cal., have in press "The Standard Spanish Phonographer," with English key. This will prove of especial value to Spaniards desiring to learn English, and English students desirous of obtaining a good knowledge of Spanish. The work has been compiled by an expert and experienced writer and is especially valuable to those already knowing an English system. The first edition will be limited, and those wishing to procure copies should communicate with the publishers without delay.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

The American Catalogue

1884-1890.

The new volume of the American Catalogue covers the period July 1, 1884, to June 30, 1890. It is in two parts, of which the first contains the author-and-title alphabet, and the second the subject alphabet, List of Government Publications, Publications of Societies, Books in Series, etc.

Price, $12.50 in sheets; and $15 in half morocco binding.

The edition is 1250 copies only, and there will be no re-issue.

... "There is scarcely a bookseller in the country who would hesitate a moment to expend twenty-five dollars in advertising his stock; ought he to hesitate a moment about an expenditure that would enable him to sell hundreds of dollars' worth of books in a year? Such an investment would also purchase for him a reputation among his customers for intelligence and trade knowledge that would pay him five times over."—A. D. F. RANDOLPH.

The Following are Some of the Opinions of the Trade and Press:

"For the time that we have devoted to its examination, are well pleased with it."—ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Publishers and Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"You deserve well of the world till you die, and after, but the book trade is just as ungrateful as any republic, and although they may sling an occasional laurel wreath out your way, the silver buzzard and the golden eagle 'fliesth not so fast nor so far.' There is but one Directory of the Book and Stationery Trade and that is Caspar's."—P. F. VAN EVEREN, New York.

"It is just splendid. The most complete book of the kind we have seen."—J. H. KURZENKHADE & SONS, Harrisburg, Pa.

"I am greatly pleased with your Directory. It is the best work of the kind ever issued and deserves a large sale."—NATURAL SCIENCE PUBLISHING CO., New York.

"It seems more complete than anything of the kind I have seen before."—J. B. MARTINDALE, Chicago.

"We like it very much, and we don't know but what it is the best thing of the kind we have ever seen."—P. R. McCARGO & CO., Boston.

"Am very grateful to you for the conscientious care and painstaking effort in preparing so valuable and so complete a work. Be kind enough to enter my name, and mail me all addenda sheets in future, and do not fail to notify me of any new project in this line you may engage in."—Geo. H. COLBY, Bookseller, Lancaster, N. H.

"We have looked it over with great interest and appreciate the fact that it will be of great value to us."—E. O. DAVIS & CO., Booksellers, Cincinnati.

"I think your book a most valuable one and believe it will be better appreciated as it becomes better known."—WILL H. LYONS, Newport, Ky.

"Even a cursory examination of this important directory will convince any one of the thorough manner in which it has been put together and of the value of the completed work. Mr. Caspar has produced a work which, if properly kept up from year to year, will be the standard."—The American Stationer, New York City.

"The Appendix to 'Caspar's Directory of the American Book, News, and Stationery Trades' is a most valuable compilation, exhaustive and complete. The information it contains is absolutely unique and not to be procured from any other source. Hence it is of the first importance to every one in the trades. It is admirably arranged; the references are simple, and being grouped under special heads, makes consultation a matter of little or no difficulty. Such a work is really a great trade directory, from which the initiated can feel the pulse of the whole book-publishing world. It is a monument of careful, painstaking and accurate labor, and is as reliable as it is extensive. . . . The preparation of this useful volume must have been a work of immense labor and patience, and Mr. Caspar must be congratulated on the success which he has achieved. It is a manual for publishers, booksellers, newsdealers, stationers, and libraries, indispensable to them all."—The American Bookseller.

One volume, large 8vo, 1450 pages, bound in half black cowhide, $12 net.

For the convenience of those who send out Travelling Agents, the publisher has had the Geographical Part bound separately in a handy shape, at $13 for the two volumes. These volumes will not be sold separately.

A Riddle. By FERGUS HUME, author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "Madam Midas," "A Creature of the Night," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. (Premier Series.)

"Mr. Fergus Hume has the knack of writing thrilling books, and 'The Black Carnation' is as thrilling as any he has produced. A tragedy occurs in the first chapter, and the rest of the tale is occupied with the discovery of the criminal and the unravelling of the mystery of the crime. Theory after theory suggests itself, and the reader over and over again imagines that he is on the right track; but the secret is so carefully kept that, when it is told in the last chapter, it comes as a complete surprise."—The London Academy.

Appledore Farm.

By KATHERINE S. MACQUOID, author of "Miss Eyon of Eyon Court," "Elizabeth Morley," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25; paper, 50 cents. (Premier Series.)

"A homely, pure, domestic romance; written in chaste, choice English."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"A good healthy story with love foundation. It deals with an interesting domestic environment, and works out the development of an interesting story."—Minneapolis Commercial Bulletin.

Annual Index to Periodicals,

1892.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association.

The "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," begun as a monthly supplement to The Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly, in an enlarged form, is now issued as an annual volume.

The volumes, beginning with that for 1890, contain a complete index in one alphabet to the magazine articles for the year, arranged on the plan of the original Poole volumes, with a direct reference to the date of issue. It indexes ninety-nine of the leading magazines (printed in the English language) of the United States and England.

The new volume, covering 1892, is planned to contain also an extension of the material of the "A. L. A. Index," so that it will be a first supplement to that important work.

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be overestimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

The Countess Pharamond.

By "RITA," author of "The Doctor's Secret," "The Vagabond Lover," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Metropolitan Series.

Ever since Rita published her first novel, "Sheba," and hinted at its close that there would be a sequel to the story, there has been a widespread, expressed desire for the work. This is supplied in "The Countess Pharamond," and the work fully sustains the interest aroused in the preceding volume.

NEW AND UNIFORM EDITION OF

THOMAS HARDY'S WORKS.

The Hand of Ethelberta.

A Comedy in Chapters. By THOMAS HARDY. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

"A most elaborate and lively satire on the social falsehoods of our fashionable world, on the rapidness of its life, the hollowness of its sentiment, and the chasms which yawn between it and the honest labor which builds the edifice of its luxury."—Spectator.

A Laodicean;

Or, The Castle of the De Stancys. By THOMAS HARDY. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

"In this work, Mr. Hardy's talent is displayed in the picture of Paula Power. . . . The study of this curious, uncommon, but by no means inconceivable middle-class young lady, is very interesting."—The Spectator.

Annual Catalogues, 1892.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1892 is nearly ready for press. It will contain:

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1892.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY 1892.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same, in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1892.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.00 sheets, $3.50 half leather; if ordered before publication, the price will be $2.50 in sheets, $3.00 half leather.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889 and 1890 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1892 as soon as ready, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

Early orders for both Catalogues are solicited.

JUST READY :

1884-1890.

The new volume of the American Catalogue covers the period July 1, 1884, to June 30, 1890. It is in two parts, of which the first contains the author-and-title alphabet, and the second the subject alphabet, List of Government Publications, Publications of Societies, Books in Series, etc.

Price, $12.50 in sheets; and $15 in half morocco binding.

The edition is 1250 copies only, and there will be no re-issue.

"There is scarcely a bookseller in the country who would hesitate a moment to expend twenty-five dollars in advertising his stock; ought he to hesitate a moment about an expenditure that would enable him to sell hundreds of dollars' worth of books in a year? Such an investment would also purchase for him a reputation among his customers for intelligence and trade knowledge that would pay him five times over."—A. D. F. RANDOLPH.
